STOCKS HAVE BRISK RALLY AFTER SHARP DOWNTURN

Long List of Issues Closes 1 to 10 Points Higher — Marked Increase in Trade Volume Is Noted.

J. I. CASE RISES NEARLY 30 POINTS

General Motors Reports Earnings of 98 Cents a Share for the First Quarter.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YOFK, April 22.—The stock market closed with an outburst of strength today after a flood of selling at the opening had carried scores of issue sdown 1 to 10 points. Most of the early declines were cut down, or wiped out, and a long list of issues closed 1 to nearly 10 points higher, with J. I. Case recording a spectacular advance of nearly 30 points by touching a new high at 353.

Trading showed a marked expansion in volume, the day's sales running close to 4,600,000 shares, with the ticker more than 25 minutes late at the close.

There was nothing in the day's news to account for the sudden change in speculative sentiment. Several large professional traders, who regarded the selling a corrective reaction, bought stocks heavily in the afternoon on the theory that the technical position had sufficiently improved to warrant a resumption of the advance. The General Motors Corporation published its quarterly report after the close, showing earnings of 98 cents a share, or about in line with earlier expectations, as against $1.37 a share in the first quarter of last year.

Among Late Influences.

An easing of credit conditions, reflected in lower rates for call money and bankers' acceptances, reports that operations of the U. S. Steel Corporation had increased from 79 to 81 per cent of capacity and a recovery in grain prices from the low levels established in the morning all helped to create a more cheerful speculative sentiment.

Oils, which were under pressure yesterday as a result of the sharp increase in California production last week, rallied in brisk fashion. Houston was marked up more than 6 points, Atlantic Refining, Pan American "B" and Mexican Seaboard showed net gains of 2 points or more and Standard Oil of New Jersey and several others advanced a point or so. Transcontinental was heavily bought, touching a new high record for the year.

Illinois Central and Eastman Kodak each jumped more than 9 points to new high records at 136¾ and 248½, respectively. Electric Power & Light ran up 7½ points to a new top at 102, or more than double the year's low. Diamond Match, Worthington Pump, American Water Works, Vanadium Steel, A. M. Byers, Underwood Elliott Fisher, Worthington Pump and Checker Cab sold 3 to 10 points higher, but some of the gains were cut down by late realizing.

Coppers Recover Some.

Early declines of 1 to 3 points in the active copper shares, most of which touched new low levels for the year, were either sharply reduced or converted into small declines. National Lead dropped 5 points.

Call Money 3½ Per Cent.

Call money dropped from 4 to 3½ per cent, with loans available in the "outside market" as low as 3 per cent. Bankers' acceptances were reduced ⅛ of 1 per cent for all maturrities. Time money was easier, slight recessions being noted in all except the long maturities.

Foreign exchanges moved within rather narrow and irregular limits. Sterling cables ruled steady around 4.86⅛, but French francs were firmer around 3.92⅜c.

Wheat closed easy, 1¼c bushel lower. Corn, on the other hand, closed steady, ¼c to ½c higher. Cotton closed unchanged to 60c a bale lower.

He Entered Hospital for Minor Operation; In Iron Industry 22 Years.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 22.—E. T. McCleary, president of the newly formed Republic Steel Corporation, died in a hospital here today following an operation.

McCleary entered the hospital for a minor operation Sunday. Complications set in and another operation was performed last night.

McCleary began his career in Youngstown as metallurgist for the Carnegie Steel local plant 22 years ago. In 1926 he became vice president of the Youngstown Steel and Tube Co.

Leaving Steel and Tube for the Republic Iron and Steel Co. in April, 1928, McCleary became president of Republic, and when the new $350,000,000 Republican corporation was formed by a recent merger he became president of the combination.

He leaves a widow and two children.

Associates said that death was due to a ruptured intestine.

TWO BANKERS ACCUSED OF $1,297,363 FRAUD

Officers of Defunct Fort Worth National Depository Charged With Misuse of Funds.

By the Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Tex, April 22.—Charges of misapplication of $1,297,363 in funds of the Texas National Bank were filed today in Federal Court against B. B. Samuels, president, and A. L. Baker, vice president, of the defunct bank. Samuels has been in St. Luke's Hospital in New York City since April 16.

The complaint charges Samuels and Baker caused a false entry to be made in the individual ledger of the Tarrant County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1 construction fund. The entry, said to have been $1,274,593.98, was under date of Jan. 31, 1930, the day on which the bank closed its doors.

HOUSE SUSTAINS VETO OF COIN MEMORIAL BILL

Measure Provided for Minting of Half-Dollar Commemorating Gadsden Purchase.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The House today sustained President Hoover's veto of the bill to coin a silver half-dollar to commemorate the Gadsden territory purchase in the Southwest.

By a vote of 243 to 96, it rejected a motion to pass the measure over the veto.

Under the Constitution a two-thirds vote would have been necessary to override the President.

Those supporting Mr. Hoover's position constituted a majority of the membership.

Mr. Hoover in vetoing the bill took the view that the coinage of special pieces commemorating historical events should be stopped to prevent confusion to "our monetary system."

$100,000 LOANS MADE BY BANK TO ITS PRESIDENT

Examiners' Report Shows A. F. C. Blase's Obligations to Union-Easton Trust Are Unsecured.

WIFE AND BROTHER ALSO BORROWED

State Finance Official Says Depositors Will Not Be Paid for at Least Four Months.

More than $100,000 of the defunct Union-Easton Trust Co.'s money was lent during the past few months to Arthur F. C. Blase, president and founder of the neighborhood bank, and to three corporations which he also headed, the loans being secured by the flimsy collateral of the capital stock of the Blase companies or by no security at all.

An inventory of the bank's assets, filed with the Recorder of Deeds yesterday by J. B. Norris, State Bank Examiner, shows loans of $112,356 to Blase, his companies, his wife and his brother, more than one-third of an item of $322,748.57 headed "Loans, Personal and Collateral."

Both State Finance Commissioner Cantley and George W. Clarkson, president of the Mound City Trust Co., who has taken charge of the bank as deputy commissioner in charge of liquidation, said today it would be impossible to estimate the possible loss to depositors or stockholders. Published estimates or probable losses are "mere guesses," Cantley declared.

Depositors who had $650,275 in the bank on March 28, when it was closed on Cantley's order because its directors could not replace $135,000 of "slow paper," must wait at least four months for liquidating dividends. In due course the necessary forms for filing claims will be mailed to them by Clarkson.

Assets Listed at $1,065,797.

Meanwhile, Clarkson will begin the slow task of turning the bank's assets into cash. The book value of assets, according to the inventory, is $1,065,797.81, more than sufficient to cover claims, but it is obvious that this sum will be substantially reduced in liquidation.

The true value of the personal and collateral loans, of $222,685 in real estate loans, and the banking house and fixtures at 5325 Easton avenue, carried at $175,155, can be determined only by liquidation. Of the larger items, the one of most certain value is "Bonds, $148,288," but most of these bonds are held by the Board of Education as security for a deposit of $132,000.

Blase owes the bank $21,500 on his personal account, represented by a note for $12,500 dated Nov. 1, last, and a note for $9000 dated Jan. 30, secured by 260 shares of stock in the Provident Savings and Loan Institution, of doubtful value.

The Provident Savings and Loan Institution, 1009 Locust street, organized by Blase and now in receivership pending liquidation, owes $30,000 on five unsecured notes, one for $24,000 dated Jan. 31, and four for $1500 each, dated Nov. 13, Dec. 15, Jan. 11 and Jan. 13.

Auto Firm Owes $17,785.

The Franke Automobile Co., 1397 Hamilton avenue, of which Blase is president, owes $17,785, unsecured, represented by an overdraft of $4195.52 on its checking account and three notes for $5000, $3590.50 and $5000 dated Dec. 31, Jan. 29 and Jan. 30. The Franke overdraft is the only substantial one on the bank's books and was made since its last published balance sheet as of Dec. 31.

The Capitol Investment Co., with Blase as president, and offices in the bank, organized as a real estate holding company, owes $31,507, unsecured, and represented by three notes for $14,200, $2800 and $12,000, dated Aug. 31, last, Dec. 31 and Jan. 30, and an item of $2607 under "advances by real estate department."

Oliver Blase, vice president of the bank and secretary of the Provident and Capitol companies and brother of the president, owes $2250, dated Dec. 31, and secured by 15 shares of Provident stock and 15 shares of Capitol stock.

Mrs. Ethel Blase, wife of the president, owes $9214.85, which is listed as unsecured under "advances by real estate department."

Loan Stock Value Doubtful.

The Provident Savings and Loan Institution stock, which Charles H. Daues, co-receiver, has said will be worthless paper when that company's holdings are liquidated for the benefit of its creditors, was

DEATH LIST, 317 CONVICTS; 231 ARE INJURED IN OHIO STATE PENITENTIARY FIRE

INQUIRY BEGUN; GUARD REFUSED TO GIVE UP KEY TO UNLOCK DOOR

Warden Says Brother Officers Had to Overpower Thomas Watkinson Before They Could Proceed to the Rescue.

ACCUSED MAN BLAMES CAPTAIN

Declares All Would Have Been Saved if Superior Had Permitted Him to Start Freeing Inmates at Once.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., April 22.—A clash between county and State authorities in the investigation of the Ohio Penitentiary fire here last night and the suspension of a prison guard who was charged with having refused to give up tier range keys to cells in which 317 convicts perished, today marked the inquiry into the blaze.

The clash came early in the day when, after Franklin County Prosecutor John J. Chester Jr. had recommended suspension of Warden Preston E. Thomas pending investigation and had ordered telephones removed from the Warden's office. Gov. Myers Y. Cooper took the investigation out of the hands of Chester by naming State Director Welware Griswold and Attorney-General Bettman to conduct the inquiry.

After the Governor acted, Chester said Cooper had taken all power out of his hands and placed complete power with State officials. He took a part in the investigation hearings, however.

Key Taken From Reluctant Guard.

The most startling bit of testimony came from the Warden. He said guards, intent on rescuing the trapped men, had been refused entrance to the burning ranges by Guard Thomas Watkinson, and that they were forced to take a key from him before they could open any of the cell doors. The heat drove them back before they finished the task and 317 convicts died in the barred cells.

Watkinson testified today before the Investigating Committee that Capt. John Hall of the penitentiary night guard had commanded him not to open the door. Previously Watkinson's excuse was that he had no order to give up his key.

Watkinson testified he had been a hall guard in cell blocks G and H for a year and a half. He said Guard Richeson told him about 5:38 p. m. that a fire had startde and he then sent Guard Light to get keys to the individual cells. He could see that wooden forms, used in mixing concrete for cell construction work at the north end of the block, were afire and the blaze was spreading from west to east. He said it appeared to be fed by oil used to keep concrete from sticking to the forms.

Had Key in the Door.

Eight minutes later the fire reached the top of the building and started to creep south, he said. It required 12 to 15 minutes to reach blocks G and H. Guards Little and Baldwin arrived then and he told them to get keys to the cells, and they went, Watkinson said.

Capt. Hall then arrived, he said, and he asked Hall, "Shall I open the door?" Hall said, "No," according to Watkinson's testimony. Watkinson said he had his key in the door ready to open it. Baldwin and Little then returned but still Hall refused to let them open the door," Watkinson said, and Baldwin said, "Isn't this hell?"

When asked why he did not open the door Watkins said he was an English miner and had always been taught to obey his superior officers. Light and Richeson returned and Watkinson sai dhe then personally opened the corridor door. The other four guards then began opening cells in the bottom tier. Watkinson said he didn't

OTHER PRISONERS MUTINY IN YARD

Many of Them Aid in Rescue Work, However — Routine Restored at Institution, Which Housed 1700 More Than Intended

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 22.—Three hundred and seventeen convicts in Ohio State penitentiary were killed by fire and smoke while they were locked in their cells last night, according to the official casualty count made today by State officials.

Two hundred and thirty-one other prisoners were injured, and many of these were in a grave condition from burns and from smoke.

The penitentiary, which is near the heart of the city, housed 4300 convicts—2700 more than the capacity for which it was intended—when the fire, of supposedly incendiary origin, fanned by a stiff wind, swept through the upper tiers of four cell blocks.

The ruins of the cell block broke into flames again this morning but a fire company quickly extinguished the blaze. A fire which started this afternoon in E and F dormitories was quickly extinguished with chemicals. A spark from last night's fire is thought to have caused it.

The bodies of the dead convicts lie in a temporary morgue. As the dead were being prepared for burial in the coliseum of the State Fair Grounds by corps of undertakers, State officials, headed by Warden Preston E. Thomas and Director of Welfare A. H. Griswold continued their investigation of the fire, which all agreed was of incendiary origin.

Normal Activity Resumed.

Routine in the penitentiary late today was on regular schedule, the 4000 inmates going about their business in the usual manner. Excepting for the presence of soldiers, National Guardsmen and policemen, one would hardly realize that the prison yard was the scene of a disastrous fire last night. The cotton and woolen mills did not work. This was the only deviation from routine. The meal gongs sounded as usual. Convicts driven from their cells by the fire were crowded into the other tiers and into the chapel.

Thomas Watkinson, a guard who was charged with refusing to give up the keys to prisoners who wished to attempt rescues, was suspended today by Warden Thomas. Watkinson was one of the two guards on duty in the section where the loss was heaviest.

The flames were discovered shortly before 5:30 p. m. yesterday. After several hours the fire was brought under control but the suffocating smoke continued to take its toll among the convicts. In the adjoining cell blocks men screamed to be released, and when the prison officials yielded to their demands the wide penitentiary yard became a streaming mass of gray clothed men.

Before two hours had passed, these men picking their way among countless bodies spread over the yard, became a threatening menace. Some of them cut the fire hose which continued to play on flames that spread to the prison cotton and woolen mills. Others hurled stones and slugged the guards that were trying to maintain order. In the dining hall dishes and tables were upset.

Every available policeman in Columbus was summoned for duty both within the prison and on the Chairman Borah of the Foreign Relations Committee, who has indicated that he is inclined to favor the treaty, said today he would try for ratification this session.

NAVAL PACT SIGNED BY 5 POWERS AT LONDON

Unpretentious but Dramatic Ceremony Held in Queen Anne's Drawing Room of St. James's Palace After 3 Months' Parley.

ONLY BEGINNING, M'DONALD SAYS

Tells Delegates 3-Power Agreement Is No Mean Achievement, but Work of Attacking Other Problems Must be Continued.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1930, by the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, April 22.—A five-Power naval treaty, embracing as its chief provision a strict tonnage limitation agreement among the United States, Great Britain and Japan, was signed this afternoon at St. James's Palace by representatives of those powers and of France and Italy. The ceremony ended labors begun in London three months ago.

The American delegates, by right of alphabetical precedence, signed first. Secretary of State Stimson affixed his signature with a gold pen at 12:40 p. m. and he was followed by Ambassador Dawes, Secretary of the Navy Adams, Senators Robinson and Reed and Ambassadors Gibson and Morrow in that order. Then came the shaggy and stocky Briand, French Foreign Minister, veteran of a dozen such events, and his colleagues. Briand, all smiles, paused on his way around the table to shake hands with Morrow. After the French came the delegates of Britain and her Dominions, then the Italians, headed by Admiral Sirriani, and finally the Japanese led by former Premier Reigiro Wakatsuki. Formality vanished a few minutes after the signing began and delegates milled about the table to exchange farewells. Prime Minister MacDonald and Briand especially were in high spirits.

Briand Pledges Support.

The ceremony of signing ended at 12:54. An eloquent speech by Aristide Briand, which aroused the first applause of the session, intensified the spirit of optimism which marked the whole proceedings. Speaking with quick, vivid gestures, the veteran Frenchman declared his country and Italy would do all possible to overcome the difficulties which had kept them out of the Naval Limitation pact.

"I am sorry," he said, "that we have not done all, but what we have not done today will surely be done tomorrow." Turning to MacDonald, at whose right hand he sat, Briand addressed him as "my old friend," and paid a moving tribute to the manner in which the British Premier had conducted the conference. MacDonald, he said, had confounded "sinister prophecies" and brought the conference to a successful end.

Responding to Briand, MacDonald, in a voice betraying emotion, said his heart had been deeply in the work of the conference and he had "just done his best." He expressed the hope he would be a member of the British delegation at the conference in 1935 to carry on the work begun at London.

"I am so glad we have met," said MacDonald simply. "I am so glad we have all been colleagues. I am so glad we are only adjourning; that we are going to have the pleasure of other conferences with two, at any rate, of the delegations and when we are able to produce something I hope you will all come back again in order to seal and sign the agreement which I am sure is very shortly to become a fact."

Only at End of Chapter.

"We have not reached the end of the volume," MacDonald said in a speech to the press immediately after adjournment, "we have only come to the end of a chapter and already we are turning over the leaf to begin the first paragraph of the next." MacDonald referred to the "network of individual needs" which had kept the conference from reaching the goal of a complete five-Power understanding. Always possible, he said, was the three-Power agreement and "may-outside. A sub-machine gun in the guard room covered the entrance to the prison yard.

CONVICT'S FIRST ALARM OF FIRE MISTAKEN BY OTHERS FOR JOKE

ORDERS ISSUED BY TRUSTY WHO GIVES OUT KEYS

Two Guard Captains Collapse After One Reaches Fourth Tier and Other the Fifth, Opening Cells.

Two companies of regular army troops and 1500 Ohio National Guardsmen were stationed at strategic places about the penitentiary. Every guard on both day and night shifts was on duty.

Still the thousands of milling prisoners in the yard refused to be quieted. When they were ordered to assemble in the dining room many refused. Later they were ordered into the remaining cell blocks and dormitories but they insisted on staying in the yard. Except for minor disturbances there was no trouble, however.

About five hours after the fire was brought under control the ranks of scantily clad convicts began to thin out and at midnight only a few of them were left in the yard.

Beacon lights and arc lamps, placed on the main wall for protection, played down on the scene. Slowly the work of removing bodies to the Fairgrounds proceeded.

Broke Out in Several Places Simultaneously.

Scenes of confusion and terror accompanied the outburst of the flames. They started in the northwest corner of a new building of cell blocks, part of which still was under construction. It was in this new part that the fire originated, not more than half an hour after a gang of prisoners working on the job returned to their cells.

Apparently the flames broke out in several places simultaneously, officials said, pointing to incendiarism.

Liston G. Schooley, Cleveland Councilman who is serving a term for participation in a Cleveland playground fraud, was at work in the Deputy Warden's office, on the opposite side of the prison yard. He saw smoke rising from the cell blocks.

About the same time Charley Sholkey, a prisoner from Toledo, and one of those quartered in the damaged building, sounded an alarm on Range 2 of Section H. Sholkey, a practical joker, was not taken seriously by his fellow convicts until they saw the red reflection in the windows of a manufacturing plant near the penitentiary.

Trusty Issues Orders.

Then a great scream emenated from Sections G and H. In each there were six ranges of 17 cells, housing four prisoners to the cell. The flames and the smoke were eating toward them rapidly.

William C. Baldwin and Tom Little, guard captains, dashed to the flaming building with keys to the cells.

At the same time other guards ran to the deputies' office where Schooley, in the absence of officers, began handing out orders and issued all the keys he had.

Guards Baldwin and Little rushed into the smoke filled buildings, took the keys to the ranges and from the day guards and started unlocking cells as quickly as they could. Meanwhile fire companies, answering four alarms, spread every foot of hose available.

As the guards released convicts from one range they climbed to the next. Men were choking and gasping for breath. As they were released many joined in the rescue work.

After he had unlocked the last cell on the fourth range, Little collapsed. Four inmates carried him out. Baldwin struggled on to the fifth tier, then, he too, collapsed and was carried to safety.

Couldn't Reach Top Range.

On the fourth and fifth ranges death took its toll rapidly. The lungs of the trapped men were filled with smoke. Ghastly sights greeted the rescuers. Suffocated men lay on the floor clutching with pale, white fingers at the bars that held them in. Others were stretched across and under their bunks. Some had tried to bury their heads in the lavatories in the cells, and still others had grabbed their blankets or torn their shirts from their backs to drench them with water and place them over their heads.

Streams of water swished through the mesh and the iron bars and formed rivulets in which the faces of fallen men were buried.

Hundreds had been carried from the structure and above the heads of the rescuers in the sixth and last range were more than a hundred others who could not possibly be saved. Bed mattresses and the cots were masses of flames.

Locks on the cells were battered away with sledge hammers, the mesh walls of the ranges were cut away with clippers. Hose lines, winding a path up the flights of stairs, got in the road of struggling men.

Outside the smoke-filled building the scene resembled a field of battle strewn with corpses.

At first, the prisoners who had escaped death emerged in pairs carrying a comrade by the arms and feet. They hurried across a small clearing covered with new lumber and dropped the victims into the grass.

Then they knelt beside the choked men, turned them on their stomachs and applied methods of resuscitation. For a while this revived the victims, but soon they came so fast that the band of convicts found themselves stumbling over each other, dropping the men they had carried out and hurrying back for others.

Groans and feeble cries from the victims, and words of encouragement and shrieks of terror from the men who were working over them rose from the ground. Blankets were spread profusely over the grass.

"Make room for this man. He's alive. Gangway," came the cry from a little group hurrying along the walks toward the hospital. The lanes of prisoners separated. They made room for the man who had a chance to live.

Outbreak in the Yard.

Out of the guard-room door poured doctors, internes, nurses, priests and ministers. Dying men cried for the last rites of the church. Medical men, some without hats or coats and others in uniforms of white, tramped over the ground, which became soggy under the trampling of many feet.

Two hours after the fire started daylight had faded away and weary, troubled men worked on under the rays of the arc lights that gave the prison yard a dismal appearance.

It was about this time that muttering prisoners, chilled to the bone in the night air because they would not obey orders to go inside, started the disturbances that caused so much alarm.

The effects of warm coffee served during the rescue operations and consumed freely by hundreds who were idling about as well as those who were working had worn off when dark fell. But it was mostly the idle prisoners who were inclined to cause trouble. They assembled in small groups in different parts of the prison yard. The guards could do nothing with them. Stones flew through the air occasionally and once a band of men rushed a gasoline supply truck that had been brought into the yard and tried to set it afire. Several prisoners intervened, were pelted with tincups and dashed away, but the inclination to burn the gasoline truck was broken up.

Floodlights Installed.

Beyond the gates, in the office of Warden Thomas, in the Warden's residence, in the record room and in the secretary's office, State and county officials, armed guardsmen and troopers were prepared for whatever might happen.

Electricians, aided by trusties, climbed to the guard tower atop the front wall and installed floodlights that illuminated nearly every corner of the yard.

Occasionally among the milling prisoners could be seen the striped cap of a member of First "K" company, the band of convicts ordinarily kept under close lock and key because of their tendency to start trouble on the least provocation.

But the men apparently convinced themselves that there was little to be gained by adding to the appalling situation created by the fire. The groups thinned out to mere handsful. They took to their bunks.

Each prisoner who escaped the fate of those in Companies G and H was as anxious to spread the word that he was safe as his relatives were hopeful of receiving it. Prison officials finally called on radio stations to broadcast the news that all prisoners who were safe would send word to their families today.

While the disaster was at its worst pandemonium reigned without as well as within the prison walls.

Black smoke, rolling in clouds from the roof of the damaged cell blocks, was the first signal to the outside world of the impending catastrophe. Spectators gathered rapidly and within a few minutes forced a serious handicap on the officials trying to maintain order.

The crowds surged up to the lawn fronting the prison and policemen battled futilely against them. Automobile traffic jammed the surrounding streets. A company of troops finally was called into action to clear West Spring street on which the penitentiary faces and other abutting thoroughfares. The troops charged up the street with fixed bayonets.

Guards stationed on the outside dropped their rifles and picked up sub-machine guns to drive back the throngs. This maneuvering brought prompt success.

Ohio penitentiary is 40 years old. New buildings have been added from time to time but the general property is much the same as in the beginning.

It was built to accommodate 1600 prisoners. The population yesterday was 4306. Overcrowded conditions for years have proved the greatest source of trouble at the penitentiary. The building in which the fire victims met death was comparatively new.

The roof was covered with an oil substance that made fuel for the flames. The fire started in the roof and ate a steady path until the entire covering was consumed. The building was constructed of concrete, brick, steel and wood.

Warden Known as Expert.

The prison covers about five acres, within a stone's throw of downtown Columbus. Within the prison walls are a score of buildings, including eight cell blocks, hospital, mills, chapel, dining halls and other structures.

Thomas has been warden of the prison for about 15 years. He is noted as an expert on prisons. Under his rule there have been no major riots, but there have been many deliveries and escapes, including one when 13 convicts of Company K, the "bad gang," got loose.

Overcrowding of the prison was charged in the 1929 handbook of the National Society of Penal Information.

"The ancient plant at the State penitentiary in Columbus, one of the largest prisons in the country, suffers from a condition of overcrowding worse than that in any other prison," the report said. "The need of another institution in the Ohio penal system has been apparent for many years, but the State is only now taking steps to alleviate the conditions at Columbus. Not only can Columbus not care for an increased population, but it is already too large a prison to be operated on any other lines than those of blanket treatment. Even with the completion of the present building program it will be able to care for its present population only under conditions that fall far below accepted modern standards for housing prisoners."

Incidents in Ohio Prison Fire; Death Row Men Unscathed.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., April 22.

ALL the prisoners awaiting execution in death row escaped last night in the fire in Ohio Penitentiary. When the blaze menaced their cells, they were transferred to the solitary confinement section.

More than 20 murderers, serving life terms, met death. Convicted robbers and burglars led the list of those killed.

One of the trusties, Tacks Latimer, former major league baseball player, serving a life sentence for murder, was given a shotgun as soon as the alarm became general and many prisoners were released from their cells. Latimer, who has been guard at the outer door for several years, stood watch through the night.

Telegrams clicked over the wires to all parts of the United States today as prisoners who escaped the tragedy communicated with their families.

"I'm safe," was the gist of every message.

Long known as a friend of the prisoners, Mrs. Preston E. Thomas, wife of the warden, lived up to her name. When news of the disaster reached her, she collapsed and was placed under the care of a physician, but after a period of rest, she was ready to help the others. She took her place in the warden's office early today, making calls and arranging for the care of injured prisoners.

HUNDREDS of prisoners died in the fire, but a pet kitten, whose antics had amused many of the victims, lived.

It was due to the eyesight of Howard Crandall, a trusty from Cuyahoga County—and the size of his pockets. Rushing in to aid the stricken man, he saw the kitten, apparently suffocated, on the floor.

"Big Jim" Morton, notorious Cleveland bank robber, liberated several men from K block before smoke overcame him. Unconscious for a time, he was finally revived.

COMPANY K in Ohio Penitentiary includes all the bad men, mostly long-termers—men who refuse to be disciplined. Half a dozen of these got loose during the excitement and, until they were cornered, fires broke out in the cotton mills and fire hoses were cut. To them was attributed the trouble among the convicts loose in the yards.

INQUIRY IS BEGUN; GUARD REFUSED TO GIVE UP HIS KEY

think there was much fire but the smoke became stronger and convicts began to scream profanely to open the door. He said he told Capt. Hall, "I'll open the door when you say so."

"Would Have Saved All."

Watkinson, when asked by Griswold if he thought the lives of any of the men would have been saved if he had opened the doors when the two other guards first appeared, said: "In my judgment every man would have been saved if Capt. Hall had allowed me to open the door when Little and Baldwin first arrived. Finally I considered the men's lives and I disregarded orders and did open the doors."

Other developments at the inquiry were:

After the fire was discovered the Warden took command of the situation outside the prison, sending his chief deputy inside.

At the first sign of fire, the Warden instructed guards to free the prisoners from their cells.

Watkinson was suspended after the Warden learned of the key incident and was told that prisoners were muttering against him.

The cause of the first blaze was undetermined. The other fires later were thought to have been set by unruly prisoners.

Statement by Warden.

The inquiry opened with a brief statement from the Governor, who said he desired an open investigation to produce all the facts to which the public is entitled.

Warden Thomas' statement to Griswold last night was read. He said the G and I tiers housed 800 men in six tiers. He said that at approximately 5:35 p. m., the first alarm was sounded. He explained that keys to the cells in the blazing tiers were kept in the main guard room to prevent prisoners taking them from guards. When he reached the prison yard, he continued, he ordered night guards, just coming on duty, to get the keys and liberate the endangered men. About 12 minutes later, he said, a detail of Ohio National Guardsmen were on the scene. The Warden declared he had no definite idea as to the cause of the blaze.

The transcript of Thomas' statement detailed close questioning by Prosecutor Chester on procedure followed by guards with Companies G and H. Thomas said that these reports of procedure are turned into the deputies' office nightly so there would be no danger of the prisoners getting them.

Couldn't Stand Smoke.

Other questions in the transcript dealt with the Warden's reason for turning things over to Chief Deputy J. C. Woodward on the inside while he arranged for troops and other things outside. Thomas said he was suffering from asthma and could not stand the smoke.

The transcript also disclosed that Chester thought his questions were not being properly answered and that he told Thomas he would have to answer satisfactorily or he would make him do so in court. When reading of the transcript was finished the Warden went before the Governor's inquiry board.

Under questioning by Assistant Attorney-General Godown, Thomas went over practically the same ground covered by Chester. He said Guards Little and Baldwin were preparing to go on duty on the blocks when the fire started. Guard Watkinson had the keys to the cages leading to the ranges, he said. Asked who locked in the men, he replied the 12 day guards before they went off duty. He explained they turned their keys in at the guard room.

Refused to Open Door.

Little and Baldwin told him, the warden said, that they took the G and H tier cell keys and went on a run toward the fire. They asked Watkinson to open the corridor door, but he refused, they said, saying he had no order to do so. They said they took the key from him, opened the corridors, and then started to open the cells.

Asked if guards had any special instructions about fires, the warden replied no particular instructions were issued, but that the guards were expected to act to meet any situation. Asked if he knew of any motive Watkinson might have in not letting the other guards in, the warden replied in the negative.

Little and Baldwin told him, Thomas continued, of their work in opening cells until they were overcome. At this point convicts took the keys from them and continued unlocking the cells. Prisoners rescued the guards. The convicts found some locks sprung by heat and attacked these with hammers.

Asked if any inflammable material was near the spot where 100 convicts had been working near the scene of the start of the fire, Warden Thomas replied there was a gasoline concrete mixer, but he did not know if it had been in operation Monday.

Slow to Realize Emergency.

Guards were slow to realize the seriousness of the fire and directed their first efforts against a possible outbreak of convicts rather than rescue work, it was indicated in testimony today.

Griswold early today questioned six prison officials, guards, firemen and prisoners, in the hope of fixing responsibility.

Warden Thomas told Griswold his first act on receiving word of the fire was to send a deputy with keys to the prison gates to let the fire apparatus in, and then inquired if keys had been sent to the cell blocks to release the prisoners.

"I was informed that keys had not been sent to the cell blocks, and I ordered the guards to get them there as quickly as possible. I don't know what guards took the keys or how long they were in getting them there."

Warden Guards on Outside.

The warden said he then armed two guards with shotguns and took personal charge of guarding the prison on the outside to prevent possible escape of convicts.

"Before leaving for the outside, I ordered keys to the cells sent by a trusty to the E and F cell blocks, but my wife had beaten me to it."

The warden said it was probably 20 minutes from the time he was notified of the fire until bodies were brought out.

C. W. Osborn, Assistant Columbus Fire Chief, said he was the first fireman to arrive on the scene. He figured it was not more than 12 minutes from the time the alarm came into the fire station until he had his apparatus inside the prison walls.

"The guards said they were unlocking the cells, but the prisoners said they were not. I did not see any guards unlocking cells," said Osborn.

Prisoners, impatient at the efforts of firemen to extinguish the blaze, overpowered firemen and took the hose lines from them in an attempt to play streams of water on the cells where the prisoners were held, Osborn said. He declared their efforts were futile, as the hose was not long enough to reach the upper tiers of cells.

Liston G. Schooley, Cleveland prisoner, said he was in the Deputy Warden's office when he discovered the flames. He called the telephone operator, who responded that he already knew of the fire.

"Cleveland Johnson, a prisoner, came running in and asked for keys to open doors to get down to the cell blocks, where the fire was raging," said Schooley. "Guard Cooper came running in and asked for keys also, but in the excitement and confusion, I could not find the ones he wanted. He left and then came back, reported that he could not get through and asked what he should do. I told him to break the doors down or get through any way he could."

Night aptain Hall said he had just arrived for duty when the fire was discovered, but had not yet taken over his work.

"I ran to the cell block and seeing the dense smoke was suffocating the prisoners, ordered the windows on the east side broken in to allow fresh air to them," Hall said.

"I did not see any guards unlocking cells," Hall said, "but the smoke was so dense that they could have been doing so and I would not have seen them."

"Whose duty is it to unlock the cells in case of fire?" Director Griswold asked.

"It is the duty of the guards," Hall replied.

Hall said one cell key had been lost since last Thanksgiving. The keys were in duplicate and each key would unlock the cells in opposite tiers.

Edward Jenkins, Sergeant of the guard, said: "I had no instructions in case of fire, except to guard at the gates."

Deputy Warden Woodward said he was outside the prison when he saw the smoke and flames. He rushed to the prison and found that all cells in the vicinity of the fire had been unlocked except the ones in the top ranges.

"When I got there prisoners and guards were pounding the locks with axes and hammers to break them," he said.

Suffocated Men Fell "Like Poisoned Flies," Eye Witness Says

COLUMBUS, O., April 22.—A picture of the heroic, but fruitless efforts made to rescue 317 men from their cells in Ohio State Penitentiary fire last night, was told today by George Richmond, editor of the prison paper. Richmond, serving a term for bank robbery, said his cell was unlocked by a guard soon after the alarm was sounded.

"We hurried over in the direction of the fire and were met by prisoners rushing around holding their heads and others rolling on the ground. But that was mild as to what met our view as we came up to enter the cell block where the prisoners were trapped.

"When I first entered the smoke was dense. We didn't realize our danger. We didn't stop to think. We only heard the frantic cries for help.

"By that time other prisoners who had been released from their cells had joined in the rescue work. As the smoke became denser we could hardly make headway.

"I remember grabbing a pick and starting to break the locks on cell doors. Sometimes when the picks struck the steel bars they would glance off and strike the men on inside.

"The men were shaking at the locks. We couldn't see them. We struck blindly. Sometimes we hit steel, sometimes human flesh. The entrapped men were crazed with suffering. Maybe they didn't feel it.

"As the flames started to sweep down the airshaft the poor fellows started to fall, one by one, as the intense heat suffocated them. Men fell like poisoned flies. We had succeeded in releasing some by this time, but the flames and heat had already overcome many and we were dragging the men out. We had to make a break for safety when the wooden roof supports began to fall. It was terrible."

ATTORNEY-GENERAL PUT ON PAYROLL

Promoters Made Friends Among Officials Who Had Power to Interfere With Their Operations.

Political activities of officers and employes of the collapsed brokerage firm of W. H. Young & Bros., Inc., in the interest of Secretary of State Charles U. Becker and Attorney-General Stratton Shartel were disclosed today in examination of the company's files at its home office in the Central National Bank Building. As is known, investors lost about $2,000,000 in the crash.

A year after they came to St. Louis from Oklahoma and started their brokerage business on a $5000 shoestring, William H. and Fred C. Young decided in 1928 to support Becker and Shartel.

Secretary Becker had supervision over his appointee, Fenton T. Stockard, Securities Commissioner, in charge of the enforcement of the blue sky law. The Attorney-General, under the blue sky law, is authorized in certain cases to enjoin fraudulent stock dealings.

Becker Thanks Young.

Efforts of the Young brothers' organization in his behalf prompted Secretary Becker to write the following letter to President William H. Young, Nov. 19, 1928:

Dear Mr. Young:

I want to thank you for the splendid work you did for me in my race for re-election as Secretary of State. You have been a great help to me, and I am delighted with the showing I have made.

While the election returns will not be counted for 10 days, unofficial sources indicate that I have led my opponent by nearly 100,000 majority. I led the State ticket, Hoover alone running ahead of me. This I consider a fine testimonial from the people of the State as to their confidence in my ability to manage the office of Secretary of State.

To you and to my many other friends making this fine result possible I owe my deepest gratitude.

With kind personal regards and best wishes, I beg to remain.

Sincerely yours,
CHARLES U. BECKER,
Secretary of State.

Shartel Hired as Counsel.

Attorney-General Shartel, a week after his appointment to that office by Gov. Baker in June, 1928, accepted an offer from Young Bros. to become the Jefferson City attorney for the firm and, after his election as Attorney-General, continued in the firm's employ until last June, when he resigned.

During one year Shartel says he accepted $3000 in fees from the firm, but actually performed no services for it, although the checks were marked "for services rendered." Shartel, who is in Washington on business, declared he had no knowledge of the nature of securities promoted by Young Bros. and that he had no reason to mistrust them during his year's employment.

Shartel to Pass on Case.

As told in Sunday's Post-Dispatch, Attorney-General Shartel's resignation as Jefferson City counsel for Young Bros. was tendered about six weeks before the St. Louis Better Business Bureau began to urge State Securities Commissioner Stockard to investigate the company's practices. Last week Gov. Caulfield referred to Attorney-General Shartel the resolution of the St. Louis Better Business Bureau asking him and "all others directly or indirectly responsible for the administration of the Missouri securities act" to correct a condition under which the Young Bros. flourished in the sale of dubious securities.

Gov. Caulfield has said that in his view he has no supervision over the work of the Securities Commissioner and has asked the Attorney-General for an opinion on the question whether the Governor has any power in matters within the departments of other elected State officers.

Reporting on his political labors, Fred Young in Kansas City, wrote his brother "Bill" in St. Louis, Oct. 15, 1928:

"Fred Richardson stated over the phone he will positively support Becker and Shartel. Charles Mad-[illegible] 100 per cent for both."

Richardson, former County Assessor at Kansas City, became vice president of the Midwest Holding Co., a subsidiary of the Young brokerage firm. Madison, former United States Attorney at Kansas City, became one of many lawyers with political connections retained by Young Bros.

Evidence of What We Can Do.

Fred Young, "as evidence of what we can do over here," mailed William Young copies of letters sent by Charles Rader, Kansas City politician, to Becker and Shartel, promising them support and referring to visits from Fred Young in their behalf.

The following prepaid telegram, charged to W. H. Young, was sent Oct. 18, 1928:

Mr. Charles U. Becker,
Care of Postmaster Haas,
Cape Girardeau, Mo.

Regret I was not there when you spoke in Thirteenth District, but national and state headquarters have been taking my time. Understand you will speak again in the Thirteenth after leaving Cape. Wish to assure you the Thirteenth Congressional District will deliver for yourself and the rest of the ticket. Reports received from our members throughout the state indicate the ticket is stronger at this time than ever before during this campaign with you in the lead. Reports from distant workers in other states in which we have representation show that the national ticket is in very strong position.

Mid-West Farmers' Protective Club, per TOM DRISCOLL.

Young Bros. records list Thomas Driscoll as a salesman operating from the St. Louis office.

Attorney-General Shartel's resignation as attorney for Young Bros. last June did not end that firm's call on State officers, as shown by two other letters in the files.

President Young, last Dec. 10, wrote to "Jack" Roach, Assistant Attorney-General, at Jefferson City asking Roach to "drop in to see me at your very first opportunity, as there is something pressing in Jefferson City about which I want to discuss with you."

Roach promptly replied: "I will be in St. Louis on Saturday morning and will be pleased to call at your office. It has been my intention to call on you for several weeks, but I have been unable to do so due to my absence from the office on matters taking me to other parts of the State."

Roach Got $1000 Fee.

Roach, a son of former Congressman S. C. Roach, received $1000 from Young Bros. as their attorney, he said today. Roach said he was retained last July (the month after Shartel resigned) and remained on the Youngs' payroll until January, when he resigned.

He was a clerk in the State Auditor's office until Shartel appointed him an Assistant Attorney-General Oct. 1. Like Shartel, Roach insisted he performed no services for Young Bros., although drawing fees. Roach asserted the "pressing" matter referred to in President Young's letter did not concern the brokerage firm.

In December the Better Business Bureau, having numerous complaints and inquiries about Young Bros., was insisting that Securities Commissioner Stockard examine the affairs of the firm before renewing the firm's license to do business in Missouri in 1930. Stockard last December promised such an investigation, but failed to make one, according to the bureau. Instead, he renewed the license on the first of the year. On Jan. 3, President Young wrote Stockard: "We wish to acknowledge receipt of your letter of Jan. 2 advising us that we have been registered as dealers for the coming year."

Explaining to the Better Business Bureau why he made no examination of Young Bros., Commissioner Stockard said he had had "the boys" (meaning the Youngs) in his office and they were "not so bad" as the bureau thought—therefore he had relicensed them and would try to make an examination within 60 days. The examination had not been made when the firm failed a month ago.

Although Commissioner Stockard never issued a warning to the public concerning the numerous complaints which were piling up against Young Bros., he addressed the following letter to President Young last Feb. 13:

"I am calling your attention again to the matter of the delivery of the stock of Herman Bohman. This is a very pitiful case, one of the most pitiful that has come to my attention in recent months.

"The receipt given by your agent is dated Nov. 6. As I understand the stock certificate which was taken up was for 68 shares of Midwest Holding Co., which amounted to $6800.

"Since the issuance of that stock the old man has died, his funeral expenses are unpaid, the taxes on their little home are not paid, credit is being curtailed and practically stopped at all other stores. The old lady is now around 80 years old and is in very ill health. The information is that they attribute the old man's death to the worry over his investment and the old lady is now worrying about the investment because she has received no dividends on the stock. She lives in a little home as I understand, only three rooms, and conditions are reported to be very bad.

"The report from the persons who seem to be familiar with the facts is that their stock was sold on a guaranty that it would be taken up at any time. It has come to such a pass that I am not going to be able to control the persons who live in the community and in all probability there will be lodged with the department in the very near future complaints setting out the facts as I have outlined above.

"I have refrained from taking up any of these matters with you personally, but this is one which I am sure deserves your earliest attention."

Attorneys for Brokers.

W. H. Young & Bros., Inc., had a large array of attorneys, besides Attorney-General Shartel on a retainer basis, according to office records, among them former United States Senator George H. Williams of St. Louis, State Senator A. L. McCawley of Carthage, Charles M. Howell of Kansas City, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, A. W. Gossett, Kansas City Councilman; W. Blodgett Priest of St. Louis, who ran for the Republican nomination for United States Senator; Edward I. Siegal, Madison and others.

Last spring the brokerage firm was preparing to sell its preferred stock, of which $1,400,000 is now in the hands of the public, and is worthless. On May 11, Attorney Priest wrote to Secretary of State Becker:

"Mr. W. H. Young has received from W. H. Young & Bros., Inc., some shares of its 8 per cent cumulative participating preferred stock for value received; said stock is owned by Mr. Young personally. He has been importuned by some friends to sell them some of his stock. It is my opinion that isolated sales of stock owned by an individual do not come within the purview of the so-called blue sky law of Missouri. I would appreciate an expression of your view."

Becker referred Priest's inquiry to his subordinate, Commissioner Stockard, who avoided a direct answer, merely writing Priest: "You are advised that Sub-Section C of Section 5 of the securities act will be controlling in this matter."

Getting Young Pfd. on Market.

Apparently not satisfied with Stockard's reply, Attorney Priest and State Senator McCawley queried Stockard at a later date, eliciting a reply from Stockard Sept. 10 in which he said he construed the securities act to mean "that any corporation may increase its capital stock, and sell any of the increased capital stock solely or entirely among its own stockholders, without having to register the stock in this department."

Having resorted to this apparent device to avoid registration, Young Bros. proceeded to sell the preferred stock to the general public, regardless of whether purchasers already were stockholders. The preferred stock had few tangible assets behind it and actually was nothing more than a participating certificate entitling the holder to share in the brokerage firm's profits, if any. The firm paid monthly dividends of 1 per cent on the stock until its failure, and subsequent investigation has indicated the dividends were paid, not out of earnings, but from proceeds of stock sales.

BECKER ORDERS INQUIRY INTO SECURITIES SALE

Directs Blue Sky Commissioner to Make "Sweeping Investigation" Covering Whole State.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 22.—Secretary of State Charles U. Becker today directed his appointee, Fenton T. Stockard, State Securities Commissioner, to make a "sweeping investigation" into all concerns issuing or dealing in securities in Missouri.

The order affects approximately 1500 concerns in Missouri which have permits to issue their own securities and about 800 brokers who are licensed to deal in any form of security.

Becker's action comes a week after adoption of a resolution by the St. Louis Better Business Bureau, calling upon Gov. Caulfield, Secretary Becker, Commissioner Stockard and "all others, directly or indirectly responsible for the administration of the Missouri securities act," to correct the inaction under which the brokerage firm of W. H. Young Bros., Inc., with home offices in St. Louis, managed to unload $2,000,000 of its worthless stock on the public.

In a long letter to Stockard, Becker avoided mention of Young Bros., and based his order on the "recent Wall street crash," now a half year old.

Stockard has no staff of examiners with which to make the unprecedented, wholesale investigation called for by Becker. However, the Securities Commissioner is empowered under the blue sky law to hire what assistance is necessary and to bill the concerns investigated.

Becker's Order.

Secretary Becker, in his letter to Commissioner Stockard, says:

"The stock market crash last October having placed many previously valuable securities in a questionable class, it seems to me that we should make a complete survey of all stock and bond sales activities in Missouri, with the object in view of being in a position to completely advise investors as to the present standing of all securities now on the market."

Secretary Becker adds that it is his understanding of the Blue Sky law that Stockard has no power to examine and audit books of dealers unless they are also issuers of securities, "but in view of the fact that many dealers are members of, or contributors to the Better Business Bureau of St. Louis, and in view of the fact that their attorney has advised you (Stockard) that you have the power to audit books and accounts, therefore I take it that we will have hearty co-operation from all dealers."

Calls for Full Audit.

To the end "that no worthless securities may be sold to the citizenry of Missouri," Secretary Becker orders Commissioner Stockard to proceed immediately with the appointment of competent agents to make examinations of books and to audit accounts of all dealers licensed to operate in Missouri and to call for financial statements from all companies holding permits to issue stocks. If their showing is doubtful or if their securities have depreciated because of the "recent Wall street crash," Becker wants them cited to show cause why their permits should not be revoked.

GETS 15 MONTHS FOR SALE OF LIQUOR TO CONVICTS

Negro Convicted as Result of Inquiry Ordered by Gov. Caulfield.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 22.—Leslie Boyd, a Negro, 24 years old, was convicted here today of trading liquor to State prisoners for prison made clothing and gloves. He was sentenced to serve 15 months in the Federal Reformatory.

Boyd was arrested by dry agents disguised as convicts working on Prison Farm No. 3 near Algoa last summer. The investigation was made at the request of the Governor. Boyd said he was entrapped by the Federal agents, but testimony was offered by the United States District Attorney to show that Boyd was eager to exchange liquor for prison clothing and also sold the liquor for cash to prisoners.

FIRST MAXIMUM SENTENCES HERE UNDER JONES LAW

Five Years in Prison, $10,000 Fine Imposed on Each of Two Moonshiners in Federal Court.

The maximum penalty possible under the Jones amendment to the Volstead act, was inflicted for the first time in St. Louis today when Federal Judge Davis sentenced two men convicted of operating a still in St. Louis County to five years in the penitentiary and fined each $10,000.

The convicted men are John Budeselich and William M. Watson, who weere arrested last August tending a still they had set up in a bungalow at Woodstock and Florissant roads. Each was fined $1000, also for illegal possession of alcohol found in the same raid.

Before passing sentence Judge Davis reminded them that Congress in approving the Jones amendment had indicated that Judges were to discriminate between casual and commercial violations.

"All of the evidence in this case tends to show that your violation was purely commercial and of the sort that the amendment was intended to reach," he said.

The attention of prohibition agents was called to the bungalow by Dr. William F. Martin, who rented it to the two men last summer. He became suspicious when he saw smoke coming from the chimney constantly during warm weather. Prohibition agents who went there smelled mash, obtained a warrant on which the raid was made.

Dr. Martin and his wife testified at the trial today, although he said they had been warned by telephone since the arrest of Budeselich and Watson to "forget what they knew of the matter." Dr. Martin said furniture had been moved into the bungalow during the day and moved out at night, to make room for the still.

Uncle Loses Court Contest for 8-Year-Old Heiress.

By the Associated Press.

GALLUP, N. M., April 28.—Mrs. Cora L. Keller, aunt of 8-year-old Alice Evens, heiress to the $30,000 estate of her mother, who lived in Heruclaneum, Mo., has won custody of the child after a legal fight with the girl's uncle, George C. Evens of Herculaneum.

Evens' application for a writ of habeas corpus was dismissed yesterday by District Judge Holloman. Following the death of the girl's mother in 1928, she made her home with the uncle, but disappeared last August and was found several months later with Mrs. Keller. Evens filed kidnaping charges which Mrs. Keller successfully resisted.

NEWSBOY AND HEIRESS BRIDE HAVE OWN WAY TO MAKE

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOHN, N. B., April 22.—Coming to Canada to earn a living, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Cecil Durban, he a former newsboy, she an American heiress, arrived today aboard the liner Montrose. They were married in London April 10 despite the objections of Mrs. Durban's mother. Mrs. Durban is the former Vivienne Maud Huntington, daughter of the late Charles Pratt Huntington, wealthy New York architect. "We were married simply for love," said Mrs. Durban.

The Durbans face life in Canada rich in prospects but poor in purse. Mrs. Durban explained that all her money was in her mother's hands "and we have to go on our own." She expressed the opinion, however, that her mother was "coming around gradually." Durban has an offer of work with an electrical firm in Toronto and plans to go there first to look the field over.

used as collateral for three other notes. Conrad Kutterer owes the bank $2000, secured by 15 shares; Jacob W. Schiele owes $1500, secured by 20 shares, and Emil C. Sommers, $1200, secured by 15 shares.

William A. Koeneman, vice president of the Union-Easton company, owes a balance of $1067 on a personal note for $4040, dated Feb. 28 and due Aug. 27.

The extent of the trust company's activity in subdivision promotion is indicated, in the inventory, by the fact that of $292,590 which the company loaned on real estate security, $223,370 is represented by mortgages on bungalows in the Uplands Park subdivision in Pine Lawn, St. Louis County.

About 30 Uplands Park mortgages, ranging from $2500 to $8000, are listed in the inventory. Most of the bungalows were built with the bank's money and sold by its real estate department, which maintained sales agents and a "model house" in the district.

The Sharkey Funeral Service Co. owes the bank $1038.55 on a loan for $1700 made in May, 1928, and due in June, 1938, with interest paid to Jan. 15 last, according to the inventory. As has been told, a high-powered salesman sold Sharkey stock to persons of advanced age, promising cut-rate funerals. Purchasers' notes were placed with the bank as security for the loan.

The inventory, consisting of 40 pages, in which each of the bank's loans is briefly described, includes a recapitulation of the book assets as follows:

Loans, personal and collateral, $322,748.57.
Loans, real estate, $222,685.24.
Real estate loans set aside for participating certificates, $69,905.
Overdrafts, $4257.09.
Bonds, $148,288.15.
Real estate (bank site and building), $123,972.56.
Furniture and fixtures, $29,494.69.
Safe deposit vault, $21,688.15.
Other real estate, $1100.
Cash items, $440.65.
Deposit in Franklin-American Trust Co., $57,429.08.
Federal Reserve Bank deposits, $6016.88.
Clearings, $13,677.66.
Cash on hand, $26,594.09.
Advances to real estate department, $17,500.

This recapitulation varies but slightly from the bank's balance sheet for Dec. 31 which listed resources of $1,150,166.72, balanced with liabilities of the same total including deposits of $816,394, bills payable of $80,000, and capital stock, surplus and undivided profits of $234,605.28.

A revolver containing a discharged cartridge and a note was found on the floor near the body, which was lying on a couch. The note, addressed to Riegler's wife, Rose, read: "I know you and our sons and daughter will be sorry, but no one knows how I have suffered from pain in my stomach. I think this is the best thing to do.' Mrs. Riegler told police her husband had been under treatment for a stomach ailment, and complained of pain yesterday. She found the body upon returning home from a shopping trip.

NEW RULES ON MARRIAGE DRAFTED BY PRESBYTERIANS

Is Is Proposed to Eliminate Objection to Protestant-Catholic Unions.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—The special commission on marriage, divorce and remarriage of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America (Northern) will present to the general assembly of the church in Cincinnati on June 2 a new definition of marriage, based on an exhaustive study of the entire subject of sex relationships.

The report of the commission, published today in the official blue book of the denomination, recommends the elimination from the confession of faith of the objection to the marriage of Protestants to Roman Catholics and of all opprobrious references to "papists." Henceforth, the commission would have it that marriage between "all sorts of people" is lawful, but that it is the duty of Christians to marry "only in the Lord."

Contraceptives, used under medical advice, the report finds acceptable, but it adds that "a baby in the home now and then is a splendid diversion from those suffering from an uneventful married life."

The same grounds for divorce now recognized by the denomination—adultery and irremediable desertion—are recommended for retention.

CASHIER OF DEFUNCT ILLINOIS BANK GETS ONE TO 10 YEARS

Harvey Gollogher of Colegrove State Depository Pleads Guilty of Embezzling $13,000.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., April 22.—Harvey Gollogher, former cashier of the defunct J. B. Colegrove State Bank and former treasurer of the North Park Drainage District, today was sentenced to indeterminate terms of one to 10 years for embezzlement of drainage funds amounting to $13,000, and one to three years for receiving funds when he knew the bank was insolvent. Sentences are to run concurrently.

Gollogher pleaded guilty. Fifty-three other counts, growing out of the same two charges, were dismissed. Gollogher was taken to Southern Illinois Penitentiary this afternoon.

J. B. Colegrove, president of the bank, which failed last Oct. 11, was found guilty last Friday of larceny and is out on bond pending a motion for a new trial. Colegrove was found guilty of using two mortgages, totaling $10,700, without the knowledge of Josiah Hall, the owner.

ANOTHER HUSBAND HALTS ALIMONY SUIT

Undivorced, He Says, So Mrs. C. D. Gibbons' Claim Against No. 2 May Fail.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Mrs. Adelaide K. Ward Gibbons of White Plains was having her day in court in that city yesterday in an attempt to punish for nonpayment of $1290 arrears of alimony her husband, Charles D. Gibbons, an international lawyer.

She was making out a strong case against Gibbons, whom she is also suing for separation, when a man walked in and took a rear seat. His arrival so changed conditions that the case was halted by Justice Morschauser. For the man was Mrs. Gibbons' husband, who walked out of her home and her life 30 years ago, but from whom she has never been divorced and whose reappearance may, very likely, upset the case against Gibbons by rendering her marriage to him null and void.

Frank B. Salleck of 34 Twenty-seventh street, Astoria, N. Y., called to the stand, said he had married the plaintiff in 1900, had lived with her for 10 months, had inherited a considerable fortune from his mother, and, being of an uneasy and curious disposition, had sailed for Honduras. He grew cocoanuts on the banks of a tropical river for several years and that while he was there his wife obtained a legal separation from him, but so far as he knew she had never got an absolute divorce.

"And so you are Mrs. Gibbons' first husband?" asked Alexander Frooks, counsel for Mrs. Gibbons. "I'm the duck," replied Salleck, but the laugh he got for this sally was short-lived, for Frooks turned to the Court and said: "Your honor, this man is also in arrears of alimony to the extent of $29,524 due my client, and I will start action this week to have this arrears paid up or to have this man sent to jail for contempt of court."

Frooks obtained for Mrs. Gibbons recently a verdict of $500,000 from a jury in a $1,000,000 alienation of affections suit against Mrs. Blanche Powell of Croton on Hudson, a verdict reversed by the appellate division, which ordered a new trial. This suit charged Mrs. Powell with alienating the affections of Gibbons. This suit also, it is said, is likely to be upset by the changed conditions.

In answer to questions by Frooks, Gibbons said that he now lived in the home of Mrs. Powell, who is the widow of a Canadian lumber magnate and who has two grown children. He said he left his wife when he learned she had another husband from whom she was not divorced.

Justice Morschauser ordered the trial of the separation suit of Mrs. Gibbons from Gibbons to be set for Monday and the procedure to be reversed, with the defense testimony introduced first. He said this might upset the whole case and make unnecessary the introduction of the plaintiff's testimony.

Naval Pact Signed by Five Powers at London

be even a four-Power agreement," but the wider it was sought to extend its scope the greater became the difficulties.

"Difficulties among what I call the high seas group," he continued, "have been settled. We were unable to bring the European group, with their remote committments, into agreement, but we are going to work on that problem. Every hope which I had when the conference began and which has not been realized in the document we have just signed, has been resurrected and is now as much alive as it ever was."

Formal speeches preceding the treaty signing were all in the optimistic vein. None of them ignored the fact that the conference had been only partly successful, but the point was repeatedly stressed that great gain had been made and further gains were in prospect. Attention was called to the fact that diplomatic negotiations are to be carried on by France and Italy and robust hope was expressed that within a short time they would settle their problems and join the limitation agreement. All in all, the ending was in a vastly more favorable atmosphere than seemed possible during the tense stage of the negotiations a month ago.

Pledge Against Contingent Clause.

A striking point of MacDonald's opening address was a pledge on behalf of Britain not to invoke the contingent clause in the three-Power pact except in grave emergency. This is the clause which gives any of the three Powers the right to revise its tonnage figures upwards if it feels its security is menaced by the building program of an outside Power.

"I hope it will never be used," said the British Prime Minister, "but if it has to be, that will only happen after every effort has been made to avoid it. Only when it is apparent that our naval position is so affected that it is impossible for this country to rest in peace of mind upon the figures in this treaty—only then shall this protection clause be thought about."

In another eloquent passage MacDonald appealed "to public opinion in Europe to align itself behind those striving now to carry forward the work of the conference."

"I hope," said MacDonald solemnly, "the opinion of Europe will range itself behind the effort, now about to be made through diplomatic channels, to bring France and Italy into the limitation pact. With a glance resting a long moment on Briand, then sweeping about the table, MacDonald said "we have become far more than negotiators, we have become friends."

He paid tribute then to the delegations in turn and, in conclusion, expressed the conviction that the conference "had laid foundation stones upon which others will build with thankful hearts."

Stimson Thanks MacDonald.

Brief speeches by representatives of other nations followed. Stimson for America thanked MacDonald for the "sterling qualities" of his leadership, expressed the hope that the limitation pact could be broadened to include France and Italy and pledged the United States to continued efforts in the cause of armament reduction.

James E. Fenton, for Australia, made an interesting point that the three-Power pact was being signed, on behalf of 650,000,000 people and that more than 1,000,000,000 were favorably affected by it.

The session moved slowly because of the necessity of translations, so that it was not till more than two hours after the opening that the signing began. Each of 27 delegates in turn walked from his place at the conference table to a smaller table in front of the chairman where the treaty had been laid out for signature. Some signed with their own pens, to be kept as souvenirs, and some with the special gold pen provided for the occasion. They were like school boys beginning a holiday.

World Progressing Toward Security, Stimson Asserts.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 22.—With the delegates seated around the great horseshoe table in Queen Anne's old drawing room at St. James's Palace, J. Ramsay MacDonald, British Prime Minister, as chairman, today called the final plenary session of the naval conference to order.

MacDonald had the French and Americans on his right around the table, with the Italians and Japanese at his left. Dino Grandi, chief of the Italian delegation, alone of the delegation heads, was absent, being ill in Rome. Admiral Sirianni acted in his stead.

MacDonald put a motion to the delegations, which they adopted unanimously, that the official name of the parley be "the London Naval Conference of 1930."

After his motion had been put and carried the Prime Minister began his discussion of the aims and achievements of the parley.

MacDonald concluded his speech with a glowing peroration: "To one and all I believe we have done work that will follow us. We have laid foundation stones upon which others will build. Not only have we signed a treaty, but we carry away with us sterling good will, understanding and respect."

Secretary Stimson, in addressing the delegates, expressed confidence that the world was progressing definitely toward "an ever-increasing security with ever-decreasing armament." He emphasized that the treaty "Fixes our naval relationship with the British commonwealth of nations upon a fair and lasting basis," at the same time establishing "our naval relationship with our good neighbor across the Pacific."

He expressed the belief that the possibility of future progress rests as much on the spirit of fair dealing and good will shown in the treaty negotiations as on its actual accomplishments.

"The fundamental purpose for which we of the American delegation came to London," Stimson said, "was to help in promotion of good relationship between the nations of the earth. It is our belief that the limitation of armament by mutual agreement is one of the most effective means of increasing the confidence of each nation in the pacific intentions of every other nation.

"We believe that such limitation increases the ability of every nation to carry out its own pacific intentions. As we believe that, limitation of itself increases security. We look forward in the future to a periodically recurring conference, confident that in that way we shall obtain an ever-increasing security with ever decreasing armament.

"We believe that naval limitation is one of the most accurate measures of the world's belief in possibility of settlement of all international matters by pacific and rational means.

"Our experience here has strengthened these beliefs. It has increased our hopes that civilization will be able to form a habit of settling peaceably questions and controversies which arise between nations and that limitation will in the future register this confidence and good will.

Briand Commends Results.

Briand, speaking after Stimson, reiterated France's oft-expressed stand, that she based her whole program for peace on the Covenant of the League of Nations, the Locarno pact, and the Treaty of Paris.

Briand said that temporary difficulties had not permitted as complete a succcess as France wished but at least France had collaborated loyally with efforts toward partial settlement, the scope of which must not be underestimated.

"We feel fully justified in having persevered when we see the results of our deliberations as embodied in the treaty which we are signing today."

He paid tribute to the three-Power limitation agreement and extended France's hearty and cordial congratulations. "However, as you know those congratulations are mixed with a deep regret at not having had a more general agreement," he said.

Briand pledged French efforts and good will toward facilitating putting of the London treaty into force. "We, standing before the nations of the earth," he affirmed, "declare our faith in it as a promise and a token." He

FATHER ADMITS HE DROWNED BOY; GETS LIFE IN PRISON

North Dakota Farmer, Who Threw Child, 4, Into River, Lays Crime to Drink.

MANDAN, N. D., April 22.—Admitting that he had thrown his four-year-old son into the river and then watched the boy's struggles until he had vanished under the water, Gus Reinhold, 40 years old, farmer living near Stanton, was sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor yesterday.

Reinhold, the father of six other children, the oldest 13, pleaded guilty to a first degree murder charge filed by State's Attorney Moses of Mercer County. Moses said the farmer had confessed to drowning the child two weeks ago in the Knife River near Beulah.

No motive was given for the crime in the confession, Moses said, but when Reinhold came before Judge H. L. Berry he declared that he had been drinking and that the liquor had "got the best" of him. Moses said he had information tending to show that Mr. and Mrs. Reinhold had discussed sending the boy away.

NAVAL AGREEMENT SIGNED BY FIVE POWERS AT LONDON

concluded "never was a Covenant signed more freely and more sincerely since it means carrying out under the eyes of attentive nations the most sacred of all enterprises—a common pursuit for the maintenance of peace by all efforts compatible with the political duty on each of us."

Reijiro Wakatsuki, a former Premier of Japan and chief of the Tokio delegation, followed Briand. He expressed his country's pacific intentions, but stressed that Japan would maintain her right to seek a new arrangement in the next conference five years hence. He expressed Japan's happiness at being able to do her part in carrying out the spirit of the Kellogg pact. "A great and unprecedented thing has been accomplished," he said. "What was sown at Washington has been reaped at London."

He restated Japan's policy of maintaining a minimum naval strength for defensive purposes in the East, and added: "Japan has gladly agreed to the present treaty."

Wakatsuki's sonorous Japanese, which few of his auditors could understand, had to be translated into both English and French. The Japanese interpreter, however, departed from the usual speech-making style of his country by making a dramatic and expressive rendering of his chief's utterance.

Speaking for Italy, Admiral Sivianni said:

"We consider these agreements and the negotiations leading thereto not only from the point of view of results actually achieved but likewise from that of future results, namely of the more extensive reduction which should follow—not alone in the domain of naval armaments such as decided upon by us today.

"The negotiations of the last three months brought to light many difficulties which beset the realization of a plan of veritable disarmament. They have at the same time proved the necessity to pursue our efforts towards that goal. Public opinion the world over or at any rate its best exponents, have given us unmistakable evidence of their decided will and confident expectation of a satisfactory solution of the problem of disarmament.

"It appears clearer every day that if we do not wish to jeopardize the work of peace and reconstruction, both national and international, so laboriously proceeded with since the war, armaments should be reduced in an ever increasing measure until disarmament has become a concrete reality."

Representatives of the British Dominions and members of the Empire also spoke. These included Sir Atul Chatterjee, the Indian delegate, who briefly expressed his satisfaction at having been associated with the negotiations.

The Hon. Philip E. Roy, speaking in behalf of Col. Ralston, chief Canadian delegate, who has already returned to Canada, paid a tribute to the statesmanship of MacDonald in convening the conference. He said there could be no doubt that much had been achieved which would not be stated only in terms of dollars and ships. Much had been done, he said, to encourage the principle of consultation between the nations.

Perhaps the most important result, he commented, was awakening of the world to the fact that an informed and active public opinion was necessary to achieve disarmament. Such a movement, he declared, is growing steadily in Canada.

Prof. Smiddy, Irish Free State delegate, declared that the conference had achieved great results in reducing the dangers of war fever. Although his country is small, he said, it intends using all its influence in the League of Nations to fight for peace, the task being a gigantic one but with the results of the present conference showing skeptics it can be done.

A digest of the Treaty of London is printed on Page 1-C.

Fred Waring Divorced.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., April 22.—Mrs. Dorothy Waring, wife of the dance orchestra leader, obtained a divorce from Fred Waring, the head of Waring's Pennsylvanians, here yesterday. There was no contest. Mrs. Waring charged "surly and sarcastic conduct" and refusal to disclose destination of his travels, made life with Waring one of grief.

ANNA BANK CLOSES FOLLOWING FORGERIES

C. R. Ford, Cashier, Admits Taking $70,000 During Past Three Years.

By the Associated Press.

ANNA, Ill., April 22. — The Anna State Bank and Trust Co., whose cashier, C. R. Ford, was arrested Sunday night on a warrant charging forgery, was closed yesterday, and officials would make no statement regarding the bank's condition pending the completion of an audit.

A. W. Walter, president of the bank, said he would have no statement until Examiner Chew had completed his work. The bank was closed after Ford, 32 years old, had confessed peculations which totaled $70,000 over a three-year period, officials said.

Ford, officers said, attributed his failure to make up the shortage to the stock market crash last fall. His arrest followed the detection, by the bank's St. Louis correspondent, of an irregularity in the signature on a note. The warrant charged Ford with forging the names of members of the board of directors and depositors.

The directors retained Hal Shawn and Charles Fierrick to represent them. The two national banks here are in excellent condition and ordered additional currency from the Federal Reserve Bank to meet possible heavy withdrawals.

NEW YORK TAXI RATE BILL VETOED BY MAYOR WALKER

City Executive Appoints Citizens' Committee to Make Transportation Survey.

NEW YORK, April 22.—After a late conference with his advisers at City Hall last night Mayor Walker vetoed the ordinance passed April 8 which would have made effective at noon today a minimum taxicab rate.

In his message to the board the Mayor indicated his sympathy with its intention to attempt a solution of the increasing perpexities of taxicab transportation. He said, however, that he desired a more complete and thorough study of the situation. He then created a committee on taxi transportation, composed of five citizens, to make such a survey. Frank P. Walsh, lawyer, will be chairman.

HOOVER WARNS OF $20,000,000 DEFICIT IN 1931

President Informs Senate Re-Check of Finances Shows Government Faces Budget Shortage.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—President Hoover has informed congressional leaders that re-examination of the budget shows a Treasury deficit for the next year between $20,000,000 and $30,000,000.

In a letter to Chairman Jones of the Senate Appropriations Committee, and Chairman Wood of the House Appropriations Committee, the President warned "there is cause for real alarm.

The unusual procedure of writing a letter of warning to the congressional leaders in charge of the nation's purse indicated Mr. Hoover's concern over a situation which only a few days ago he spoke of optimistically. At that time he predicted a surplus for next year of about $40,000,000.

The letter, dated April 18, follows:

"I thought you would like to know that a re-examination of our fiscal situation for the next year by the Director of the Budget shows that on the indicated income of the Government and the expenditures to which the Government is already committed through budget proposals and legislation which has been completed, we are faced with a deficit of $20,000,000 or $30,000,000.

Against Increased Expenses.

"This, of course, is not as yet a very material amount, but it is obvious that any further large amount of expenditure will jeopardize the primary duty of the Government that is to hold expenditures within our income.

"Something over 125 acts have been passed by either the Senate or the House or favorably reported by different committees, which would authorize an additional expenditure of $300,000,000 or $350,000,000 next year.

"A good many of these proposals are, of course, for comparatively small funds, and some of them are neecessary for the functioning of the Government; but I know you will agree with me that there is cause for real alarm in the situation, as we cannot contemplate any such deficit."

Senator Jones had the letter read to the Senate at today's session.

Borah Questions Jones.

Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, characterized the letter as "very important," but asked Jones whether he knew of any specific legislation to which the letter applied.

"As far as the general appropriations are concerned," said Jones, "we have held them to the budget estimates. Whatever increases which shall arise would come from impending legislation which we have passed or authorized."

Borah again asked whether Jones had "any knowledge of specific legislation to which the letter refers."

Jones said he had none.

SAYS FIRM LOST $100,000 ON BEST-CLYMER PRODUCTS

Head of Bankrupt Famous Food Company Declares Concern Had $220,000 Annual Business.

Expenses of obtaining distribution of the branded food products of the Best-Clymer Co. and the American Linseed Co., caused the bankrupt Famous Foods, Inc., to lose nearly $100,000 during the three years of its existence on an annual gross business of about $220,000. President John P. Thomy of New York, formerly of St. Louis, testified in Bankruptcy Court yesterday.

Thomy, formerly president of Best-Clymer, told that he organized Famous Foods in 1926 at the instance of the American Linseed Co., of which he was merchandising counsel, and that he and an associate subscribed to all its capital stock of $10,100. When he moved to New York in 1928 he was obliged to direct the policy of the company by telephone and telegraph. Anticipated aid from the linseed company did not materialize, he said, after it and Best-Clymer were sold to the Gold Dust Corporation. In 1928 Thomy lent Famous Foods $30,000, which, however, was returned to him, he said.

Schedules of the bankrupt company list assets of $17,106 and debts of $99,177, including $84,000 owed the Best-Clymer division of Preserves & Honey, a subsidiary of the Gold Dust.

DIVORCES MAN SHE SAYS EARNS $600 A MONTH SELLING LIQUOR

A divorce and $100 a month alimony was granted Mrs. Mattie L. Baker, 1135 Lawn avenue, today from Daniel Baker, whom she described in testimony as a bootlegger making between $600 and $700 a month. The decision granting Mrs. Baker restoration of her maiden name, Mattie Cameron, was handed down in the Court of Domestic Relations by Judge Fitzsimmons, who heard the case on March 11.

Mrs. Baker charged general indignities, testifying her husband refused to introduce her to his friends, criticised her English and suggested she study grammar at night school, and told her he married her to escape another woman. She estimated he had accumulated $10,000 in securities through his operations. They were married March 12, 1929.

LEAGUE ASKED TO TAKE OVER WINE GROWERS' ORGANIZATION

13 Countries That Signed Treaty Seek Action; Bitter Fight by Drys Forecast.

Copyright, 1930, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (The New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

GENEVA, April 22.—Thirteen countries, signatories of the international wine office treaty, have asked the League of Nations to take over direction of that organization in accordance with the provisions of Article XXIV of the League covenant.

The application of the wine growers 'organization, created through a treaty signed by France, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Argentina, Luxembourg, Rumania, Hungary, Jugoslavia, Greece, Algeria, Tunisia and Morocco, is regarded here as the first counter attack aaginst the "boring from within" tactics of international drys.

A bitter fight is certain to be precipitated, for the president of the Council, Hjalmar Procope, Foreign Minister of Finland and leader of the drys at Geneva, recently said: "Any effort to place the wine growers' organization under League supervision would precipitate an international scandal."

President Emeritus Succumbs at 73 in Daytona Beach, Fla., Where He Spent Winters.

SERVED 41 YEARS WITH INSTITUTION

Funeral Services Will Be Held in Columbia, Mo.—He Had Charge of Tour of Floating University.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 22.—Dr. John Carlton Jones, president emeritus of the University of Missouri, 73 years old, died last night at Daytona Beach, Fla., relatives here were advised. Death resulted from a hemorrhage caused by a coughing spell.

Dr. Jones was president of the institution in 1922-23. He became president emeritus following the selection of Stratton D. Brooks to head the university and retired to take active charge of the campaign for funds for the memorial union tower and stadium.

Dr. Jones was owner of the Riverview orchards at McBaine, one of the largest apple producing farms in the State. He has spent the last few years in Florida for his health.

Funeral services will be held in Columbia. Dr. Jones' body will arrive here Friday but definite arrangements have not been made.

Besides his widow, Dr. Jones leaves a son, Maj. Lloyd E. Jones, U. S. Army, Washington, and two daughters, Mrs. A. F. Kuhlman, Chicago, and Mrs. Patterson Baine, Columbia.

Dr. Jones' With Missouri U. for 41 Years.

Dr. Jones was connected with the University of Missouri 41 years. He was chief executive of the University Afloat, a world educational tour, after retiring with the title of president emeritus of the University of Missouri.

Dr. Jones was professor of Latin, first dean of the Missouri College of Arts and Science and president and vice president of the university.

Dr. Jones' connection with the State university started shortly after his graduation from Westminster College, Fulton, in 1879. As an assistant professor of Latin, he obtained leave of absence in his first year in Columbia to continue study in John Hopkins University. He was promoted to an associate professorship in 1887 and four years later became a professor.

In 1895 he took up studies abroad in the University of Leipsic and at Rome. He returned to become dean of the College of Arts and Science. He spent 1903 in the University of Munich, then became acting president of the University of Missouri, serving until 1906. In 1918, the board of curators appointed him the first vice president of the university.

Born on a farm near Sharpsburg, Ky., Dr. Jones was educated in Frankfort schools and entered Westminster College in 1874.

In 1886 he married Miss Clara Field of Columbia. They had three children, Lloyd Edmonstone, Katherine and Marjorie Comingo. Jones was a member of Beta Theta Pi, the Masonic order, American Philological Association and the American Archeological Institute. He was a Presbyterian.

Dr. Jones was author of several books, one of which, "Does College Education Pay?" was published in 1898. He received the honorary degree of LL.D from Washington University and the University of Missouri.

ATTORNEY EXONERATES HEAD OF CLOSED KANSAS CITY BANK

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 22.—Attorneys for Forrest C. Cochran, president of the Liberty Trust Co., which closed last Friday, issued a statement last night written by Attorney Henry S. Conrad, saying:

"My investigation enables me to state with confidence that Mr. Cochran did not personally use or convert to his own use any money or property of the Liberty Trust Co. or the Liberty Mortgage Co. (a subsidiary) and he expressly disclaims having done so.

"I am sure a thorough understanding of the business and records of these companies will verify his statement and justify my conclusion."

CONVICT BROADCASTS STORY OF PRISON FIRE

No. 46,812, From Station in Chapel, Describes Scenes in Ohio Penitentiary.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 22.—In the radio room in the chapel of the Ohio State Prison, where daily at noon the prison band gave concerts, Convict 46,812 stood at 11:15 o'clock last night and over the prison radio gave to the world a story of what took place within the walls when fire swept through that prison. The direct-from-the-prison broadcast went over the air through station WADC.

Convict 46,812 told the following story:

"At 5:20 this afternoon the fire broke out in the new cell blocks I and K when the wooden forms suddenly broke into a blaze. It spread to the roof, and in a few minutes it was hitting G and H cell blocks, where 812 prisoners were locked up.

"All the convicts in the top lanes of the prison, about 360, were either burned to death or smothered. The flames spread to A, B, C and D blocks and all the others were turned loose into the yards, while many others who made their way to the roofs of the many cell blocks jumped to safety within the walls.

"Doctors, nurses and others came into the yards. As soon as a body was passed out, the doctors examined it to see if life was still left. Men who were still alive were rushed to the hospital. I believe it was a short circuit in the electrical system which started the fires in the cell blocks.

"They are carrying out the forms on the prison campus now. These prisoners who are not aiding or working now are milling about in the yard, but their morale is wonderful. No one has tried to escape.

"Mattresses, bedding, blankets and other furniture in the cells are burning continually, but Deputy Warden J. C. Worth seems to have everything under fine control.

"Sparks are now spreading to other buildings and prisoners are on the roof throwing buckets of water as soon as spots break out in fire. The Warden, nurses, doctors and fellow prisoners are watching everything and maintaining perfect order. I am proud to call my fellow prisoners brothers.

"Coffee and sandwiches are being distributed from the prison commissary and from outside sources. Clothing is also being rushed in from all parts of the city to help the destitute prisoners. Many of the bodies are lying on the water-filled ground. Photographers are all over the prison, flashing pictures of the tragedy.

"Local firemen are at work feverishly to stop the fires, and many have worked so hard that they are just keeling over. There are three women now at work among the bodies.

"The prison is well guarded. They have called out the Naval Reserves, the soldiers and every 15 feet there is an armed guard. Machine guns have been placed around at all advantageous positions.

"Ohio State medical students have been called to the prison yards to help the doctors and nurses in the work.

"A new fire had just broken out in the cotton mill, but they got it out again very quickly.

"One woman turned her coat collar when the first batch of rescue workers was allowed into the smoky yards, and now that she is in, she is working with the men.

"The power system in the prison has failed but they are using a lot of flashlights and there is plenty of light around. The system is working now. On the third floor of the chapel, where the prison band plays every noontime, is the radio room. We can hear the screams of patients and a radio call has just gone out for more doctors, nurses and drugs to ease the pains of the poor sufferers.

"Most of the bodies will go to the Ohio State burial grounds. There are about 305 dead now. Hundreds more are in the hospital. About 145 are identified now."

At the conclusion of that broadcast a list of names of dead convicts was given.

FORMER HEAD OF KANSAS BANKERS GOES TO PRISON

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Kas., April 22.—Sheriff J. M. Hyndman announced last night that P. J. McGinley, former banker and ex-president of the Kansas Bankers' Association, has started serving a three to 15-year sentence in the Kansas Penitentiary for embezzling funds of the defunct Frontenac State Bank.

McGinley has been free on bond since his conviction in District Court here in November, 1928, pending the outcome of two appeals. The sentence and conviction were affirmed each time.

County Attorney Tom D. Winter sent word to McGinley, who has been working in Kansas City, and yesterday McGinley met Sheriff Hyndman at Lansing and was dressed in at noon.

McGinley was found guilty of embezzling $7,000 of a coal company's deposit.

Killing of Woman, 80, Accidental.

A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned yesterday in the death of Mrs. Margaret Eaton, 80 years old, of Edwardsville, who died Sunday of injuries suffered earlier in the day when the automobile in which she was riding overturned on the Free Bridge. Oil Man's Own Story: Release Followed Meeting Son in Ahuacatlan Hut

This Was Most Dramatic Moment in His Life, Says J. E. Bristow, in Final Installment of Narrative.

This is the final installment of the story of J. E. Bristow of San Angelo, Tex., who was held 30 days by Mexican outlaws. The story was told by Bristow to Merle Blakely of the Oklahoma City Times. Blakely accompanied Bristow's son, Obie Bristow, and another American, when they went into Mexico to pay the ransom.

SAN ANGELO, Tex., April 22—The happiest and most dramatic moment of my life came on that morning in that little, dingy adobe hut in Ahuacatlan. I was free at last. After a month of starvation and constant fear of a sudden and terrible death I had been delivered.

When I awoke I expected to look up into an open sky, and to see around me a group of bandit faces. Faces of men who wanted money or a life.

Instead I saw a ceiling over my head and a crucifix hanging on the wall. I remembered then that I was free again.

Thoughts like these were revolving through my mind when the door opened. There stood Obie, the son who had worked every hour for my release. Behind him were E. W. Eaton, the American Consul at Mazatlan, and a strange person. I learned later it was Blakely.

I don't remember exactly what I said when Obie came in. I recall grabbing his shoulders. He tells me my first words were: "Tell mother I'm well." I had thought many times during that month of captivity that I would never see her, my children and my grandchildren again. That meeting with Obie was almost too much for me.

Now Seems a Nightmare.

Now that I am back here in San Angelo, surrounded by my family, the whole ugly experience seems a nightmare.

After our reunion we went down the street to the hotel and had breakfast. It was good, as Mexican breakfasts go, but I don't care to have another Mexican meal for a long time. I didn't eat much that morning. I think I just talked. There were a lot of things to say.

My whiskers were long and my clothes were dirty, but my bags were in a hotel at Tepic and there was nothing to do but wear what I had on my back and like it.

Right here I would like to say something about the Cristeros, the men who held me captive.

I believe six states of Mexico are under control of this organization, which is led by religious fanatics who are directly opposed to the Mexican Government.

These men aren't ordinary bandits. The men who held me captive were a group of a large organization. They kidnap and exact ransom in the name of the church. They feel it is their duty to take a jab at the government every chance they get.

In addition to biting at the government the Cristeros have another policy. They aim, at every opportunity, to prevent the industrial development of Mexico and the penetration of the country's natural resources. They are especially hostile to foreigners and foreign interests, and they seem to like Americans least of all.

Peons Act as Spies.

Once during my captivity they produced their constitution and by-laws. The ugly bandit Flores, who wanted to cut my head off, read it to prove to Cruz Delgado, the chief, that in case my ransom wasn't paid, the price would have to be exacted in blood. Delgado had favored letting me go free.

They tell me that the Cristeros have collected $40,000 for ransom of American captives within the last two years.

By a kind of grapevine telegraph the Cristeros seem to know the minute a foreigner sets foot in their territory. The actual bandits are supported by a large spy system, consisting of all the peons in the area. All of them are Cristeros.

I think there are only two possible solutions for the situation in Mexico. The church might bring these exiles back into the fold and educate them. Or the government might kill them out. Unless something is done the government will have no rest.

Meanwhile the Cristeros are firmly entrenched in the State of Nayarit, and the development of the country is blocked. It will be many years, I am afraid, before that part of the world is rid of a menace that resembles the thirteenth century more than the twentieth.

SOUTH CAROLINA BANK CLOSED

Directors at Ninety Six Ask State to Take Charge.

By the Associated Press.

NINETY SIX, S. C., April 22.—The "Cambridge Bank of Ninety Six failed to open its doors for business yesterday. A notice on the door said: "In order to protect the depositors and creditors, the directors have requested the State Bank Examiner to take charge for 30 days to determine whether the affairs of the bank should be liquidated or operations resumed by law."

The bank is capitalized at $50,000, and its last statement showed deposits of $180,000, and a surplus and undivided profit of $36,612.51.

Woman Beaten With Ax.

By the Associated Press.

SYLVANIA, Ga., April 22.—Posses from Screven, Burke and Jenkins Counties, numbering several thousand men, are hunting, with the aid of track dogs, for an unidentified Negro who entered the home near here of a farmer, probably fatally wounded the man's wife with an ax and then attacked an 18-year-old daughter of the woman.

VALUES TO RIVAL "ST LOUIS DAY"

SEWER PROTESTS EXPECTED TO HALT WORK FOR YEARS

Head of Lemay Ferry Taxpayers Association Says 2500 Objections to Project Will Be Filed.

Exceptions to the assessment of benefits on more than half of the 5942 parcels of land in the Lemay Ferry sewer district will be filed in Circuit Court and several years will be required to hear them, John E. Mooney, chairman of the Taxpayers' Protective Association, told a Special Investigating Committee of the St. Louis County Chamber of Commerce at Clayton last night.

Until the exceptions are heard and the Court has found that the total benefits exceed the cost of the sewer system, no further work can be done. If it is found that the cost exceeds the benefits the district must be disincorporated after about $32,000 already paid out for preliminary expenses has been collected by the levy of a tax of 10 cents on 100 square feet of property, regardless of improvements.

The Protective Association has opened two offices at 9634 South Broadway and at 210 Weiss avenue, where taxpayers may make out exceptions which will be filed in Circuit Judge Mulloy's court. The organization is representing objectors without charge. At the South Broadway office yesterday afternoon and last night 300 property owners filled the blanks protesting assessments, Mooney said.

Four Cases a Day.

He declared that a court could hear no more than four such cases a day and that it would require three years of regular hearings to dispose of 2500 objections. Exceptions must be filed by May 5. Total benefits determined by commissioners are $2,038,674, while the estimated cost is $1,050,027.

August Boenecke and Orville P. Worley, members of the Board of Supervisors, sent their resignations to Judge Mulloy yesterday, following the example of the other member, William H. Hartman, who resigned Saturday.

In his resignation, Hartman said: "After consideration of the unforeseen high cost of the proposed sewer system, I am convinced that a vast majority of the taxpayers are vigorously opposed to it."

Boenecke, however, said today that while he did not believe the cost excessive, many taxpayers did not agree. He resigned, he said, because his work as supervisor interfered with his business as assistant cashier of the Lemay Ferry Bank, and "because of the general ill feeling growing out of the report of commissioners and caused by the Taxpayers' Protective Association, which has exaggerated things quite a bit in creating a great antagonism against the Ralph law."

Supervisors Unpaid.

None of the supervisors has been paid any money for their services and 60 meetings have been held for which they are entitled to collect $10 a day, Boenecke said. They will not accept any pay for their work, he added. Judge Mulloy said he had not accepted the resignations and probably would not do so until successors could be named, since the three members constitute the administrative machinery of the district.

The Lemay Ferry District has progressed farther than any other of the eight districts. Injunction suits against the Lemay Ferry District and the Overland District are pending in Circuit Court. Property owners, through the Taxpayers' Protective Association, filed the petitions alleging that the sewer districts were controlled by an "organized group" of lawyers, engineers, bankers and contractors, and attacking the constitutionality of the Ralph sewer law.

U. S. SUPREME COURT REJECTS 25 CASES, TAKES UP 4 OTHERS

To Pass on Russian Claims on Ships Seized During World War.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—In a brief session the Supreme Court yesterday refused to pass on 25 cases brought up for review, consented to take up four suits and handed down a number of orders, including a decree putting into effect its decision in the Chicago lake diversion case.

Thomas D. Thacher of New York, the new Solicitor-General, was presented to the court.

Among the cases the court will pass on is one brought by the Russian volunteer fleet to determine whthr Russian corporations hav the right to sue in this country ,the fleet seeking to recover on contracts for ships which were taken over during the war by this Government.

Russia Retains Visa Fee.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 22.—The Associated Press circulated a Moscow dispatch April 5 stating that no visa fee will be charged to tourists who travel in Russia under the auspices of the official Soviet Tourist Bureau. A later Moscow dispatch states that the visa fee will not be waived, but will be included in the price of tours. The Soviet Tourist Bureau will obtain visas and relieve travelers of all annoyance in connection with obtaining visas.

CARNERA BARRED FROM RINGS IN CALIFORNIA BY BOARD'S RULING

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—By a drastic ruling of the California Athletic Commission, Primo Carnera, gigantic Italian boxer, today stood barred from rings of the State, the result of the unsatisfactory ending of his recent bout with Leon Chevalier, San Francisco Negro.

The commission also revoked the boxing license of Carnera, together with that of his manager, Leon See, of France.

Purses of Carnera and Chevalier were ordered returned to the fighters, however, the commission holding that they were blameless for the bout being stopped in the sixth round when one of Chevalier's seconds tossed a towel into the ring.

Four other men involved in the affair were given indefinite suspensions. They were Frank Churchill of Los Angeles, nationally known manager of boxers and Carnera's California representative; Tim McGrath, San Francisco, manager of Chevalier, and the Negro's two seconds, Bob Laga, San Francisco, and Robert Perry of Hollywood.

Perry threw the towel to stop the fight. Chevalier said Perry threatened him if he did not "lay down" to Carnera, but Perry denied this, saying he intended to save the Negro from further punishment.

Carnera's purse for the fight was $13,239 and $1500 was given to Chevalier.

The Italian and his manager today were at Portland, Ore., where Carnera meets Sam Baker, Los Angeles Negro, tonight.

NEW YORK EXPECTED TO BAR PRIMO CARNERA

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 22.—The New York State Athletic Commission today took the initial steps, which will in all probability lead to the suspension of Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight, and his managers, Billy Duffy and Leon See, in this State. The commission, however, withheld its official action until it had a chance to review Carnera's suspension in California.

Bello Stops Rood.

NEW YORK, April 22. — Larry Bello, 217, stopped Al Rood, 183, in the second round of a scheduled eight-round bout at the Jamaica Arena last night. Andy Saviola defeated Willie Hines of Chicago in the semifinal of six rounds.

KAISER-TERRY FIGHT STOPPED AND MONEY HELD UP BY COMMISSIONER

TUT WINS FROM KAUFMAN EASILY; PROMOTER LOSES $6,000 ON SHOW

By John E. Wray

Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Migue Malloy, Chicago fight impressario, built himself a "castle in Spain" after two successful promotions here. But last night, at The Arena, the house that Mique built collapsed. His dream of putting fighting here on a big time basis suffered a setback and his pocketbook an estimated loss of $6000. The 6533 spectators present saw what had figured to be a wonderful program of fights crack up into a couple of one-sided knockouts, one hugging match, one abatoir display, one "no contest" and one good hard battle. The receipts were at $11,105.80 gross and the attendance was a big disappointment.

The evening's show was rescued to some extent when King Tut, candidate for lightweight honors, showed himself to be a game, willing, two-fisted fighter by pounding Pinky Kaufman of Hartford, Conn., around the ring for a decisive 10-round victory.

The peak of the evening's doldrums was attained in the semifinal event when two widely-advertised veteran St. Louis boxers, Lou Terry and Peewee Kaiser, were ordered from the ring by Commissioner Seneca Taylor in the eighth round. For seven previous cantos Referee Harry Cook had entreated and threatened the pair trying to get them to fight. But whether they could not or would not do their stuff has not been revealed.

The crowd added its booing to the referee's protests, but Terry and Peewee waltzed on—and out of the ring. The exhibition will cost them their guarantees, amounting to $3250, if the recommendation of Commissioner Taylor at today's meeting of the commission as a whole at Springfield is carried out. Their money has been held up and there is every reason to believe the Commissioner's stand will be indorsed.

Kaufman a Hard Hitter.

Even the King Tut fight did not cause fans to stand up on their chairs and cheer. That was because Kaufman fought in a crouch, hiding his jaw behind his left shoulder, preventing Tut from effectually reaching the point of Pinky's chin. Kaufman, too, developed an arm-grabbing habit, as the bout wore on, that marred the later rounds.

Tut may never be a world lightweight champion, but he is one willing, trying fellow, ready to take chances. Knowing that Kaufman carried a knockout punch—he should know it since it stopped him, a year ago—the "Kink" waded right into the storm center, bobbing and weaving and trying with two hands. Kaufman, cagey and dangerous, drove Tut back several times with powerful blows. He cut the skin on Tut's right cheek, raised a mouse under Tut's left eye and scratched an old cut over the same orb. He was always a threat.

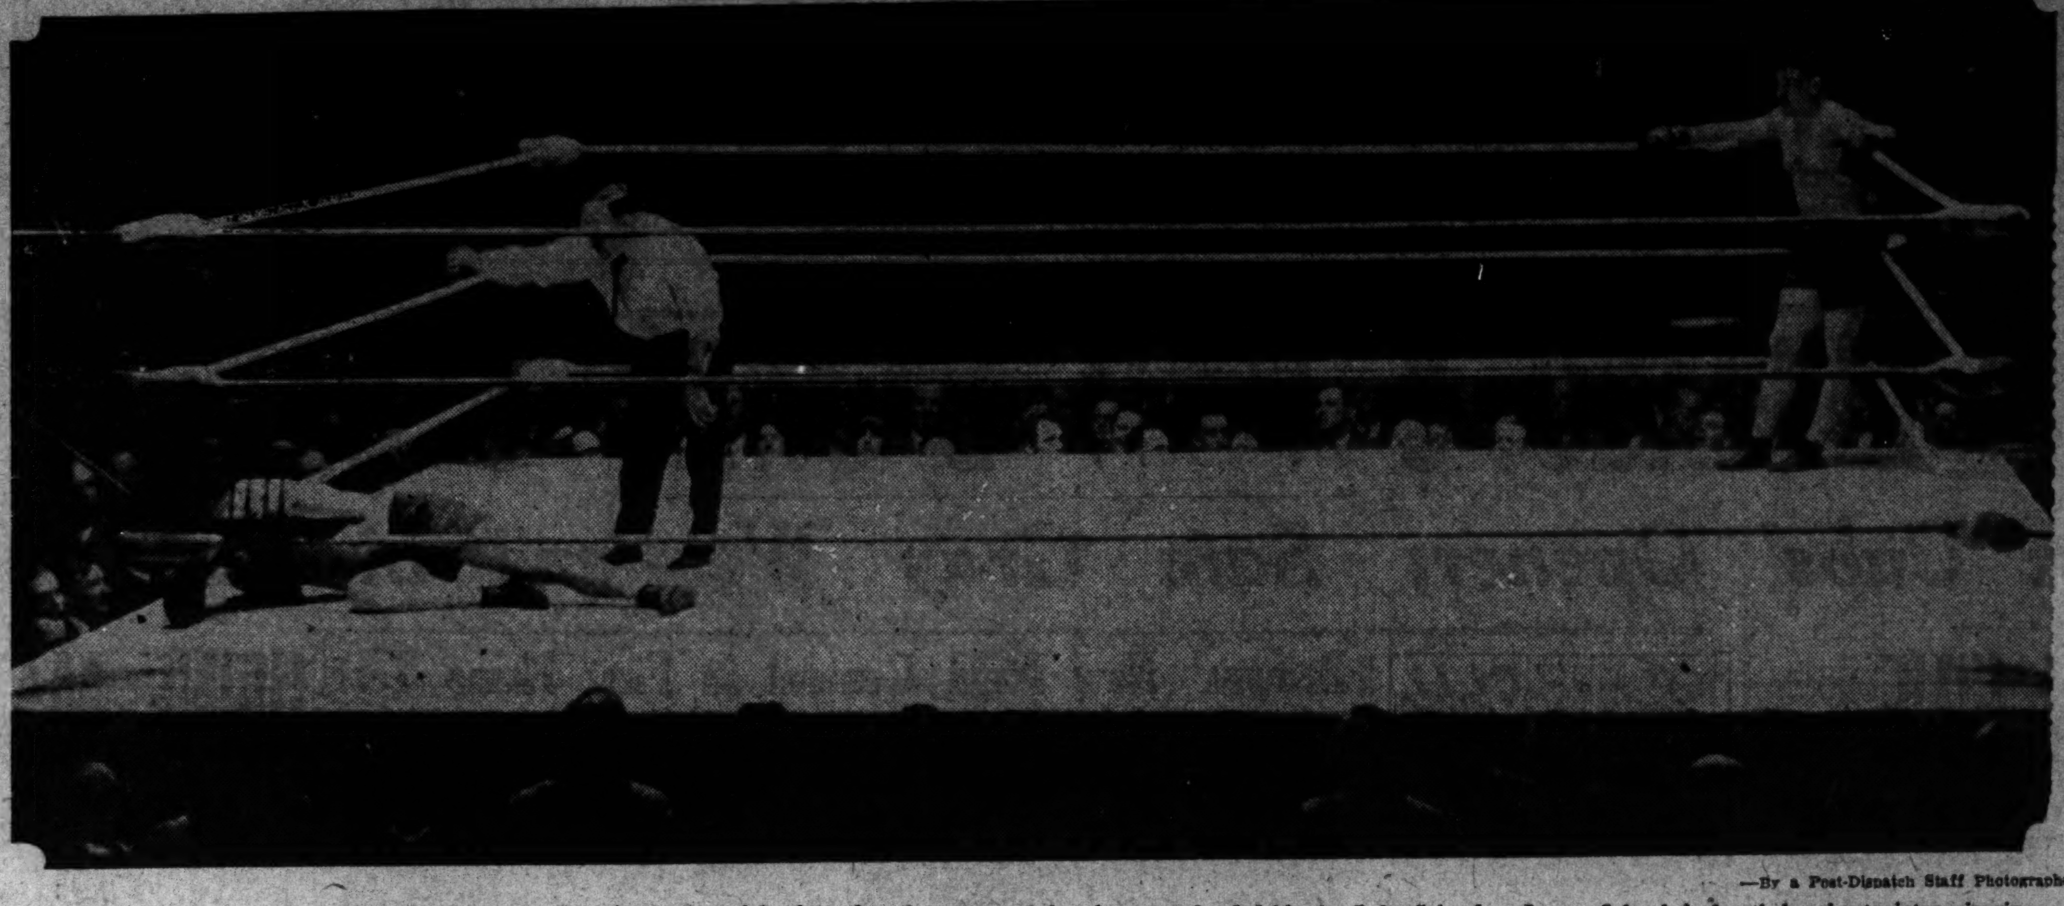
In the third round Tut missed a blow and slipped to the floor but was right up. In the fourth round he charged into Kaufman shaking him up badly. Finding Kaufman's jaw hidden from his right hand punches, he dropped his dexter mauley and landed rib-cracking blows to that region. In the fifth he chased Kaufman all around the ring pounding what openings the cautious Kaufman left.

The seventh round saw Tut at his best and his gloves thudded into Kaufman's head and body with resounding cracks.

From that time Kaufman beat a steady retreat under a shell of arms or gloves, gripping and holding to prevent a knockout. It was not a thrilling finish but it at least satisfied the crowd. Tut won every round except the third which was even. His point score was 65 to 35.

Tut would show to much better advantage against a fighter willing to meet him in the open.

The End of Another South American's Bid for Fistic Fame and Fortune



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

How the camera caught Eugenio Chevriere, Peruvian heavyweight, just after the one punch knockout was handed him by John Schwake. It was Schwake's fourth knockout victory in six fights since he turned professional.

Arena Results

The following results, except in cases of knockouts and no-contests, are the unofficial decisions of the Post-Dispatch authority at ringside.

King Tut (Minneapolis) easily outpointed Pinky Kaufman (Hartford, Conn.), 10 rounds. Weights, Tut 140, Kaufman 141. Referee, Walter Heisner.

Peewee Kaiser (St. Louis) and Lou Terry (St. Louis) stopped by commissioner and declared no contest in the eighth round. Weight, Kaiser 126¾, Terry 131. Referee, Harry Cook.

Myron Sullivan (St. Paul) knocked out Jackie Horner (St. Louis) after 1 minute and 10 seconds of the second round. Weights, Sullivan 152, Horner 150. Referee, Bob Parkinson.

First preliminary, Eddie Goldberg (St. Louis) and Mickey Cummings (Scott Field) fought five rounds to a draw. Goldberg's fouls offset a point margin he had gained. Weights, Goldberg 149, Cummings 148. Referee, Al Neist.

Second preliminary, John Schwake (Webster Groves) knocked out Eugene Chevriere (Mexico City) second round, 1 minute, 15 seconds. Weight, Schwake 211, Chevriere 198¾. Referee, Al Neist.

Third preliminary, Jack Barry (Chicago) outpointed Shuffle Callahan (Chicago), five rounds. weight, Callahan 159½, Barry 165½. Barry had wide margin when he hurt his hand in fourth round. Referee, Harry Kessler.

Fourth preliminary, Al Stillman (St. Louis) and Tiger Johnny Cline (Kansas City) fought five rounds to a draw. Stillman might have had the verdict except for his holding. Weights, Stillman 159½, Cline 160. Referee, Harry Kessler.

FIELDS KNOCKS OUT GRACE IN THREE ROUNDS

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 22.—Jackie Fields of San Francisco, welterweight champion, sat firmly on his throne today, having clearly demonstrated his superiority here last night over Meyer Grace of Philadelphia.

The champion knocked out the Philadelphian in the third round of a scheduled 10-round bout. It was a non-title affair.

Grace held the edge during the first two rounds, battling even more aggressively than the coast boxer. In the third round, however, the champion knocked his opponent down three times—the last time for the count.

Two preliminary fighters, Roy Jacks, former Western A. A. U. amateur champion, and Roy Pollock, an ex-marine, heavyweights, stole the show, their 10-round battle being the high point of the card. Jacks won by a knockout in the final round, after being on the canvas three times in the seventh period.

In the windup, Walter Dunham, a middleweight, outpointed Wilson Dunn, Tulsa, Ok., in 10 rounds. Harold Stines, Kansas City lightweight, drew with Dugan Layton, Springfield, Mo.

Schwake Only St. Louis Fighter on the Card to Win the Approval of Spectators

There was nothing to the Kaiser-Terry fight worth recording. Both men were listless. Bob Riley explained after the show that his fighter, Terry, weighed at 11 a. m. and was one and one-half pounds overweight at that hour. He may have weakened himself taking off that excess by hard work, before official weighing-in time at 3 o'clock.

At any rate the blows of both men lacked steam and their actions lacked pep. It was a fight in distinct contrast to their slam bang engagement at the Coliseum, for which they made exactly the same weight limit.

With one exception, it was not a big night for the St. Louis boys in the ring. Two of them were thrown out on a no-contest ruling, one was knocked out in jig time, one was booed and cat-called for holding, and another marred his exhibition by hitting low.

The exception was big John Schwake of Webster Groves, who knocked out Eugenio Chevriere of Peru, South America, after one minute and 15 seconds of the second round had elapsed.

Schwake Makes Good.

Genio came into the ring with three seconds, headed by Jackie Callahan, and supported by a "syndicate" of Racquet Club members. An interpreter relayed Genio's words to Callahan.

Genio was at a weight disadvantage of about 12 pounds, but he enjoyed several inches of altitude and reach. He was well formed. But in the ring he was awkward and uncouth, displaying no knowledge whatever about the technique of boxing. For a round he threw all sorts of hooks, loops and curves at Schwake. But when John's mighty right started working in the second the evening and his ring career came to an abrupt end for Genio. A terrific smash felled the Peruvian unconscious to the mat, with his head through the ropes. It was a one-punch knockout and one of the hardest blows Schwake has delivered.

The other knockout of the evening was suffered by our Jackie Horner. Myron Sullivan, from St. Paul, was Horner's opponent. The bout was to have gone 10 rounds but it lasted 1 minute and 10 seconds of the first round.

Horner had tried to force matters, but Sullivan, a cagey bird, bided his time until he found the opening he wanted and let loose a left hook to the chin which hit squarely on the "button." The right that followed it was not necessary, as Jackie was already plunging head downward into the canvas, where he was counted out. He wept in his corner for several seconds, after he recovered sufficiently to realize what had happened.

Those who like slaughterhouse displays must have been entertained by the Shuffle Callahan-Jack Barry fight, which was the third of four five-round preliminaries. Callahan, a goofey-eyed Chicago punch thrower, whom no amount of beating discouraged, took some ox-killing blows from Barry, also a Chicagoan, for three rounds and was soon an unlovely sight from the pounding and blood. In the second round he was twice beaten to the floor and was saved by the bell. In the third round he was savagely punished in punch trading with Barry, and reeled and staggered around as though he could not last.

"Take a chance, Shuffle!" shouted his corner, as Callahan came out for the fourth. He took one all right. But he fought wildly and landed a low blow. Barry started to claim foul, but Referee Harry Kessler began counting and Barry resumed fighting. For the remainder of the battle Barry fought with his right arm hanging down, evidently having injured his hand. He did not strike a blow with it for two rounds and it was this fact that saved Callahan from complete annihilation.

The Al Stillman (St. Louis)-Johnny Cline (Kansas City) fight, fourth on the program, was a five round event that went the limit. Stillman's famous punch landed hard several times and staggered the Kansas City "Tiger;" but the later rounds of the bout found Stillman utterly unable to fight without holding Cline. Despite warnings, he continued to repeat the offense. Although he had a scant margin on points, his holding effectually wiped out this margin. Stillman showed the same fault in his fight with King Levinsky here some weeks ago.

Eddie Goldberg's foul blows cost him a victory over his ancient foe, Mickey Cummings, in the curtain raiser.

On points Eddie won every round of the battle except the fourth in which he was floored by Cummings but bounced right up. He slipped to the floor in the first round and then slugged his foe generously. But he hit low on several occasions and had to be cautioned. In the third his low blow landed on Cummings' leg. Cummings, as an afterthought, fell into the ropes moaning and claiming foul. He started to fight again, however, when Neist began to count him out. But for the fouls Goldberg would have had the verdict.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Sharpe in Hard Fight.

HARRY SHARPE, hero of one of the ring classics of all time, his 77-round victory over Frank Crosby, is, at the age of 60, fighting another battle, equally tough—and apparently winning it.

Sharpe this morning was reported to be improving after having suffered seriously from an assault made on him in the Coliseum after the Londos-Grobemeier fight several weeks ago.

Sharpe, who had several operations on his teeth and jaw after the assault, last Saturday suffered a serious relapse and his fever rose to 104¾. Antitoxin was administered and today he was reported in less serious condition. It was believed the danger point has passed.

Referees, even more than the principals, in athletic struggles, have a right to protection from assaults such as brought about Sharpe's condition. Nor should it suffice to say that the disturbance was unexpected. The best way would be to provide safeguards for officials and athletes, whether surface conditions indicated trouble or not.

It also is a hint that the appeal to "make it rough," favored by the customers at wrestling matches, may lead to even more serious consequences if ignored by officials.

They'll Come to It.

NUMBERING major league baseball players has had slow progress. A few concessions have been made. The Yanks are among the clubs using numerals. Of course, to make the system effective all players on all teams will have to be numeraled and the numbers watched closely to see that errors are not made.

In Baltimore the club is in a predicament over the numbering of players. The Rochester team (a Cardinal farm by the way) is using numbers on their uniforms; but at Baltimore their numbers, except in two cases, did not conform to the numbers on the score board.

The reason was that the scoreboard is operated by concession and the concessionaires refused to change the batters' numbers originally arranged. They are opposed to numbering players, fearing it will injure the extension of their scoreboard business. The Baltimore contract still has two years to run. So the outlook is altogether blue for the uniform numerals.

BALL magnates have not yet learned the lesson that the good will of the people is the first thing to be obtained even though the price be high. And the best way to purchase it is to take an interest in the fans.

Ball parks today are dual business concerns. On the one hand they sell baseball. On the other they sell score cards, cushions, hot dogs, peanuts, ice cream, drinks, tobacco, etc. In St. Louis the clubs themselves are the concessionaires of the side lines and one of the things they sell is a score card.

To make this the more salable they put up numbers on the score board the mystery of which can only be solved by buying a score card.

It may be good business; but it never has appealed to this writer as a fair deal. They could give it away and get a still higher price for their score card "ads."

End of the Trail.

GEORGE SISLER, once an even greater idol in this city than Rogers Hornsby, is on the side lines these days, while the "regulars" are playing for the Boston Nationals. George hasn't been able to make the grade even as first baseman for the tailenders.

Men who came up with George are still going ahead—Hornsby, Ruth and others. Sisler will be passing out, after a career which saw every honor except one—he never played in a world series.

The nearest he came to it was in 1922, when his club missed the pennant by one game. Sisler was the first official "Most valuable player" in either league and he twice finished the season with batting average in the .400 circle. He led the league in base stealing and he established the high mark for a major league average when, in 1922, he reached the .420 figure.

It's not likely that his utility as an active player will continue. He had one trial as a manager—that with the Browns, and did not have much success. Himself a super player, he could not pass on his intuitive knowledge of what to do and how to do it.

Sisler was one of the few men who lived up to every prediction made for him. He came direct from college to the big leagues and remained there, increasing in baseball stature until his eye trouble cut him down. He even came back to overcome that handicap.

But the end of the trail is now in sight.

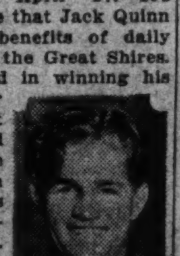
'Great' Shires Tells the World

By Art Shires

White Sox First Baseman.

CLEVELAND, April 27.—It's really unfortunate that Jack Quinn can't have the benefits of daily associations with the Great Shires. Jack looked good in winning his first game for the A's against the Boston Red Sox, but what he needs more than control of his spitter is a business manager. Someone to capitalize on his age. Jack tries his best to keep it a secret.



Art Shires.

While climbing a few hills with Jack this spring at Hot Springs, I came nearest to discovering the real date of his birth. I didn't want to embarrass Jack to much, for his wife was present, so hesitated in mentioning the Civil War.

Without thinking, Jack began to tell me of his part in the battle of Hastings, fought in 1096. What a man!

Just look at the cash Jack could pull in for indorsing food products, describing the burning of Rome and the love secrets of Cleopatra. The tabloids would go for Jack in a big way if he'd only admit his age.

Quinn and other old-timers like Grover Alexander and Harry Heilmann are making it difficult for young players to keep in the headlines. Alex and Harry have an easier time than Jack for they're not in the big league.

It wouldn't surprise me to see Harry have a better batting average than Hornsby. Remember the excellent training he's had in the real league and the pointers he picked up from me.

SENTMAN TO TRY FOR NEW HURDLE MARK AT DRAKE RELAY CARNIVAL

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., April 22.—Half of the meet, records of the Drake University relays will be in danger when more than 2000 college and university track and field stars gather Friday and Saturday for the twenty-first annual renewal of the classic.

On the basis of performances turned in at the Kansas relays, the athletes should better at least a half dozen of the best marks ever made in the special events and three or four of the university relay marks.

The 100-yard dash, the 120-yard high hurdles, the high jump, shotput, two-mile run, broad jump, pole vault and javelin throw all are threatened.

Cy Leland, the Texas Christian speedster; Claude Bracy, the "Dixie Flyer" from Rice Institute, and Tolan, Michigan's Negro sprinter, promise a duel in the short race such as no Drake relay has seen before. Leland won by a hair at Kansas in the world's record time of 9.4 seconds, one-tenth second below the mark Roland Locke of Nebraska set at Drake in 1926.

Illinois Star Entered.

Lee Sentman of Illinois may do the record-breaking in the high hurdles which no athlete has been able to perform since Bob Simpson, present Iowa State College track coach, set a mark of 14.8 seconds in 1917. The mark has twice been equaled, however. Sentman ran the hurdles in 14.6 at Kansas.

Shaw of Wisconsin, who high-jumped 6 feet 6 3-16 inches at Kansas, would break the mark set by Osborne of Illinois in 1922 if he again reaches that height here.

The 24-feet 6¼ inch broad jump Edward Gordon of Iowa made at Kansas was 3⅝ inches farther than the record set in 1924 by Hubbard of Michigan.

Warne of Northwestern, who pole-vaulted 13 feet 9¾ inches at Kansas, could break the Drake mark by five inches if he duplicated the feat.

While the shotput and javelin marks at Kansas were not as good as the all-time Drake records, they were close enough to indicate a possibility that they might be broken.

Illinois' 41-second performance in the quarter-mile relay was lower than the Drake mark by 8-10 second. The Illinois half-mile relay team equaled its Drake record in the half mile at 1:27.5.

MADISON OFFICIALS HAVE DECIDED TO BAR CHILDREN FROM TRACK THIS YEAR

Greyhound racing at the Madison rack will get under way Saturday ight, with a program of 10 events, according to Richard Wilder, president of the Madison Kennel Club, who announced today that approximately 1000 dogs are now quartered in or near Madison ready for the meet. The coming season will mark the fifth year of racing at the East Side oval.

The Inaugural Cup Race, a distance engagement over the five-sixteenths mile course, will be the feature of the opening program and will bring into competition a field of speedsters that show the best form and ability in a series of schooling tryouts inaugurated this morning and continuing through the balance of the week.

Among the Madison stars of last year listed as prospective contenders in the Inaugural Cup and other races on the opening card are: Dry Creek, the Spring Derby winner; Grey Buck, winner of the Autumn Derby; Swift and Sure, distinguished litter-brother of Dry Creek and holder of the world's record for the quarter-mile hurdles; McGurk, a famous Montana sprinter; Dick Free, The Bison, Copa De Ora, Solace and such juvenile favorites as Decision, Kerry News, Concession and Spirit J.

The meet has drawn some prominent newcomers, including the racing establishments of William Houghton and H. L. Foust of Chicago, James Boyle of Butte, Mont., and J. Foppiano of Oakland, Cal., owners whose dogs rated among the most consistent winners at the Hawthorne track in Chicago last summer.

Cashoo will Race Here.

Cashoo, the imported white and brindle pup which equaled Damon Runyon's world record time of 0:25 flat for the quarter during last year's Hawthorne meet and which also established a track record for the futurity distance at the Chicago oval, tops the list of stars running in the colors of the Houghton Kennels.

Another Chicago star of last season to be seen at Madison this spring is Alloon, a pup that flashed into the limelight by defeating Cashoo in several distance scrimmages. He is owned by James Boyle.

The Madison management has decided to bar minors from the track this year, regardless of whether they are accompanied by their parents. This departure from the old policy of admitting children who were accompanied by their parents has been adopted in the belief that it is for the good of the sport, according to President Wilder.

The Madison plant has been repainted and several improvements installed for the comfort and convenience of the fans, including a new system of electric announcers by which racing information will be speedily broadcast to every section of the stands. No changes have been made in the group of officials who supervised last year's racing for the International Greyhound Racing Association.

The meet has drawn some prominent newcomers, including the racing establishments of William Houghton and H. L. Foust of Chicago, James Boyle of Butte, Mont., and J. Foppiano of Oakland, Cal., owners whose dogs rated among the most consistent winners at the Hawthorne track in Chicago last summer.

Cashoo will Race Here.

Cashoo, the imported white and brindle pup which equaled Damon Runyon's world record time of 0:25 flat for the quarter during last year's Hawthorne meet and which also established a track record for the futurity distance at the Chicago oval, tops the list of stars running in the colors of the Houghton Kennels.

Another Chicago star of last season to be seen at Madison this spring is Alloon, a pup that flashed into the limelight by defeating Cashoo in several distance scrimmages. He is owned by James Boyle.

The Madison management has decided to bar minors from the track this year, regardless of whether they are accompanied by their parents. This departure from the old policy of admitting children who were accompanied by their parents has been adopted in the belief that it is for the good of the sport, according to President Wilder.

The Madison plant has been repainted and several improvements installed for the comfort and convenience of the fans, including a new system of electric announcers by which racing information will be speedily broadcast to every section of the stands. No changes have been made in the group of officials who supervised last year's racing for the International Greyhound Racing Association.

SPORT SALAD by L. C. Davis

The Passing Show.

ALTHOUGH the ball team
didn't play,
The Easter bunny had his day,
In spite of all the rain.
And rainy Easters indicate
'Twill rain on seven Sundays straight
With all it's might and main.

But many optimistic guys,
In spite of signs believe the skies,
On Sunday will be fair.
For omens may not mean a thing
Especially in early spring,
So let us not despair.

I see where Ann and Lindy went Across the Western Continent
And sailed to heights sublime;
At Wichita they made a stop,
And finished with another hop
In record-breaking time.

In less than 15 hours Slim
Across the U. S. A. did skim
With gracefulness and ease;
Another feather in the cap
Of Lindy, who's the greatest chap,
That ever split the breeze!

The Giants, led by John McGraw,
Took Grover Alexander's taw,
And from the Phillies won.
But though the Giants handed Pete
In his initial start defeat,
'Twas by a single run.

Well! Well!

Looks like the Yankees got of on the left foot. Even the Red Sox took a double-header from them.

But the Yanks are still the world's most versatile hitters. When they can't hit the ball or the stride they hit the toboggan.

However, the season is still young. Those Yanks are not a .000 team in any man's league.

The figures in Al Simmons' contract weren't divulged but from the way he's belting the ball, you'd think he was working on a percentage basis.

Col. Ruppert is patiently waiting for Babe Ruth's $80,000 batting eye to materialize. Pending its arrival, the Yanks are marking time.

The man on the sandbox says the Easter parade in a manner of speaking was all wet.

What, No Easter Hats?

THE big parade has not occurred,
Because of rain it was deferred;
And the Easter hat, lest we forget,
Has dwindled to a mere beret.

The feathered wing and ostrich plume,
No longer in the picture loom,
And with that brilliant bird, the lyre,
Are one with Nineveh and Tyre.

FORCED RUN GIVES TIGERS VICTORY OVER NORTHWESTERN, 6 TO 5

By the Associated Press.

Kadison, Chicago pitcher, sent the winning run for Missouri across the plate by a walk with the bases loaded. Missouri used three pitchers, holding the Northwesterners to seven hits, while the Tigers collected nine. Seven Missouri errors gave the Wildcats several scores. Northwestern opened the scoring in the fourth inning with a home run by Handley with one on.

SHIKAT TO ARRIVE TODAY FOR WRESTLING EXHIBITION THURSDAY

Leo Bartell, veteran Minneapolis matman, who will be introduced to local fans as the opponent of Tragos in Thursday night's curtain raiser, also arrived in St. Louis yesterday. Shikat and the principals in two other events which round out the card are scheduled to report today.

GEORGE SUTTON OF BILLIARD FAME AND WIFE DIE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 22.—George B. Sutton, famous old-time billiard player and for several years 18.2 balkline champion of the world, was found dead in his home today by friends who called to tell him of the death of his wife, Margaret. Mrs. Sutton had succumbed a few hours earlier in Frances Willard Hospital.

Sutton was 66 years old and his wife one year younger. They were devoted to each other, and through her weeks of illness Sutton had visited her daily at the hospital.

When Mrs. Sutton died at 3:30 a. m. today hospital attendants tried to communicate with her husband but telephone calls went unanswered. Friends forced an entrance to the home and found the veteran cue star in bed. A physician said heart disease probably caused death.

Schaefer's Great Rival.

Sutton held both 18.1 and 18.2 balkline championships more than 20 years ago. He was one of the outstanding players of a great era in which Jake Schaefer excelled, before the advent of Willie Hoppe. Sutton's average of 100 points per inning in a 400-point match with Hoppe in 1907 created a sensation in the billiard world. A year later, when he challenged Schaefer to defend his world championship at 18.1, the elder Jake was unable to play because of illness and the title was declared forfeited to Sutton. He, in turn, accepted the challenge of Ora Morningstar and lost his crown, in 1908.

Sutton's last appearance here in a world's championship match was in 1916 when he attempted to dethrone Willie Hoppe in a match at Moolah Temple. Hoppe retained his championship.

Sutton was very highly regarded among the men of his profession, both as a billiard player and a gentleman of character, according to Charles C. Peterson, St. Louis billiard authority. "Sutton was one of the greatest of a great group of players, 30 years ago," said Peterson. "Few of that group remain now. There are only George Slosson and Maurice Daley left. Sutton held his own even against the 'wizard' Jake Schaefer. His passing is a real loss to the game."

AGATES PRACTICALLY CLINCH TITLE IN NEWSPAPER LEAGUE

By winning three games from the Orange Sheets while the Green Sheets were losing one game to the Sunsets, the Agates have practically clinched the title in the Newspaper bowling league, at Peterson's alleys. Only three more games remain to be rolled in the league and the Agates are now two games in front.

Piesbergen and Hinckley paced the winners, each getting a 577 series. J. Winkler's 591 was high for the Orange Sheets. The Green Sheets totaled 2725 in their match with the Sunsets, Kerley leading with 568. Miller shot 569 for the losers.

In the other matches the Sport Specials won the odd game from the States and the Dumb Doras won two from the Intertypes.

LEHMAN AND VAUGHN TO PLAY IN U. S. SOCCER TEAM TRYOUT MATCH

ARCHIE STARK AND PATENAUDE AT CENTER IN NEW YORK TRIAL

By Dent McSkimming.

St. Louis' success in developing good native-born soccer players apparently has made an impression upon the committee which is selecting a team to represent the United States in the world series to be played at Montevideo, Uruguay, in July. Two St. Louis boys have received official invitations from the committee to participate in a test game at New York on May 1. Both, Bill Lehman and Frank Vaughn, said today that they will accept the invitation. If either or both makes a favorable showing in the tryout game he will become a member of the American team, which sails on June 13.

Only one city has been asked to contribute more than two players for the trial. Newark, N. J., like St. Louis, is a hot bed of native soccer. Three Newark players will enter the trial match. Fall River, Philadelphia and New York City are the only other districts from which two players have been drawn.

Following is the squad which will play the test match against the Hakoah All-Stars at New York on May 1:

From St. Louis, Vaughn and Lehman; Fall River, Gonsalvez and Patenaude; Philadelphia, Stradan and McGhee; Newark, Sousa, Douglas and O'Brien; Chicago, McLean; Detroit, Wood; Cleveland, Bookie; Bethlehem, Stark; Providence, Auld; New Bedford, Florie; New York, Gallagher and Slone.

Out of this group of 17, a squad of 15 will be selected. A second such trial game will be played on the following Sunday, May 4.

Many American Born Boys.

It is apparent that the committee in charge of selections has sought to restrict the team to native born Americans but there are several exceptions. All are American citizens. In the western group, for instance, Vaughn and Lehman are American-born but Willie McLean and Alec Wood were both born in Scotland. Both came to this country as small boys. Both have played in St. Louis on many occasions and observers here expect to see them picked in the final squad.

The presence in the squad of Archie Stark of Bethlehem, Scotch-born, and Bert Patenaude of Fall River, an American boy, assures the selection of a very capable center forward. There appears to be a greater number of outstanding forwards than backfield men available. If Vaughn and Lehman play in their usual style there is little question that both will be retained.

Twilight League to Start.

Players of the four clubs composing the St. Louis Twilight Amateur Soccer League met last night at Sherman Park Community Center and listened to an outline of the league's plans and purposes as explained by the league officials. Oscar Mossmann, who will coach al four clubs, the Cook A. C., the Dolans, the Academy A. C. and the German Sport Club, told the players he would demand clean, orderly soccer. Unduly rough play will be severely dealt, with for the referees, Jimmy Dunn, George Corrigan and James "Dike" Brannigan have been instructed to eject players who persist in foul play.

The three referees spoke to the players, asking their co-operation in making the league an organization which would become recognized one built upon clean, scientific soccer. Jimmy Dunn's plea to "cut out the rough stuff" at first brought a smile from those who recalled his own aggressive style as a center forward, but he succeeded in making the players understand that he means to wipe out foul play.

Plea for Better Soccer.

Other former players, including Pete McLaughlin and Vince Hartigan stressed the need for scientific soccer as opposed to the rough and tumble game that has been gaining ground here.

Play will start one week from today. The scene of the games will be Sherman Park where a grounds on the east of Kingshighway side of the park will be laid out. One game will be played each Tuesday evening and another on Thursday evening for the following nine weeks, carrying the season's schedule up to July.

Members of the four clubs have received many requests from players who wish to compete in the trilight league but it is improbable that many changes will be made in the team rosters.

Niato's Effort in Camden Boosts Her Derby Chances

		1st.	2nd.	3rd.	Unp.	Won.
NIATO	Chantey Miniato (Querido)	3	1	2	2	$2000

Owner—H. P. Whitney.
Trainer—Mose Goldblatt.

IN spite of her defeat in the Camden Handicap at Lexington, Saturday, Harry Payne Whitney's Niato is gaining suporters almost daily as a possible winner of the Kentucky Derby on May 17.

Observers were inclined to place the blame for Niato's defeat on the shoulders of Jockey Kenneth Russell, who appears to have lost his magic touch since losing his apprentice allowance. Although she suffered from her rider's poor judgment, Niato came with such speed in the stretch that she finished second, beaten only a head by Thistle Fyrn, completely outrunning such veteran racers as Stars and Bars, Devon, Pigeon Hole and Patricia Marian. Niato appeared much the best. The distance was a mile and one-sixteenth and it was run in very good time—1:46.

This is not the first time Niato has gone a distance. She was third to Lightning Jones and Black Cloud in a mile event at Fair Grounds on Feb. 15 and came back to again finish third at the same distance in a race won by Brother Rank on Feb. 19 at the same track. The filly has never been asked to cary weight, however, and it is questionable, therefore, whether she will perform so well under Derby conditions.

Niato has started nine times and has won three races.

Kirkwood Team Beats Normandy In Track Meet

After having won the track events of a two-day meet with Normandy, the Kirkwood team continued its winning stride and overcame the field men of Normandy by a convincing score, 73½-38½, yesterday. The seniors of Kirkwood, after having been beaten in the track department, came back to score an overwhelming 42½-11½ victory. The juniors of Kirkwood, after swamping the Normandy track men, 41-27, continued their winning ways and won the field events by a 32-22 score.

Kirkwood's senior field men took all but one first, tieing for that, and winning all but one second. Ward was the star of the meet, taking four firsts for Normandy in the track events, and scoring a tie for first, a third and a tie for third in the field events, for a total of 25½ points.

There was more of a struggle in the junior division, with the two teams scoring an equal number of first places. The Kirkwood juniors, however, took five of the six seconds to cinch victory. SANGOR DECIDES TO QUIT AGAIN AFTER ANDERSON BEATS HIM

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 22.—"Never again will I enter the ring to fight," remarked Joey Sangor, former contender for the featherweight crown, as he ended the tenth round of windup with Eddie Anderson at Auditorium last night. Sangor was a shell of his former self and went the 10 rounds because Anderson was kind to him. There is talk of watching Anderson with King Tut for feature event in May.

This is the second time Sangor has announced he was through with the ring.

CONCORDIA WINS OVER IOWA FOR THIRD VICTORY

With Gus Tschatschula pitching at his best, Concordia Seminary gained its third victory of the season yesterday, defeating Iowa University, 6 to 1. Tschatschula allowed nine hits and struck out six batters in scoring his fourteenth straight victory for the Seminary team.

The Concordia batters, with Etzler showing the way with four out of four, pounded out 12 safeties against Ingram and Carlson, the Iowa pitchers. Two St. Louis boys, James Kenny and Joe Mowry, were in the Iowa lineup. Kenny played second base and Mowry was in center field. Mowry had one hit.

Concordia took the lead in the second inning, putting over four runs, and was never threatened thereafter. The lone Iowa run in the third frame was the result of an error.

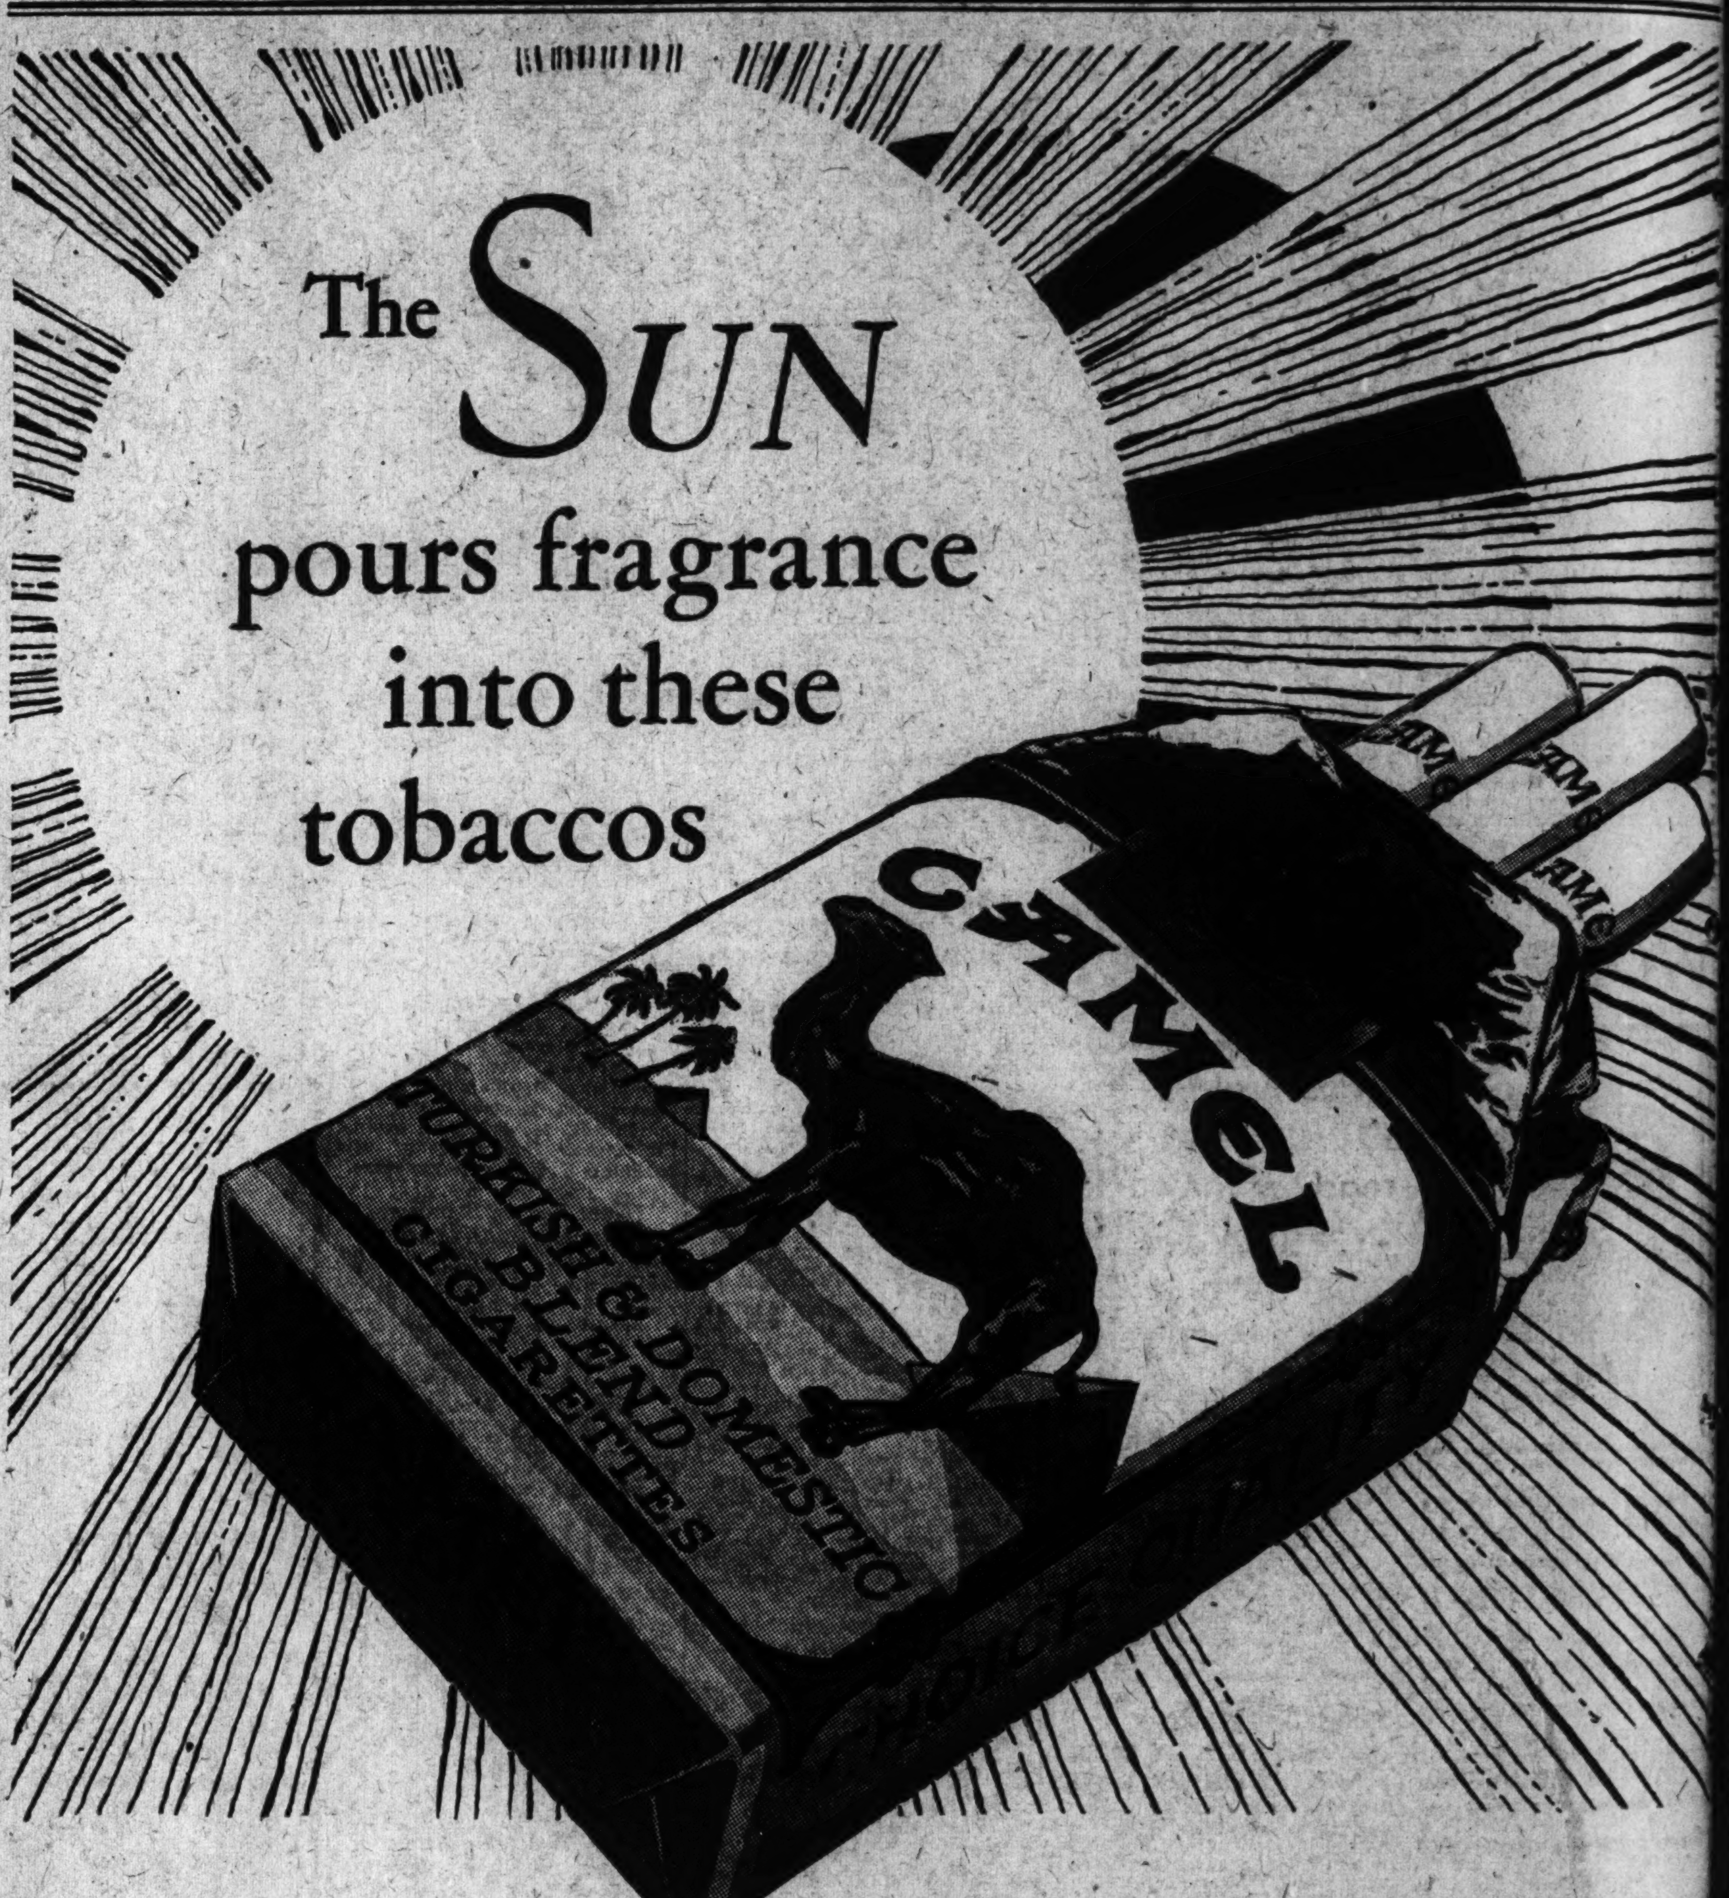
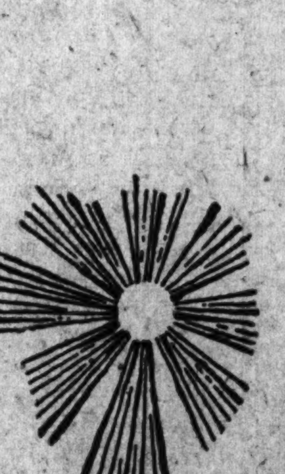
The SUN pours fragrance into these tobaccos





LONG BEFORE the choice leaves of golden Turkish and velvety brown Domestic tobacco are selected for Camel Cigarettes, nature's own alchemy has worked a miracle in them that no effort of man can hope to duplicate.

Every tiny leaf-cell is irradiated—stored full of goodness by the clean, pure vigor of the sun!

Our share in the making of Camels is to see that all of the fragrance, mildness, mellowness, aroma—in a word all of the natural goodness of these sun-ripened tobaccos is preserved and developed—then to combine them into the smooth, delightful harmony of the famous Camel blend, and manufacture them into cigarettes by the most modern methods known to the industry.

You can taste the natural goodness in every delicious puff of a Camel Cigarette.

Illinois Wesleyan used four men on the mound in an effort to stop the slugging Bears. The last of the quartet, a youngster named Hurst, was the only visiting pitcher who was successful. He didn't allow a hit or a run during the Bear's last two times at bat. They were the only innings in which the home team failed to score. A total of 22 hits were made off the three men who had previously been on the firing line for the Illinois team.

BEARS POUND FOUR WESLEYAN PITCHERS FOR 24 TO 5 VICTORY

LEYHE, PAUL AND JORDAN HURL WELL FOR WASHINGTON U.

By Damon Kerby.

A baseball game was scheduled at Francis Field on the Washington University campus yesterday afternoon, between the Bears and Illinois Wesleyan of Bloomington, Ill., but it turned out to be a field day for the Bears. When the players were homeward plodding their weary way a check and double check by the scorers—about the only remaining spectators when the game ended—disclosed that the score stood 24 to 5 in favor of the Bears.

Illinois Wesleyan used four men on the mound in an effort to stop the slugging Bears. The last of the quartet, a youngster named Hurst, was the only visiting pitcher who was successful. He didn't allow a hit or a run during the Bear's last two times at bat. They were the only innings in which the home team failed to score. A total of 22 hits were made off the three men who had previously been on the firing line for the Illinois team.

Freedman a Hitting Star.

Coach White, before the game, had switched the Bears' battling lineup, removing Friedman from the clean-up position and placing Saussele in that spot. Friedman, batting as lead-off man, then collected five hits in six times at bat, one of which was a home run, to lead Washington's offensive drive. Saussele got three hits in six times up.

Two double plays were made by the Bears, one of which fairly sparkled. With one out and a runner on third in the third inning, McCauley of Illinois Wesleyan, lifted what appeared would be a Texas leaguer to short right field. Coover raced in, made a brilliant running catch and then whipped the ball home on a line to catch the runner at the plate.

Washington will face stiffer competition in its next game when it goes against the Concordia nine tomorrow afternoon at Liggett Field.

Fewer than 400 persons watched yesterday's contest.

HUDSON ALLOWS ONLY TWO HITS; WEBSTER WINS

Hudson, Webster's veteran hurler, held Central High to two hits and one run to give Webster High a 3-to-1 victory yesterday afternoon in a non-conference contest played on the county team's field.

Poor base-running on the part of the Gainesmen marked the game. Eleven singles were made by these players, and all they could score was three runs.

The first of Central's two hits off Hudson was made in the third inning. Prosser made a single after two men had been retired. The other hit and the run came in the next inning. Yourtee singled but was put out on third. Kellman, the ultimate scorer was hit by a pitched ball. He later scored when Honig fumbled Love's grounder.

Webster tied the score, 1-1, in the fifth. Wanner singled. Hemphill went out, but Barrie singled just out of Love's reach and Wanner crossed. The county team won in the sixth. Smith hit a single and stole second. Schutz repeated the first part of the former's act. Then, after Hudson had sacrificed, Dan Coyne knocked in both men with a line single over second.

KADERBECK TO MEET HOWELL IN BOUT ON OVERLAND A. C. CARD

"Spider" Kaderbeck, South Broadway A. C. flyweight, and Elmer Howell of the Olympian A. C., have been signed to meet in one of the special matches on tomorrow night's amateur boxing program at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 2400 Woodson road, in Overland, St. Louis County.

The pair of midgets have met in the squared circle on two occasions, with Kaderbeck winning both times. Both bouts were thrilling from start to finish and only strong finishes enabled Kaderbeck to take the verdicts.

Matchmaker Wilsman stated that he has Steve Marre, Mississippi Valley Athletic Association middleweight champion, signed for one of the feature matches, and is trying to sign Charley Schrober of the South Broadway A. C., as an opponent for the Tower A. C. boy.

In the feature battle, Dan Durso, Olympian A. C. featherweight, will trade blows with George West, clouting South Broadwayite. Durso is in fine physical condition and feels confident that he will reverse the defeat he suffered at the hands of West several weeks ago.

Two other star bouts will show welterweights in action. Farrell Moore, Mississippi Valley titleholder, will take on Bill Finnegan of the South Broadway A. C. ring team, and Myrle Gilbert of the Olympian A. C. will face George Miller of the Business Men's Gymnasium.

Bob Parkinson will referee the matches.

Kostess Stars as Granite City Wins

His home run in the seventh inning with a man on base gave his team a temporary lead but Belleville tied the count in the ninth. Friedman of Belleville hit a home run with a man on base in the opening inning. Kostess fanned 10 batters.

122 KILLED IN CHURCH FIRE ARE BURIED IN ONE GRAVE

By the Associated Press.

BUCHAREST, April 22.—The bodies of 122 victims of the fire which destroyed a church at Cotesci Friday night have been placed in one large grave dug around the ruins of the building.

Fifteen thousand peasants and other persons from neighboring villages witnessed the funeral, most of them traveling afoot but some on donkeys and horses. Over the caskets they spread brightly colored Easter eggs, fruits and cakes prepared for the feast that was turned to tragedy. One of the rude coffins contained the ashes of five children whose mother lies ill in a Bucharest hospital.

ADMITS HE KILLED HIS DAUGHTER WITH GAS

Chicagoan Says He Wanted to End Suffering — Death at First Declared Suicide.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 22.—Five years ago Mary Cutler, 35 years old, was found dead in her gas-filled home. She had been suffering from heart disease. A Coroner's jury returned a verdict of "suicide while despondent over ill health."

Last night Charles Cutler, 70, father of Mary, walked into a police station and confessed that he had killed the girl.

"I can't stand it any longer," said the aged man. "For five years it has preyed on my mind, obsessed my thoughts, tortured every moment, walking or sleeping. I murdered her. She was sick and suffering. I couldn't stand to watch her agony. Once she tried to kill herself.

"Then one morning she was asleep in her room. She had taken a sleeping potion. I closed the doors and windows. I opened the gas jets and left the house. I worked all that day with the thought of her lying dead at home. I went home at 6 o'clock. Then I called the police and told that I had found her dead."

Cutler, a chef, was charged with murder.

BISHOP MAXON MEETS SON HELD ON HOMICIDE CHARGE

Calls on Him in West Side (New York) Prison; Youth to Be Arraigned Tomorrow.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 22, — The Right Rev. James Matthew Maxon, bishop coadjutor of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Tennessee, and his son, James Matthew Jr., met yesterday afternoon in West Side prison for the first time since young Maxon was arrested for the murder of an elderly man in a rooming house brawl last Friday.

Their meeting was restrained but affectionate. The father, accompanied by Myles Walsh, an attorney, and the son were shown to the Warden's office where they remained 15 minutes, after which the prisoner was returned to his cell.

The Bishop greeted a group of reporters with a handshake for each of them as he emerged from the prison and expressed his gratitude for what he described as "the fair treatment" the press had given himself and his family in reporting the case.

"The boy will tell the truth," the Bishop said. "That is something that was instilled in him in childhood. I am certain my boy is innocent." Young Maxon will be arraigned tomorrow on a charge of homicide.

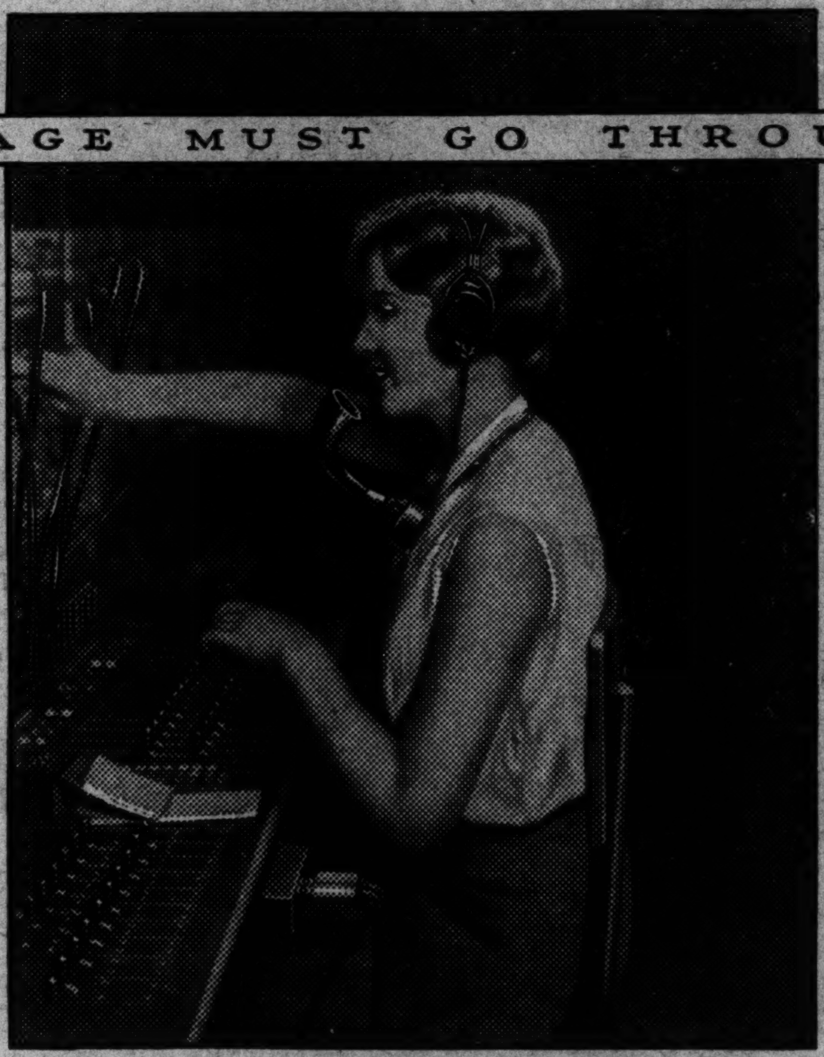
THE MESSAGE MUST GO THROUGH



Swiftly Molly plugs in . . . answers: "number, please?"

Molly Malone keeps the Night watch . .

Midnight!

At the long switchboard in the telephone office sits a girl—a tiny figure in the vast, silent room. Softly the dark gloss of her hair, the silken sheen of her collar, catch the glow of light from the high ceiling.

Molly Malone keeps the night watch!

Short hours before, a thousand tiny lights sparkled along the face of that switchboard. Scores of operators filled the room with the low undertone of their voices.

Then, with the night, the flashing lights had died away—the busy line of operators had dwindled as girl after girl left the ranks.

Now the city sleeps. The calls are few. And Molly Malone, with a corporal's guard of helpers, watches the wires that cast their slender, nerve-like web over the town, the nation, and on to strange countries, foreign peoples.

A bell tinkles, breaking the silence.

A score of feet away, a girl lays down the palette and brush with which she has been painting mystic symbols upon the switchboard face—little signs that, next day, will tell busy operators what telephones connect to each telephone line.

A quick step; the girl bends over a flashing light whose presence the bell has signalled, calls a number to Molly.

Toward a tiny hole among the hundreds that honeycomb the board, Molly raises her hand unerringly. Swiftly she plugs in, answers:

"Number, please?"

Near other sections of the board, other girls are busy at other tasks.

One tests cords through which, tomorrow, will flow thousands on thousands of voices . . . another sorts into neat piles tickets on which long distance calls are recorded . . . a third puts sharpened pencils, tiny pads of paper, along the switchboard . . . preparations for the rush and bustle of the coming day.

Yet each is alert for the tiny bells. As these now and again punctuate the stillness, they turn swiftly to the board, mark the number of the light that flashes, call it to Molly.

And Molly, sitting quietly at the dark switchboard, speeds on their way the Voices of the Night—opens the wires to doctors, to hospitals, to merchants who, long before day, start foodstuffs pouring toward the city's markets.

Thus is the night watch kept, against the hour when the city will shake off the bonds of sleep; when the tinkle of the signal bells will grow to a steady volume, the lights flash faster and faster, and the dawn brings other operators to reinforce the slender ranks at the switchboard.

Yet the handful of watchers* is but a squad in the army that, at the switchboards of telephone offices everywhere, stands vigil through the still hours of the morning to make it possible for you to talk with anyone, anywhere, and at any time! Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

*Less than one per cent of telephone calls are placed between midnight and six o'clock in the morning, telephone statistics show. To handle these, more than four per cent of the total number of operators are on duty . . . a force ample to care for several times the normal volume!

The Wilcolator Oven Heat Control automatically holds the flame of the oven steadily at the desired temperature, keeping the heat constant and steady.

And it is not necessary to consult a cook book to ascertain the correct temperature for the baking or roasting of certain foods. That is all shown right on the Wilcolator.

It also makes your range serve as a fireless cooker. You can place an entire meal in the oven, set the Wilcolator at a certain temperature and leave the house for several hours, without danger of burning or scorching.

This means the saving of hundreds of steps—less time at the stove—more perfect results in baking.

No more cake failures—no guess work—no drudgery of oven watching. The Wilcolator makes cooking a pleasure instead of a task.

SAYS WETS SPENT $11,000 TO ELECT BLAINE SENATOR

H. H. Curran Tells of Support of Lobby Committee Member in His 1926 Campaign.

$29,000 TO FIGHT WISCONSIN DRYS

That Contribution He Testifies Was Used in Behalf of Repeal of State Enforcement Act.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, told the Senate Lobby Committee today his organization had spent $29,000 in advocating repeal of the state prohibition enforcement law in Wisconsin.

Curran also testified that his organization had contributed $11,000 to the 1926 campaign of Senator Blaine (Rep.), Wisconsin, a member of the committee.

Questioned by Blaine, the witness said the money was not contributed directly to Blaine or to his campaign committee but was spent independently. He added that he thought it was spent for advertising in behalf of the Blaine campaign.

Wet Assocation's Membership.

Membership of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment the first of this year was placed at 11,098 today by Curran. Curran read the membership of the following states: New York, 3114; Massachusetts, 1292; Pennsylvania, 1249; New Jersey, 565; Indiana, 105; Montana, 7; Arkansas, 3; Idaho, 9, and Wisconsin 390.

When the Montana membership was read Curran remarked: "Maybe that's a compliment to Senator Walsh."

Walsh (Dem.), Montana, a dry, is a member of the Lobby Committee, Caraway of Arkansas, Blaine of Wisconsin, Robinson of Indiana and Borah of Idaho are the other committee members.

Walsh read a letter written to Frank C. Brophy of Phoenix, Ariz., which said repeal of the prohibition law would result in a saving of $20,000 a year to persons paying income taxes of $90,000 or more. The letter added that this saving would result from liquor taxes. Curran said he did not know who had written the letter and had not seen it. He contended prohibition repeal would result in a saving to everyone.

Doubts Dry League's Story.

Walsh read from an address by Horace D. Taft of Watertown, Conn., brother of the late President Taft, which said he had read reports that the International League of Adversaries of Prohibition was planning to spend millions in this country.

Curran said the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment had no relation with the international organization.

"What paper is that in," Curran demanded. "The American Issue," Walsh said.

"Oh, the Anti-Saloon League Journal," Curran said, adding: "There is so much untruth in it that I question the veracity of almost everything in it."

"Do you question Mr. Taft's statement?" Walsh asked. "Mr. Taft is an honorable man, but the American Issue is not an honorable institution," Curran asserted.

$29,000 In Wisconsin.

Curran said the organization had spent $29,000 in advocating repeal of the State prohibition enforcement laws in Wisconsin last year. J. J. Sealman, represented the association at the Legislature for $10,000, he added.

The witness also said Walter G. Cooke, representing the Association, had been present at the Illinois legislative session last year and that nine votes were needed in the Senate to repeal the State enforcement law. "We got only four," he said.

Questioned about the Wisconsin campaign, Curran demanded whether the "Anti-Saloon League and Bishop Cannon" were going to be investigated. "They outnumber us 10 to 1 in every Legislature," he asserted.

Walsh told him the drys would be investigated later.

Robinson read letters from Sealman, who is from Milwaukee, which told of the Legislative progress of the repeal bill.

The Senator asked if the association contributed to the campaign of Senator Blaine, a member of the Lobby Committee, in 1926, reading a newspaper report which said $11,000 had been contributed.

yesterday, bringing the total

Wet Association's Membership.

Membership of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment the first of this year was placed at 11,098 today by Curran. $29,000 In Wisconsin.

Curran said the organization had spent $29,000 in advocating repeal of the State prohibition enforcement laws in Wisconsin last year. J. J. Sealman, represented the association at the Legislature for $10,000, he added.

The Senator asked if the association contributed to the campaign of Senator Blaine, a member of the Lobby Committee, in 1926, reading a newspaper report which said $11,000 had been contributed.

"I think that is right," Curran said, "but I think he could win without us."

A letter from Sealman also was read. It said he had advocated the election of John W. Reynolds, a wet, to the Supreme Court in Wisconsin.

Curran Protests.

As Robinson continued to read from correspondence of the association, Curran charged that the spirit of the Fourth Amendment to the Constitution had ben violated by the committee in obtaining the records.

"I don't know what has become of the Fourth Amendment," he said, "you just took the records. Where has the bill of rights gone?"

Senator Walsh told Curran the Fourth Amendment related to "forcible seizure" of personal belongings and had nothing to do with the committee's action in subpenaing the records.

"If you object, of course you have your remedy," Walsh continued. "If you think the committee has violated the law, you can contest it."

"I bow to your knowledge," Curran said, adding that he thought the committee's action was "beyond the pale of what is proper procedure. We have nothing to conceal and the responsibility is on you." He added that he had no intention of taking further action.

Two Football Coaches to Give Testimony for Wets.

Two football coaches—Tad Jones of Yale and Bill Roper of Princeton—were announced today as rebuttal witnesses for the wets at prohibition hearings beginning tomorrow before the House Judiciary Committee. W. H. Stayton of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, said the coaches would appear along with Major-General Clarence Edwards of Boston, commander of the Twenty-sixth Division of the A. E. F.; Pierre S. Dupont, Wilmington, Del., industrialist, and Miss Elizabeth Harris of Washington, representing the woman's organizations for prohibition reform. Representative Clancy (Rep.), Michigan, also is to appear.

Rebuttal testimony will occupy two days, and will conclude the hearings on bills to repeal the eighteenth amendment.

NANKING DECIDES TO USE RADIO INSTEAD OF CABLES

Chinese Nationalist Government Not to Renew Contracts With British-Danish Trust.

By the Associated Press.

NANKING, April 22.—In an article in the Central Daily News, the Nationalist Government's official mouthpiece, Bhuan Chi-Huan, Director-General of the Government's telegraph and telephone system, says the Ministry of Communications has decided not to renew its contracts with the cable companies which are scheduled to expire this year.

The Great Northern Telegraph Co. and the Eastern Extension Cable Co., constituting the most important units of the so-called British-Danish Cable Trust, have protested to the Ministry of Communications, saying the privileges they now enjoy were granted by the Manchu Government and must be regarded as irrevocable.

The Government has taken the stand that nothing the Manchu Government may have done can be regarded as irrevocable because the Manchus no longer exist in an official way.

Several powerful radio stations are being erected by Nanking and these, it is said, will take care of all communication between China and foreign countries after Dec. 31.

ASKS U. S. WHAT IT INTENDS TO DO WITH SCOTT FIELD

St. Louis Delegation Appears Before Senate Appropriations Committee.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—A delegation of St. Louis business men, headed by Barney Frauenthal and G. C. Varnum of the Chamber of Commerce Air Board, today appeared before the Senate Appropriations Committee and asked for a showdown on Scott Field at Belleville, Ill.

In a brief filed with the committee, which is holding hearings on the army appropriations bill, the St. Louisans ask bluntly whether it is the intention of the Government to transfer all lighter-than-aircraft activities to the navy or whether Scott Field will be kept in its present status under the army.

The brief declares that if the field is not utilized to its full extent by the army, the War Department should be authorized to dispose of it for transformation into a commercial air field. The brief points out that the Federal Government has spent approximately $10,000,000 on the field and now had a force there of 500 men and 82 officers.

Mob Kills Mexican Priest.

MEXICO CITY, April 22.—Dispatches reported that the Catholic priest Jose Lezama has been killed by a mob in the village of Canadas, in Thelos Altos region of Jalisco, which was the center of three years of Guerrilla warfare by the "Cristeros Rebels." Dispatches said the mob was determined to close the church and when it was opposed by the priest, beat him to death.

IF PARKER 'FACES GUNS,' HE'LL GET O K, WATSON SAYS

Republican Senate Leader Makes Prediction After Conferring With Hoover on Confirmation Fight.

MOVE TO START DEBATE THURSDAY

Plan Favored by Borah, Who Will Present Majority Report—Judge Refuses to Withdraw.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Senator Watson, Republican leader, predicted today after a conference with President Hoover that the nomination of John J. Parker to the Supreme Court would be confirmed "if he goes up against the guns."

Watson said that so far as he knew there was no question that Parker would face the issue, in the contest being made against his confirmation.

Senate leaders, meeting informally, considered having the nomination taken up in the Senate on Thursday. Senator Borah (Rep.), Idaho, who will present the majority report of the Judiciary Committee in opposition to Parker, said he favored such action.

Judge Parker has told friends here that he has no intention of withdrawing as a nominee for the Supreme Court because of the opposition of labor and Negro organizations or because of the Senate Judiciary Committee's action yesterday in opposing his confirmation.

May Ask to Appear.

He is now considering the advisability of requesting that the committee give him an opportunity to appear before it and answer the objections that have been raised against him.

Some members of the committee have said that if Judge Parker wants to be heard they will hear him, but this must be settled by a vote of the committee. Yesterday, a motion that Judge Parker be asked to appear was defeated at the same time that the committee voted to disapprove his nomination.

Objection to the confirmation of Parker was raised by the American Federation of Labor and the Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The former argued that Parker was biased in favor of property rights as opposed to human rights and based this contention on a decision of the nominee as a member of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, which upheld the so-called "yellow dog contract" under which employes bind themselves not to join labor unions. The decision restrained the United Mine Workers from soliciting employes of a large West Virginia coal mining company.

Justice Department's Defense.

Later, the Justice Department issued a statement saying Judge Parker had no freedom of action in the case and that in his decision he necessarily followed the previous action of the Supreme Court.

The Negro organization complained that in a campaign speech in 1920, when Parker was the Republican nominee for Governor of North Carolina, he made remarks which it interpreted as showing a prejudice against the Negro race.

Judge Parker's nomination is actively supported by the two Democratic Senators from his State, Simmons and Overman. The latter, who headed a judiciary subcommittee which received the complaints, intends to make a vigorous campaign for his confirmation.

Limitation and Reduction of Naval Armaments As Prescribed in London Treaty Adopted Today

In Addition to Scrapping of Battleships, U. S., Britain and Japan Agree to New Basis for Tonnage in All Categories.

"Humanization" of Submarine Warfare, Battleship Holiday and New Aircraft Carrier Designation Provided.

LONDON, April 22.

BY terms of the naval treaty signed by representatives of the five Powers at London, the United States should have achieved parity with Great Britain by the date of its expiration, Dec. 31, 1936. Japan will occupy at that time a ratio of naval power somewhere between the 5-5-3 capital ship ratio agreed upon at the Washington 1922 conference and the 10-10-7 auxiliary ship ratio which the Tokio delegation sought at the beginning of this conference.

Nine battleships are to be scrapped, or, in the case of three, converted to training vessels, and a five-year capital ship construction holiday is decreed. The ships to be scrapped are, for the United States, the Florida, Utah and either the Arkansas or the Wyoming, while Great Britain will abandon the Bembow, the Iron Duke, the Marlborough, the Emperor of India and the Tiger; Japan will scrap the Hiyei.

Under the treaty the United States may have 180,000 tons of large cruisers, Great Britain, 146,800 tons, and Japan 108,400 tons; in small cruisers, the United States may have 143,500 tons, Great Britain 192,200 tons, and Japan 100,450 tons; destroyer tonnages are set at, the United States, 150,000 tons; Great Britain, 150,000 tons, and Japan, 105,500 tons. Each of the three Powers agrees to keep its submarine tonnage within 52,700.

Neither France nor Italy is signatory to that section of the treaty limiting cruisers and auxiliary craft, and a safeguarding clause has, therefore, been inserted which will allow either of the three Powers to increase its program, the others increasing theirs proportionately, should a continental naval race develop.

France and Italy signed sections of the treaty fixing a capital ship holiday, prescribing rules of submarine warfare, and relating to less important phases of disarmament.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 22.—The naval treaty signed here today contains 26 articles and a preamble

The First Article deals with the undertaking of the contracting parties not to exercise the rights they acquired by the Washington treaty of 1922 in the matter of capital ship replacement and tonnage, this article in effect promulgating the so-called capital ship holiday for the life of the treaty.

Relinquishment of these rights is without prejudice to the right of replacing any ships which may be lost accidentally, or is without prejudice to the right of France and Italy to build replacement tonnage, as yet unbuilt, which the Washington treaty entitled them to build in 1927 and 1929.

In the Second Article of the treaty the United States agrees to rid itself of the battleships Florida, Utah and either the Arkansas or the Wyoming, while Great Britain abandons the Benbow, the Iron Duke, the Marlborough, the Emperor of India, and the Tiger, and Japan scraps the Hiyei.

The manner of scrapping these vessels, unless they are used as targets, is prescribed in the treaty, which also provides the time limits for scrapping.

The United States may keep the Arkansas or the Wyoming for training purposes, for which Great Britain may also retain the Iron Duke and Japan the Hiyei, subject to conditions defined in the treaty.

Aircraft Carrier Designation.

The Third Article gives a new definition of aicraft carriers, replacing that of the Washington treaty and conferring the designation of aircraft carried on any surface vessel of whatever displacement which is used exclusively for carrying aircraft and constructed so that aircraft can be launched from it and landed thereon.

No capital ship existing April 1 of this year may be fitted with a landing deck.

The Fourth Article prohibits acquirement or construction of any aircraft carrier of 10,000 tons or less mounting guns above 6.1-inch caliber. Armament on carriers is limited to articles 9 and 10 of the Washington treaty, or by the fifth article of the present treaty.

The Sixth Article determines the standard of displacement of surface vessels to be in accordance with the provisions of the Washington treaty, and prescribes in detail the standard of displacement for submarines.

In Article 7 the signatories agree not to acquire or construct any submarine exceeding 2000 tons displacement or with a gun above 5.1-inch caliber, subject to certain prescribed conditions, although they may retain such as they possess April 1, 1930.

Article 8 lays down that certain specified vessels are exempt from limitation, these being surface vessels of between 500 and 2000 tons.

Rules for Replacement.

Article 9 deals with rules for replacement and Article 10 provides for information to be given by each party to other parties to the treaty of vessels it is building, while Article 11 lays downs rules for disposal of abandoned vessels.

Certain vessels listed in the annex and described as "special vessels" are allowed under Article 12 to be retained, their tonnage not being included in the tonnage subject to limitations.

Of these, 14 are United States vessels, 21 are French, seven are British, seven Italian and eight are Japanese. It is provided in the same article that any other vessel built, adapted or acquired for the purposes for which these special vessels are retained shall be charged against the tonnage of an appropriate combatant category, unless conforming to the exempted vessels listed in Article Eight. Japan is allowed to replace two minelayers in the special list, under conditions and prescriptions affecting her other special vessels.

Under Article 13 the contracting parties are allowed to retain their existing stationary ships in nonseagoing condition.

The foregoing articles constitute two of the five parts into which the treaty is divided, both parts being subscribed to by the five great Powers. The third part comprises the agreement to which the United States, Great Britain and Japan alone are signatory.

Three-Power Agreement.

Article 14, which leads the third part, declares that the United States, the British Commonwealth, and Japan agree to limit for duration of the treaty their combatant vessels other than capital ships, aircraft carriers, and the vessels exempted under Article 8.

Article 15 contains a definition of cruisers and destroyers.

Cruisers are defined as "surface vessels of war other than capital ships or aircraft carriers, the standard displacement of which exceeds 1850 tons, or with a gun above 5.1 inch caliber."

The cruiser category is divided into two sub-categories mainly, those carying guns above 6.1-inch caliber and to those with guns below that size, respectively.

Destroyers are defined as "surface vessels, the standard displacement of which does not exceed 1850 tons, with guns not above 5.1-inch caliber."

The total tonnage in the cruiser, destroyer and submarine categories, which are not to be exceeded on Dec. 31, 1936, are given in Article 16, thus:

Cruisers with guns above 6.1-inch caliber are:

United States	180,000 tons
Great Britain	146,800 tons
Japan	108,400 tons

Cruisers with guns of 6.1 or less inch caliber:

United States	143,500 tons
Great Britain	192,200 tons
Japan	100,450 tons

Destroyers' tonnages are set at:

United States	150,000 tons
Great Britain	150,000 tons
Japan	105,500 tons

Submarine tonnage of each Power is set at 52,700 tons. Vessels which cause the total tonnage in any category to exceed the foregoing are to be disposed of gradually before Dec. 31, 1936.

The maximum number of cruisers in the first sub-category, in which the gun may exceed 6.1-inch caliber, shall be:

United States	18
Great Britain	15
Japan	12

Cruiser and Destroyer Tonnage.

In the destroyer category not more than 16 per cent of the total tonnage is to be employed in vessels of more than 1500 tons. Destroyers completed or under construction April 1 this year in excess of this percentage may be retained but no other destroyers exceeding 1500 tons shall be constructed or acquired until the reduction to 16 per cent is affected.

Not more than 25 per cent of the total cruiser tonnage may be fitted with aircraft decks.

Article 17 allows the transfer of tonnage between cruisers of the second sub-category and destroyers. But this is not to exceed 10 per cent of the category into which the transfer is made.

It is stated in Article 18 that the United States contemplates completion by 1935 of 15 cruisers of the first sub-category of an aggregate tonnage of 150,000. For each of the three remaining cruisers in this sub-category, the United States may substitute 15,166 tons of cruisers in the second sub-category.

In the event the United States constructs one or more such cruisers, the sixteenth unit will not be laid down before 1933 and won't be completed before 1936; the seventeenth will not be laid down before 1934 and will not be completed before 1937, while the eighteenth will not be laid down before 1935 and will not be completed before 1938.

Article 19 prescribes certain restrictions to laying down tonnage in the different categories, while Article 20 deals with disposal and replacement of certain British and Japanese vessels, and grants Japan the right to anticipate replacement by laying down 19,200 tons of submarines of which not more than 12,000 tons are to be completed before Dec. 31, 1936.

The Safeguarding Clause.

Article 21 contains the safeguarding clause, which, while it does not mention specifically France and Italy, was inserted to protect Great Britain against a continental building program involving those two Powers.

The clause states:

"If, during the term of the present treaty the requirements of national security of any high contracting party, in respect to vessels of war limited by Part Three of this treaty are, in the opinion of that party materially affected by new construction of any Power other than those who have joined in Part Three of this treaty, that party will notify the other parties to Part Three as to the increase required to be made in its own tonnages within one or more of the categories of such vessels, specifying particularly the proposed increases and reasons therefor, and shall be entitled to make such an increase.

"Thereupon the other parties to Part Three shall be entitled to make a proportionate increase and the said other parties shall promptly advise through diplomatic channels as to the situation thus presented."

The fourth chapter of the treaty

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

Our Faulty Election System.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE records of the last aldermanic elections show that the dominant party cast only 59 per cent of the votes, but elected all of its 14 aldermanic candidates. In other words, 41 per cent of the voters were essentially disfranchised.

Can this be called real democracy by any stretch of the imagination?

Can any scheme of government permanently survive without the tonic of a vigorous and active minority?

Is there not reason to believe that the much lamented absence of many voters from the polls arises in part from such disfranchisement?

Should political landslides be within the control of a tenth of the voters?

What to do? Adopt the Hare system of proportional representation. Then, if a community of 2000 Republicans, 2000 Democrats and 1000 Socialists is electing a council of five, those proportions will obtain in the final result.

May I add in closing that I use party labels merely for ease of illustration? The best thought is in unanimous agreement that city government problems are difficult enough and should be kept out of politics. At least that policy has been adopted in the nonpartisan ballot used for St. Louis' election of its Board of Education.

Making a Dry Laugh.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

"I HAD to laugh," says one of your dry readers, "when I read the ending of your editorial headed 'The Closing Prohibition Argument.'" I want to congratulate your editorial writer. A man must be good that can make a dry laugh these days.

TORY.

Notes on P. S. C. Report.

JUST gave some time to looking over the annual report to stockholders from the St. Louis Public Service Co., in which they whine and grieve over your treatment of them. That gives me a large laugh, so thought I would give your paper and editorial policy in that respect my two cents' worth of encouragement. After all, it is all one can do. I note on the last page where they have a dollar sliced up like pie for various expenditures that the net income slice of pie is 14.3; which they seem to think will leave the impression of being pitifully small and inadequate for their lovely treatment of their employes and their dear public. We only wish we knew where the heck we could get a 14.3 per cent return on our few dollars' backing.

I note on page 16 they had a fearful expenditure for track construction and reconstruction of almost 10 miles which is carefully arranged to appear to the unobserving and uninformed at about 97,000 miles. Those of their employes that glance through this report will probably do so in a haphazard manner, and lay it down with just the right frame of mind the company is trying to give them, and then defend the poor company from the unjust and unwarranted attacks so that it can go ahead and trim the whole city. Well, it's no use to work myself into a rage, as a mouse never could fight a lion, but anyhow, here's more power to you!

MRS. O. A. SCHMIDT.

Thinks Waterways Are Obsolete.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

APPARENTLY there are some sincere souls in the United States Senate determined to prevent the Federal Government from throwing away its good money in the assumption of control over the Erie Canal and the Illinois River waterway. Senator Vandenberg's declaration that the Senate will fight these proposals to the last ditch serves to inspire hope in the breasts of us who are of a mind that waterways have served their day of usefulness for agencies of transportation in great inland areas.

EDWIN ASHLEY LAMKE.

For a Wet-Dry Referendum.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE eighteenth amendment, the greatest feat of legerdemain ever pulled on a dumb people, begot the neatest parlor trick extant when the Prohi-Volstead act, with the guzzling drys in support, ripped the back room from the saloon and placed it in the home.

Now, as a grand climax, they are to stage a disappearing act. Jury trial is to exit along with other constitutional guarantees.

The wets in their coming show won't need sleight of hand to change this nation from a reformers' paradise to a sane organization. No magical formula will be necessary to cleanse the Constitution of the eighteenth amendment regardless of what the precedent-minded jurists would have us believe.

A popular vote is mandatory on Congress. If it isn't we have lost our birthright.

A workable system of control that will promote temperance is needed. A package law will only duplicate the act of Prohi-Volstead & Co.

TOM MARMON.

THE OHIO PRISON HORROR.

As Columbus discovered America, the prison horror at Columbus, O., last night, in which more than 300 prisoners died, should discover to the American people the folly of stuffing into these institutions from two to three times as many people as they were built to hold. The Columbus prison was built for 1500 prisoners, and it contained 4300.

After the pitched battle in the Colorado prison at Canon City, in which 12 men died and a considerable part of the prison was destroyed; a riot at the Auburn prison in New York, in which eight convicts were killed; a revolt at the Clinton prison in New York, in which three prisoners died; a rebellion in the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, in which one prisoner was killed; another riot in Rhode Island, in which two prisoners were killed, and a strike at the Missouri prison which resolved the penitentiary at Jefferson City into an armed camp, it is high time we were learning that even criminals are human beings and would rather die than submit to the incredible torture of overcrowding. In Ohio, the horrors of an incendiary fire made of the outbreak the worst prison mutiny in American history.

P. E. Thomas, Warden of the prison at Columbus, was one of those who answered a questionnaire recently sent out by the New York Sun. The Sun was interested in why the Columbus prison, like our own in Missouri, and like so many penal institutions in the United States, is so terribly overcrowded. Warden Thomas' answer was laconic. He said simply: "The reason for increased population, more coming in than going out." And what sort of place is it in which so many more are coming in than going out? The American Handbook of Prisons and Reformatories for 1929 says:

> The ancient plant at the State penitentiary at Columbus, one of the largest prisons in the country, suffers from a condition of overcrowding worse than that of any other large prison. The need of another institution in the Ohio penal system has been apparent for many years, but the State is only now taking steps to alleviate the condition. The situation should not be tolerated. Ohio, like many other states, has allowed its prison population to get far ahead of its building program, and the state of affairs becomes increasingly critical.

To study the picture of that hell-on-earth which the Handbook describes is to understand what happened at Columbus last night. It is to understand how the prisoners could at last set fire to the prison in several places, nothwithstanding many of them were to die by smoke and flame in their cells. They preferred death in fact to the living death in this house of horrors. The hope of escape in the excitement and confusion of fire was perhaps slight; but for even that slight hope the prisoners risked death rather than live under conditions which human nature has found intolerable.

The Handbook points out that, like our own overcrowded penitentiary in Missouri, much of the Ohio prison has no plumbing. It says the dormitories at Columbus are among the worst in the country. The mess halls are too small for all the people who seek to enter. The schoolrooms need renovation and repairs, and few of the shops come up to modern standards in construction and upkeep. Then, says the Handbook:

> The second striking characteristic of this prison is the idleness. Not only are the shops old, but they are overcrowded. Even so, there is not enough work for the large population, and from 1200 to 2000 men are on the idle list. Idleness is made more conspicuous here than in many prisons by the use of the "idle room," in which hundreds of men spend their days sitting on benches in absolute idleness, under the eyes of guards. This is better than keeping unassigned men in their cells, or in the dark and crowded dormitories; but no state should tolerate either condition. The degenerating effect of idleness needs no comment, nor does the economic folly of supporting hundreds of able-bodied men in idleness.

The Ohio prison was ripe for catastrophe. It was a volcano, bound in some way to blow its head off. It has been a stench in the nostrils of men for years. Investigators for the Handbook of American Prisons and Reformatories found the officials of the prison underpaid and sometimes conniving at the escape of prisoners for bribes. Some years ago there was another horror at the prison. A wooden dormitory burned, with shocking loss of life when the prisoners were unable to free themselves. A final graphic touch from the Handbook:

> A prison with a physical plant so bad and with idleness so prevalent cannot have a really good morale unless extraordinary steps are taken to counteract their effects. It would require a thorough survey of this prison, made with entire freedom from restriction, to determine to what extent Ohio is reaping the fruits that may reasonably be expected from conditions of grave overcrowding and idleness, and restricted space in an institution which has not grown away from the old ideas of penology to the degree that institutions have in many other states.

In 1926 the Handbook sharply criticised the Columbus prison for medieval disciplinary methods, such as the cage in the punishment cell, a torture now seldom encountered in any other American prison. Investigators for the Handbook say they were given less time by the prison officials really to investigate the prison than they were given by any other set of prison officials in the country. They were therefore unable fully to determine what the condition is. But they know now.

Meanwhile, prison populations in Great Britain are declining. In 16 years 27 penitentiaries upon the British Isles have been closed. It is a contrast which cannot fail to impress even so unthinking a people as ourselves.

LINDBERGH'S LATEST FLIGHT.

Lindbergh and success continue synonymous. Perhaps identical were the better word. What was projected has been done with characteristic craftsmanship. Could a transcontinental flight be made in shorter time in the upper air lanes? That was the question. The answer is, it can. The Colonel landed at Roosevelt Field 14 hours 45 minutes and 32 seconds after taking off at Glendale, Cal. The previous record of Capt. Hawks was cut down by almost three hours. The significance of this, from a transportation viewpoint, may be appreciated by recalling the fact that Harriman did not hesitate about spending $20,000,000 to save an hour in the coast-to-coast railroad schedule.

There was nothing glamorous in the latest Lindbergh flight, in which Mrs. Lindbergh shared the honors and duties. It was strictly business, an experiment conducted in the quest for greater efficiency. Characteristic, too, was Lindbergh's assertion that nothing conclusive had been established. Numerous flights across the country at higher altitudes will have to be made before adequate data are obtained and the practicability of the plan determined. All this, however, emphasizes the truth that aviation is doffing the spangles of sport and putting on the workaday clothes of industry.

Exit drama. Enter progress.

HOW TO BEAT CONSOLIDATION.

Difficult at best, the consolidation plan for St. Louis and St. Louis County can be sent to certain defeat by loading it up with such jokers as that proposed for the protection of the St. Louis County Water Co. The text of the recommendation made by a subcommittee to the City and County Metropolitan Development Committee is as follows:

> It is recommended that the metropolitan government have authority (not necessarily exercised) to acquire, take over, own, manage and control as one unified system the municipally and privately owned waterworks systems now in existence in the metropolitan area.
> That the privately owned companies now in existence in the metropolitan area may be acquired by agreement at a valuation determined by the Missouri Public Service Commission, and unless acquired, in the meantime there shall be no competition or duplication of plant facilities or service within the area now served by the present privately owned companies and the municipally owned plants for a period of 15 years.

In other words, the city of St. Louis could not furnish communities in the county with cheap water from the municipal plant at Howard's Bend because the people who have just purchased the county water plant at more than $3,000,000 in excess of the valuation given it by the State Commission would be estopped from making good the exploitation of the property and might find themselves holding the bag. The county communities are at this time free to buy water where they can buy it the cheapest, but this scheme proposes to tie them up with the county water company and make them pay the high rates that would result from a swollen valuation.

If the General Committee on Consolidation is really interested in creating a metropolitan area it will reject this and every other proposal to make the consolidation the means of tying the people of St. Louis and St. Louis County up with profiteers. St. Louis has had abundant testimony as to how this works out from the deliberations of the Transportation Survey Commission. The president of the street railway sits on the commission, and whenever it moves it is as if he directed it. For two years the commission has devoted its time and strength to trying to get a franchise for the people who hope to exploit the street railway property. The proposal from the subcommittee to take care of the county water company in the consolidation is a cut of the same cloth. The president of the company sold the joker to the committee, and he could not have done better had he written the report himself.

Neither the people of St. Louis nor those of St. Louis County are interested in the financial fortunes of the men who have just paid $8,350,000 for a property which the Public Service Commission says is worth $5,303,339. The new owners are under the aegis of a giant Eastern holding company whose thoughts are far from the domestic welfare of our numerous and almost metropolitan selves. Only blindness could lead such growing suburbs as University City, Webster Groves and Kirkwood into the clutches of exploiters and high rates when the municipal water plant at Howard's Bend is at their service and can furnish them all the water they need at less than half what those communities are paying now.

ONE PEACE PACT BLOWS UP.

Last week we pointed out that Chicago gangsters, under the leadership of Al Capone, had held a peace parley. Al, armed with an olive branch, was superb and convincing as the Ramsay MacDonald of the underworld. It looked as though Chicago was on the threshold of a new era in which it was to be robbed, swindled and terrorized by one big gang instead of a lot of little ones. But hardly had the echoes of the parley died away when, early on Easter morning, three Caponeites were shot to death in the Blue Hour saloon. No doubt the shooting was over some point left unsettled by the conference, possibly the Mediterranean problem. In any case, the announcement of peace was a bit premature, and it looks as though Al will be forced to break what he terms his "well-deserved rest" in Florida to get back on the firing line. Better luck to the London pact and the Miller-Koeln treaty.

DRINKING TO DEAR OLD MAINE.

Heidelberg has long been known as the place where merry students thump steins on the table and sing robust marching songs, but it now has a formidable American rival in this line. And, strangely, that rival is the university of the first dry State. Every radio listener, dancer, diner-out or movie goer now knows just what the young men at Maine drink to, or drank to, foaming steins in hand. Why this song, for 26 years sung locally, should suddenly sweep the country, has been somewhat of a mystery. Of course, Rudy Vallee revived it, but there is nothing Vallee-esque about the song, since it doesn't deal with lonely troubadours or vagabond lovers, isn't built for saxophone tootling and has to be shouted rather than crooned. It caught on despite Mr. Vallee, not because of him—the vigorous swing of the anthem put it over. But why was it dug up after all these years?

The theatrical sheet, Variety, has gone to work on the mystery, and announces the answer. The National Broadcasting Co., having made a claim that "radio as a song-plugger tops all other mediums," sought to make good on the boast. It chose the Maine song, of which not a copy had been sold in 20 years, and gave Vallee the job of "plugging" it. Song-plugging was once a lowly art, practiced in vaudeville theaters, cafes and stores. Radio demonstrated its publicizing ability by selling 250,000 copies of the resurrected song in two weeks.

This makes it necessary to revise the old saw to say that as Maine and the radio go, so goes the nation. The scientists, by their long, arduous labors in perfecting radio, have given the nation its best song-plugging medium.

TURNED BACK.

Fascism's 11 Years

Mussolini's warning of grave difficulties still lying before his forces indicates trend of affairs in Italy; Saturday Evening Post, called by labor editor dictator's "greatest booster" in English language, now prints article by Marcosson criticising him; American bankers already knew these facts, and are tightening the purse strings.

From the Advance, Organ of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

THE news from Italy regarding the celebration there in honor of the eleventh anniversary of the founding of the Fascist movement should be particularly interesting both to those who have helped create the Mussolini myth in this country and to the few writers who have carefully followed all the events in Italy for the last decade and have placed the truth regarding the dictator's eight-year reign before the people of the United States.

The message of the dictator which was read to his followers in 92 cities, the capitals of all the Provinces, indicates that he considers it necessary at this time to rally all his "faithful veterans," warning them that while "Fascism has conquered difficulties of all sorts, many others, no less grave, still lie before us. This imposes even more peremptorily the commandment of discipline and order, so that the Italian people and Fascism may become even more closely merged." The dictator joined this appeal to his "veterans" with the statement that they were being joined now "with youth only just entering life, a fact typifying the unity between two ages and two historical moments, the past and the future of the nation. . . . Retrograde forces in coalition against young Fascist Italy do not distueb us."

There was the usual bombast running throughout the message, such as a "motto which the Black Shirts proudly wrote on the bandages over their wounds." It is needless to state the dictator said nothing regarding those whom Fascists had maimed and murdered in the process of establishing his rule.

This message of Mussolini should be read in the light of an article that recently appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, written by Isaac Marcosson. This magazine has been the greatest booster for the Italian dictator of any channel of publicity in the English language. A few years ago Marcosson praised Mussolini to the skies and wrote in almost awesome admiration of what he had accomplished. He pictured improved conditions in Italy at the very time the Advance was printing facts regarding business and the conditions of the working class in Italy which showed an entirely different sort of Italy than that which Marcosson was presenting to millions of readers in this country.

Marcosson, of course, was not alone in the printing of panegyrics of the dictator, nor in making prophecies of the great future of Italy under his continued rule. The facts which the Advance has printed, for a period of six years, were ignored by all these writers.

Now comes Marcosson and in the leading article of March 15, which was profusely illustrated, shows how Mussolini has been marshaling the youth of his land in support of his dictatorship, and arraigns his rule as a failure. The reasons Marcosson gives for Mussolini's failure are a composite record of the happenings in Italy which for years we have been pointing out here. Marcosson tries to let himself and the Saturday Evening Post down by explaining Mussolini's failure on the ground that he had gone too far and held arbitrary power too long. In 1926 the Advance stated that that was just what was going to happen.

Marcosson claims there is great resentment against Mussolini's rule throughout Italy, which is kept from coming to the surface only through the iron censorship exerted by the dictator. In his former articles, when the censorship was just as bad, Marcosson had nothing to say about it of any moment, and when he did slightly touch upon it, the inference was that it was justified in view of the situation in which the dictator found himself. In short, Marcosson's first position was that all of the things for which the dictator was being criticised were being done for the good of the people. Now, when the efforts of a few writers have finally been successful in presenting the real story of the dictator's rule, the Saturday Evening Post begins to sing an entirely different tune.

It has been some time since we have devoted so much space to the case of Italy. What was happening there was mostly a reiteration of what had happened before. The changing sentiment, however, in the United States in the last year regarding the Italian dictatorship we consider very significant, believing that it presages a radical change in Italian affairs in the comparatively near future.

What is news to the people of this country, however, regarding the dictator's rule, is not news to the bankers. Wall street has known for some time that all was not well there. This knowledge brought about a tightening of the purse strings. This tightening the dictator is feeling very much, and it will doubtless affect certain changes in his policy that nothing else could do.

More Toll Bridges Abolished

From the New Orleans Times-Picayune.

A TELEGRAM from Austin, Tex., announces that all preliminary details have been arranged for the construction of three modern bridges across Red River that separates Texas from Oklahoma, and that contracts for their building will be awarded shortly. The report continues: "For many years highway travelers between the two states have been forced to pay private bridge companies tolls for crossing the river. It was in response to many complaints against this tax burden that the highway authorities of the two states decided to construct free bridges to replace the present toll bridges between Denison, Tex., and Durant, Ok.; between Ringgold, Tex., and Terral, Ok.; and between Gainesville, Tex., and Marietta, Ok. One other toll bridge will also be abolished as a result of the construction of the three free bridges; namely, that spanning Red River between Preston, Tex., and Madill, Ok." The Texas action is in line with recent congressional proposals to free the Federal aid highways as quickly as possible of private profit toll bridge embarrassments.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, April 22.

ON private calendar day in the House of Representatives three men rule supreme. Newspaper men refer to them as the "wrecking crew." Johnny Tilson, the Republican floor boss, proudly refers to them as his "three musketeers."

The three—Harry Rowbottom of Indiana, Sam Arentz of Nevada and Carl Bachmann of West Virginia—are those gentlemen who make sure that no bill passes the House unless it has unquestioned merit.

Approximately eight of every 10 bills introduced in the House go on the private calendar. Many of these do not have a chance in the world of being enacted into law. Nor do their authors hope for passage when they are introduced. A Congressman must do many things for political expediency.

It is the job of the "three musketeers" to keep an eye on this calendar, and separate the good from the bad; permit the good to go on their legislative way, make sure that the bad are relegated to oblivion.

ROWBOTTOM is the "chief wrecker" or, as Tilson calls him, the "chief musketeer." This youthful, mild-mannered Hoosier has been commissioned with authority to wreck any bill he chooses. He is now serving his second Congress in this capacity. Arentz and Bachmann are new to the game.

The three sit at the Republican leaders' table in the center of the chamber. The bills up for consideration on that day are divided equally among them. As soon as the clerk has read the title of the first bill, "Chief Musketeer" Rowbottom arises. If it has been decided that the bill has merit he says nothing. But if the reverse is true, then the "chief musketeer" fires: "Mr. Speaker, I object."

If he is challenged by the author of the bill, Rowbottom will make a few words of explanation. This is merely for courtesy's sake, for that particular bill has been wrecked beyond repair.

WHEN the title of the second bill is read, "Musketeer No. 2" goes through the same procedure. And so does "Musketeer No. 3" with the third bill. This system enables the "musketeers" to keep one jump ahead of their colleagues. While Rowbottom is disposing of one bill, Arentz is mapping out his plan of attack on another, and Bachmann on still another.

A wary eye must be kept on the free lance "musketeers." There are several of these in the House, and they are just as capable "wreckers" as are Tilson's. Every so often Rowbottom is compelled to turn his guns on these free lancers to insure the passage of worthy legislation.

The Democrats also have a "wrecking crew," but they find it the best policy to keep on good terms with the "three musketeers." Ross Collins of Mississippi, Arthur Greenwood of Indiana and Dave O'Connell of New York do the "wrecking" for the minority when there is any to be done.

Of Making Many Books

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

THE NEW GENERATION. Edited by V. F. Calverton and Samuel D. Schmalhausen. With an Introduction by Bertrand Russell. (The Macaulay Co., New York. $5.)

THIRTY-FIVE wise and learned writers, including Sherwood Anderson and Alfred Kreymborg, have contributed to this exhaustive symposium on the changing relation between parent and child; sexuality, homo, hetero, auto and pregenital; the natural wrongness and folly of parents; the equally natural rightness and wisdom of babes and the epicene generally—and everything up-to-date along that line. At one time we learn of the horror of spiritual starvation suffered by husbands and wives who are restrained from indulgence in promiscuity by that major devil of our modern demonology. Puritanism. Again we are made to realize how frightfully unjust it is to thrust papas and mammas on helpless little children. It's unscientific, and no less a seer than Dr. John B. Watson, the eminent gutologist, who removed the psyche from psychology, tells why and how the matter will be handled in that glowing future of progress consummated, belief in which is perhaps the dominant twentieth century superstition. Prof. Terman tells just how he goes about it to pick out a genius with his tests, though in the matter of defining genius he seems hardly convincing. Perhaps something escapes his mechanism. Perhaps there is a vast mass of extremely important data on the subject that, as an orthodox scientist, he is bound to ignore.

In the main, it is not wholly unreasonable to suspect that this book, like so many others that tumble constantly from the presses, is largely a rationalization of the prevailing mood of the time. That it contains some truth can not be questioned by anyone who has not spent his life in a trunk; but, the relationing of that fragmentary truth and the deductions drawn therefrom may make curious reading for a not impossible saner generation on the other side of some social showdown toward which we are moving.

QUAINT AND QUOTABLE SAYINGS AND INCIDENTS. By Nicholas Nichols. (Stratford Co., Boston, $2.)

BALM IN GILEAD. By Helene Mullins (Harpers, N. Y., $2.).

Miss Mullins is a young American poet of some achievement and promise. The following sonnet is fairly typical of her quality and technique:

Untrue it is to say that poverty
Is good for the soul to suffer and to know,
Untrue to call it sweet and heavenly,
Though Jesus and Saint Francis found it so;
For they were poets, and young; to other men,
The daily needs unsatisfied, repressed,
Are blunted pins to wound and wound again.
The soul distressed within the flesh distressed
Grows timid and perverse; the flowering field
Is but a patch of ground whereon to crawl,
And men are despots angered at a shield
Raised up against them: few are they that thrust
Their rags aside and grow upright and tall—
The many die, face downward, in the dust.

LONDON IS A MAN'S TOWN. By Helen Josephy and Mary Margaret McBride. (Coward-McCann, N. Y. $3.)

a Conquest in Electric Refrigeration

Less parts—more value—is the short story of the Norge conquest. The Norge Rollator (cold making unit or compressor) has no pistons, piston rings, piston rods or other complex parts. It is irresistibly simple—a roller turning in a cylinder—a perfected and exclusive type of rotary—proven for years in world-wide use. Here is simplicity that brings a legitimate economy—big enough for you to see at once—passed on to you in the charming appearance—extra features—and choice craftsmanship of Norge cabinets. So the Norge Refrigerators are sweeping across the field—an army of conquest—bearing standards of higher value and lower price. See them—know them. They are ready for your inspection.

MUNY OPERA CHORUS CANDIDATES TRYOUT

Tests Being Made at Shubert-Rialto Theater—Veterans of Other Seasons in Group.

Candidates for the Municipal Opera chorus are being selected this week in try-outs at the Shubert-Rialto Theater. About 200 were present yesterday and similar groups are scheduled for today, tomorrow and Wednesday.

From these will be selected the 60 girls and 24 men who will be in the chorus. The number will be supplemented for some shows, including the opening attraction, "Nina Rosa," which will be presented May 30. Twenty of the original chorus will be brought here to add their voices to those of the local talent.

In the group that "oh-ed" and ah-ed" through the musical scale yesterday were many veterans of other Municipal Theater seasons who faced the test with composure and lent confidence to others whose vocal accomplishments have not yet been appreciated by an audience larger than may be accommodated in the average living room.

The veterans had a confident nod and smile from David Russell, business manager of the theater, but searched the unfamiliar and inscrutable countenances of Lew Morton and Giuseppe Bamboschek, stage and musical directors, for an inkling of the impression they were making.

In the singing try-outs each girl was called alone to the big bare stage of the theater while her rivals grinned at her from the auditorium. William Howard, associate musical director, sounded a few bars on the piano and she was asked to follow the notes. Seated at a table across the stage, Morton peered at each from beneath the peak of his cap and conferred with Bamboschek before penciling a rating opposite the candidate's name.

Those who could both sing and dance later were given dancing trials, and another group was formed of those who could dance but not sing. Morton put them through their paces, calling for straight kicks, side kicks, back kicks, splits and cartwheels, until the dancers were breathless.

Final selections will not be made until after Thursday, when the last group is scheduled to appear. Milton I. Shubert, general productions manager, will arrive from New York in time to attend the later try-out sessions.

The Municipal School for training the chorus was abandoned this years to give a wider range of selection. In other years only those who attended the training school regularly were eligible and many girls in moving picture theater choruses, who could not attend the school, had no chance.

This year a number of these trained chorus girls have registered as candidates. One group of 10, which returned only last week after making a moving picture theater circuit, was present yesterday.

PATRONS VOTE TO APPLAUD PHILADELPHIA SYMPHONY

They Defeat, 700 to 200, Conductor Stokowski's Plan to Bar Hand-Clapping.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 22.—The suggestion of Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra, that audiences refrain from showing appreciation of his music by applause has been voted down. Hand-clapping will remain the vogue, he said today, and an announcement to that effect will be made at the next concert Friday.

Results of a questionnaire sent to 1000 orchestra subscribers showed that about 700 were in favor of applauding. About 200 were in favor of the director's proposal.

"The matter will rest right here," Stokowski said. "I agree to abide by the vote of the subscribers."

Interesting visitors over the week-end were Mrs. Reinhard Siedenburg of New York, and her debutante daughter, Miss Kathryn Siedenburg, who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burns, 30 Lenox place. The visitors have been spending the winter in Florida, and traveled through the Panama Canal on their way to California, where they have been for several weeks. They arrived in St. Louis Sunday morning, and left yesterday, on their way to New York.

600 RESERVATIONS FOR JUNIOR LEAGUE BALL

Annual Charity Event to Be Held Next Friday Evening.

More than 600 reservations at $10 a guest have been made for the annual charity ball of the Junior League, "A Night in Montmartre," Friday evening at Hotel Jefferson.

Attendance is expected to equal or exceed the 1000 guests of last year. Two orchestras have been engaged, so that guests may dance in the crystal room as well as the gold room, where Parisian entertainment will be provided by 50 members of the Junior League.

The young women have been rehearsing for months in an effort to make the affair as profitable in enjoyment for the guests as in funds for the league's charities. On the costumes and talents of these 50 young women, and a striking decorative scheme, the affair will depend for all its atmosphere, for the guests will wear conventional dinner clothes.

Decorations will be in gold, black and red. Hundreds of balloons will bob about the chandeliers. Huge, grotesque masks will hang from the balcony. Many costumes will be in keeping with the ultra-modern spirit of the affair, but others will be old-fashioned. There is, for example, a dancing chorus in long skirts and pantalets.

One phase of the entertainment has been kept a secret. It is the feature song, winner of a $50 prize in a national contest held by the league for this occasion. It will be sung by Marion Niedringhaus.

Among ultra-modern features are the costumes of the first act — a fashion show. Twelve West End shops will show their latest. The mannikins will be 30 members of the league.

A "valse caprice" by Mrs. D. R. Calhoun and Junior Boehmer will precede the appearance of the dancing chorus of eight young women, who have been acquiring a professional finish in the Italian ballroom of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Faust.

The "Dolly Sisters" will be represented by Mrs. Ira E. Wight Jr. and Mrs. Donald Bixby. A tap-dance will present four girls and four men in flame-like costumes. The finale will reproduce in costume "the story of the dance."

Dinner will be served at 8 o'clock and the fashion show will begin at 9:30. Reservations may be made or tickets obtained at Junior League headquarters, 4914 Maryland avenue, Delmar 2109, and at the cigar stand in the lobby of Hotel Jefferson.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 22.

THE most pathetically forlorn New Yorkers are the newly rich. Yearly hundreds who strike an oil gusher in the back yard or are caught up in the rising tide of real estate and stock market booms descend upon the town to indulge in a spending splurge.

They occupy elaborate quarters in luxurious hotels, purr about in limousines, attend operas, first nights and patronize the most exclusive tailors, modistes and cafes. They seem to have everything in the world. But money will not buy loyal friendships.

The nouveaux riche are magnets for the professional wastrels who accept hospitality with a tongue-in-cheek fervor. They are the cadgers who would, without such largesse, have to go to work. Instead, they are able to live handsomely by guile of flattery.

Sudden and easily gained wealth invariably inspires a greater extravagance than will be found among those born to riches. Such fortunates entertain on a more lavish scale and are less particular in choice of guests. Some have free dinners, free teas and the like for all comers, several times a week.

There is one middle-aged couple in an upper Fifth avenue hotel who have for several years held "open house" on Saturday afternoon and evening. At the cocktail hour it is not unusual to have four bartenders shaking up drinks for the thirsty bums and bumesses.

Some 50 or 60 always take advantage of the standing invitation to remain for dinner. A five-piece orchestra is on tap. Half the time the host and hostess have not even a bowing acquaintance with the majority of guests. The parties cost more than $1000 a week.

Multiply this by thousands and you have an idea of the rich pickings for metropolitan gleaners. The new rich would be far happier among real friends in their own communities. But they are smug in the notion they are thrilling New York, whereas they are only targets for ridicule.

A PROFESSORIAL attendant in an art gallery answered a telephone ring the other morning and received this query: "Does any of youse mugs want to buy an erl paintin'. It's the McCoy!"

The startled attendant managed to inquire if it was a nude. "Naw," was the reply, "it is a naked huzzy sittin' on a cake of ice.'

SIGN in a Broadway drug store: "Use our polish for your bar rails."

LA COUR de New York: A lop-sided heart, chalked upon the sidewalk in front of the Forty-second street entrance of the Grand Central announces: "Izzy loves Mamie.'

A SCHOOL on the East Side specializes in correspondence courses on the "art of making love" has failed. And, following custom, blames the movies.

SELF-CONSCIOUSNESS plays queer tricks. The other day I was admitted to the barnlike office of a business executive—one of those hawk-like autocrats who looks at a person searchingly. He sat at the far end of the room while I walked toward him. I completely forgot what I came about when I reached his desk. And did not remember until at least six blocks away.

IT IS in such moments of utter mental vacuity that it strikes me it would be perfectly dandy to have a heavy black silken mustache to twirl.

PERSONAL nomination for the shrillest telephone voice in New York—That of Roy W. Howard.

A TAILOR—and I'll have no clothes of his tailoring—writes: "You may be bowlegged or knock-kneed, but it means nothing to us."

So long as he feels that way, he can be all cluttered up with seed warts and it won't break our heart, either.

$20,000 DESIGN ON DISPLAY

Chicago War Memorial Entries Shown at Art Museum.

A collection of drawings submitted in the competition held by the city of Chicago for a war memorial to be erected in Grant Park has been placed on exhibition at City Art Museum in Forest Park.

First prize of $20,000 was awarded last January to Eric Gugler and Roger Bailey of New York, who submitted a severely simple rectangular design formed by six stone columns on each side, surmounted by an unadorned cornice.

Forty of the 126 designs submitted are included in the group at the Museum. The exhibit will remain there until the end of the month.

BROOKFIELD, Mo., April 22.—Amid stormy scenes, the Brookfield City Council last night passed an ordinance permitting Sunday moving picture shows. Woman's work is quicker done with HRH

THE MASTER CLEANER

Knocks out the old adage that "Woman's work is 'never' done." The right proportion of HRH in water as per directions, takes the "labor" out of cleaning Painted Walls, Woodwork, Marble, Tile, Porcelain, Linoleum, etc. If you have never used HRH, buy a package or two at your store that sells Cleaners and you'll be surprised how easily and quickly it does your House Cleaning work.

This may give YOUR CHILD a pleasing face

AROUND six years of age a child cuts four teeth which directly affect the shape of her face. They are called the six-year molars. Don't let your child neglect these important molars — or any of her baby teeth. The health of her permanent teeth depends largely upon the care given her first teeth.

Thousands of mothers consider Squibb's Dental Cream the finest dentifrice for children. It contains no grit, no astringents, nothing to injure the gums or teeth. And because it contains 50% Squibb's Milk of Magnesia, it renders harmless the germ acids which are the cause of tooth decay. Ask your dentist about the six-year molars. He will probably tell you, at the same time, to use Squibb's Dental Cream.

U. S. JUDGE BEFORE HOUSE COMMITTEE

Tennessee Jurist, Under Inquiry, Meets Investigators in Secret Session.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Informal investigation into the official conduct of Federal Judge Harry B. Anderson of the Western Tennessee District was completed yesterday by a House Judiciary Sub-Committee named to determine whether further inquiry is warranted.

Judge Anderson met in a closed conference with the sub-committee, headed by LaGuardia, (Rep.) of New York, who initiated the inquiry. His attorneys, Charles M. Bryan and Walter Armstrong, both of Memphis, also were heard.

Congressmen Sumners of Texas, and Browning of Tennessee, Democrats, the other members of the group, said they were ready to report their conclusions to the full committee, but declined to make known what they were.

It was disclosed that the subcommittee had conducted a secret inquiry for more than two weeks and had called several persons from Tennesssee to testify. Among the witnesses was Bartlett Tully of Memphis, prominent lumberman.

The voluntary appearance of Judge Anderson before the committee was an unusual procedure. Senator McKellar and Congressman Fisher, Democrats, of Tennessee, were instrumental in obtaining the hearing for Anderson.

LIMITATION AND CUT IN NAVAL ARMAMENT IN LONDON TREATY

deals with submarines, and contains a single article, No. 22. This article propounds the doctrine of "humanization" of submarine warfare and says that the following are accepted as established rules of international law:

"First, in their action with regard to merchant ships, submarines must conform to rules of international law to which surface vessels are subject; second, in particular, except in case of persistent refusal to stop on being duly summoned, or of active resistance to visits and search, a warship, whether surface vessel or submarine, may not sink or render incapable of navigation a merchant vessel, without having first placed passengers and crew, and ship's papers in a place of safety.

"For this purpose a ship's boats are not regarded as a place of safety, unless the safety of passengers and crew is assured in the existing sea and weather conditions by the proximity of land or the presence of another vessel which is in the position to take them aboard. The high contracting parties invite all other Powers to express assent to the above rules."

The fifth and last part of the treaty deals with its duration and its ratification. Its first clause, Article 23, specifies Dec. 31, 1936, as the terminal date, except that Part Four shall remain operative without the time limit, and that Articles, 3, 4, 5, 11 and the annex relating to aircraft carriers shall be effective for the same period as the Washington treaty.

The article further states that unless the parties agree otherwise by reason of a more general agreement limiting naval armaments to which they are all parties, they shall meet again in 1935 to frame a new treaty replacing and carrying out the purposes of the present treaty, it being understood that none of the present provisions will prejudice any of them.

Ratification is decreed by Article 24 to be in accordance with the respective constitutional methods of the signatories, the ratifications to be deposited in London as soon as possible. The treaty will come into force when the last of these ratifications has been deposited.

The rights and obligations of Part Three are limited to the United States, Great Britain and Japan, who will agree respecting the date and conditions under which the obligations of that part will bind them in relation to France and Italy, such agreement determining the obligation of France and Italy to the other three.

According to Article 25, next to the final clause in the treaty, after all ratifications have been deposited, Great Britain will communicate Part Four to all nonsignatory Powers, inviting them to concur in it, this being the section relating to humanization of submarines.

The present treaty, in accordance with Article 26, will be in the keeping of the British Government, certified copies to be transmitted to the other signatories.

What is as good as gold?

You sometimes hear that some other loaf is "as good as Bond Bread." When people want to speak in the highest terms of anything, they say that "it is as good as gold." Of course, it is not as good as gold unless it is gold, and no bread can be as good as Bond Bread unless it is Bond Bread.

TARIFF CONFEREES BAR GOODS MADE BY FORCED LABOR

However, Only Foreign Competitive Articles Are Affected by Committee's Compromise.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 22. — All foreign competitive goods made by forced or indentured labor would be barred from entry into the United States under a compromise reached today by Congressional conferees on the tariff bill.

The Senate amendment prohibiting entry of all articles mined or manufactured abroad by forced labor after Jan. 1, 1932, was revised to apply only to goods in competition with American products.

"In no case," the agreement adopted reads, "shall such provisions be applicable to goods, wares, articles or merchandise so mined, produced or manufactured which are not mined, produced or manufactured in such quantities in the United States as to meet the consumptive demands of the United States."

The Senate provision liberalizing present restrictions on importation of foreign literature regarded as seditious or obscene by placing in the Federal courts instead of customs officials the power to pass final judgment on entry was among the changes approved.

The conferees, however, eliminated the Senate amendment to create a consumers' counsel in the Tariff Commission with power to participate in and initiate proceedings before that body for tariff rate changes.

The export debenture, legislative flexible tariff, Tariff Commission reorganization and prohibition on entry of goods made by forced or indentured labor were all passed over after brief discussion of each provision. The Senate conferees have decided not to recede on the debenture and executive flexible tariff repeal amendments without coming back to the Senate for instructions.

Report Expected This Week.

So much progress was made by the tariff adjusters in composing their less controversial differences that a report to the two houses is expected this week.

The action of the Senate conferees in allowing the consumers' counsel amendment to be stricken from the bill brought a protest from Senator Harrison of Mississippi, one of the Democratic conferees.

"The Senate conferees dealt a death blow to the consumers," the Mississippian said, "when the only provision in the whole bill mentioning the word consumer and holding out the slightest hope to him was strucken out."

"Not only did the Republican members of the House Conference Committee refuse to let the House vote on it," he said, "but the Senate conferees representing the majority side quickly receded and refused even to take the amendment back for another vote."

The consumers' counsel provision was incorporated in the bill by the Senate coalition of Democrats and Republican independents. Senator George (Dem.), Georgia, was its author. It would have stationed a $10,000-a-year attorney in the Tariff Commission with a term of four years.

Other Changes Made.

The conferees accepted the Senate amendment directing the Tariff Commission to translate and report to Congress by Jan. 1, 1932, the ad valorem rates in the bill from a foreign to a valuation basis, with no change in protection up or down. This is aimed to prevent undervaluations by foreign shippers and importers.

Other changes in the present law approved would:

Authorize the United States to enter into reciprocal agreements with foreign countries looking to free entry of advertising matter, except that printed abroad, advertising goods made in this country, sent through the mails to individual addresses.

Exempt foreign articles from the "country of origin" marking requirement.

Direct the Tariff Commission to ascertain for Congress the approximate average cost per barrel during the last three years of crude petroleum delivered to Atlantic seaboard refiners from American fields and the present cost on deliveries from Lake Maracaibo, Venezuela, to the same points.

Make conclusive the decision of the President in excluding articles from entry where unfair methods are disclosed.

Provide a fine of $1000 or a year in prison for any one interfering with or influencing the members of the Tariff Commission.

"THE TWELFTH DISCIPLE" PLAYED AT LITTLE THEATER

The Little Theater of St. Louis presented Mrs. Ernest Sachs' "The Twelfth Disciple," a Biblical drama of Judas Iscariot, last night, in the Little Theater, Union boulevard and Enright avenue. .. ....

The play, first enacted last November, will be given three more nights, and on May 16 it will be presented at the Waldorf Theater in New York. It tells the story of Judas, not in his accepted character of betrayer, but as the "deliverer" of Christ. Charles Dillon gave a sympathetic interpretation of the role.

$500,000 IN LIQUOR, SEIZED BY U. S., ORDERED RETURNED

New York Federal Judge Holds Raid Was Made Without Justification.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 22.—A half million dollars worth of liquor, seized in February, 1929, was ordered returned yesterday by Federal Judge William Bondy, who ruled the seizure had been made without legal warrant or justification.

The liquor was taken from the office of the International Postal Supply Co., of which James M. McCunn was president in Prospect Place, Brooklyn.

Books, records and alleged lists of customers, taken from the office of the Monroe Lamp and Equipment Co., in West Fourteenth street also were ordered returned to McCunn, who was vice president of that firm.

McCunn was a wine and liquor dealer before prohibition. His trial last Fall ended in a mistrial when it was discovered one of the jurors was related to McCunn by marriage.

Busses Likely in Aurora.

AURORA, Ill., April 22.—Indications that busses would replace street cars in this city was seen yesterday when representatives of the Aurora, Elgin & Fox River Electric Co. appeared before the City Council and asked permission to amend their franchise to substitute the motor vehicles.

DOLL CAUSES ARREST OF P. O. ORDER FORGER

Federal Agent Traces Two Men Through Remark to Little Girl.

"I have a little girl just about your age. I bought a doll for her yesterday for $17 and sent it to her last night."

That remark, to a small girl in St. Joseph, Mo., 10 days ago, led to the arrest in Wichita, Kan., yesterday, of the man who made it, and a companion. They are charged with having stolen 200 postoffice money order blanks and with having forged about 70 of them, made out for $60 apiece.

The arrested men are Raymond E. Fay, purchaser of the doll, and Fred Lippman, both of Milwaukee, Wis. They were taken into custody by Postoffice Inspector Frank Flora, who had been following them since January. Flora telegraphed news of the arrest to Fred Reuter, Postoffice Inspector in Charge at St. Louis, and Reuter disclosed details of the hunt.

A full book of money order blanks was stolen from the postoffice at National Home, Wis., last January, Reuter said. The place is a Federal sanitarium for ex-service men, near Milwaukee. After a short time money orders from the stolen book began to come in from various parts of the East. Flora followed the men to Buffalo, to Utica, N. Y., to Gray, Ind., Chicago and St. Louis. Here, in March, five forged orders were cashed. The men moved on to St. Joseph.

Their mode of operation in each town was to engage rooms at a boarding house early in the week, become acquainted with other persons there and on Saturday cash the money orders after their new friends had identified them. Most of the orders were cashed at department stores or mail order houses.

Flora arrived in St. Joseph just after the men had departed, leaving no forwarding address. He learned that the woman operator of a boarding house had identified the two men and he questioned her. In the course of the questioning, the woman remembered one of her boarders had talked about dolls to her small daughter.

Flora canvassed all of the St. Joseph stores that sold dolls. Finally he found where a doll had been sold for $17 on the day previous to the man's conversation at the boarding house.

An examination of the parcel post records for the next day showed that only one doll had been mailed out of St. Joseph. It was addressed to Faith Fay, at an address in Milwaukee. Flora hurried to Milwaukee and had the outgoing mail from the house where Faith Fay lived, watched. Last Sunday someone there wrote a letter to Raymond E. Fay at a Wichita address. Flora went to Wichita and the arrest followed.

Irritated Toes Healed Quickly Now

Millions Have This Infection. It Is Spreading Fast. Examine Your Feet at Once.

This ailment occurs mostly as itching, scalding, peeling, cracking skin between or under the toes. It is also evidenced as tiny, itchy, watery blisters along the sole, sides of the foot, about the toes and fingers which eventually develop into dry scaly, crusty patches, usually itchy. Millions have this infection at present but few know what it is. Medical knowledge is recent. It is now known as Trichophytosis or Ringworm of the feet and hands. It is caused by picking up a parasite known as Tinea Trichophyton somewhere with your bare feet or hands. The well or ill, weak or strong, old or young catch this parasite. The malady is spreading fast even to the children. TRYCO, a new ivory-white cream, destroys this parasite and quickly heals this condition. Try TRYCO today. Your money back guarantee. ATTACK ON FLOOD CONTROL POLICIES BARRED IN SUITS

Judge Faris Reminds Attorney or Landowner That Congress, Not Jury Will Pass on Plan.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., April 22.—A jury in Federal Court here today was told by special Government Counsel John C. Dyott that its duty was to assess "fair, reasonable and proper" damages for land which the Government is taking for its Bird's Point-New Madrid setback levee. That position was expounded by Dyott in his opening remarks in the trial of the first of 17 condemnation suits in which legal preliminaries have been completed. Land to be taken in this suit belongs to T. D. Black, a farmer near Anniston, Mississippi County.

Black, one of the two resident farmers in the entir 17 cases, sat in a distant corner of the courtroom, hand cupped to his ear and blue eyes intent under shaggy white brows, for two hours before he ventured to take a seat at his attorney's table.

The land covered by this suit, which is a consolidation of two originally filed, is 4.15 acres from the southeast corner of an 80-acre tract, and a 15.77 acre swath which cuts a 40-acre tract into triangles of 10.79 acres to be protected by the proposed levee and 13.44 acres which will be the proposed southeast Missouri floorway flowage rights on land within the floodway will be procured through other condemnation suits.

Dyott waived the reading of the Government's exceptions to viewer's awards of $3937 for damage to the 40-acre tract and $2744 damages to the 80 acres. Attorney J. C. McDowell of Charleston, however, read exceptions which he had filed for Black and said testimony would show that value of the tract cut into triangles was utterly destroyed. The argument has a bearing on later suits, since the setback levee will thus cut through many farms.

Attack on Plan Halted.

An attempt of McDowell to attack the Missouri phase of the $325,000,000 lower Mississippi flood control project, along lines on which it has frequently been attacked out of court in this section, met immediate objection, which was sustained.

"You are not allowed to discuss the question of policy," commented Judge Faris. "That is for Congress. Neither court, counsel nor jury has the right to consider it here."

Area Engineer Knappen of Cairo, a civil engineer in Government employ and in charge of Mississippi River work from Cape Girardeau to the Missouri line, including the floodway, was the first witness. He described the right of way required on Black's land, from 410 to 460 feet wide, to accommodate a levee 12 to 14 feet high, about 120 feet wide and its accompanying barrow pit. Over objection he was permitted to tell of a drainage ditch, on land to be acquired by separate condemnation, to handle "all the water which can reach it" by local drainage improvements. The $602,000 ditch is to be constructed by the Government in lieu of cash compensation for drainage which otherwise would be blocked.

A repeated attempt of Attorney O. W. Joslyn of Charleston to get into the record testimony on cross-examination about the effects of the ditch in cutting across Black's 80-acre tract was halted by objection on the grounds that those damages had nothing to do with this suit. Joslyn likewise failed to get Knappen to say that the present river bank levee gave Mississippi County "complete protection."

"That is a question of the policy of Congress," reiterated Judge Faris. "The court has nothing to do with that. We regulate the policy of Congress only one day in two years, and we do that at the ballot box."

Jury Quickly Chosen.

The trial moved smoothly from the moment Judge Faris, at the opening of court, decided for a jury trial in line with his opinion last week. Questioning by counsel was completed in little more than an hour, with only one challenged for cause. The one was W. B. Ragsdale of Charleston, who candidly admitted a fixed opinion prejudicial to the government. Fifteen minutes later each side had taken its three preremptory challenges, the jury was sworn and the first of some 900 flood control condemnation trials in Missouri was actually under way.

Flood control, as it affects Missouri, was described at length by Knappen. The setback levee, 25 miles long, limits a floodway in Mississippi and New Madrid Counties to an average width of five miles. Its purpose is to hold flood heights in the narrow main channel, to a height corresponding to 55 feet on the Cairo gauge. Hence, Knappen explained, 11 miles of the river-bank levee will be cut down three feet to correspond with this height and water will pour over this "full play" in extreme floods.

The flood control act itself provides that every one of the land owners affected must receive his compensation before the 11-mile section can be lowered from its present height and the floodway thus made subject to overflow.

SHREWSBURY WITH 1522 DOUBLES SIZE IN 10 YEARS

First Town in County to Announce Census Total; Had 845 in 1920.

The first announcement of population for an enumeration district in the 1930 census, in St. Louis and St. Louis County, was made today for Shrewsbury, by Supervisor Richard A. Hassall.

Shrewsbury was found to have 1522 inhabitants, which is almost double its population of 845 in the 1920 census. It is an incorporated village adjoining St. Louis, Maplewood and Webster Groves, south of Big Bend road. The census report states that no farms are located in Shrewsbury.

It is generally believed that the county's population, just over 100,000 in 1920, has doubled in the last decade. Announcements of the population by towns, wards and townships will continue to be made during the next few weeks until the work is completed.

The population of Edwardsville, seat of Madison County, is 6211, an increase of 875 over that of the 1920 census. Greenville, seat of Bond County, has 3233 inhabitants, an increase of 142.

PRISONER ADMITS HOLDUP OF ILLINOIS TRACTION OFFICE

Former Granite City Man Arrested in Benton, Ill., Implicates Two Brothers.

BENTON, Ill., April 22. — A former Granite City man is under arrest here, and his two brothers are being sought, following the man's confession that they held up the Granite City offices of the Illinois Traction System of $332, early Monday morning. The prisoner also is being questioned concerning the holdup of a branch of the Industrial Loan Co. in St. Louis.

The man was arrested on information from Centralia, Ill., officers that he had in his possession a sack of nickels, dimes, quarters and bills, totaling almost $1000.

The prisoner first said he was George Hendricks of Salem, Mo. Later he told Sheriff Pritchard that he was Elmer Willis, of Granite City, and implicated two others in the traction company holdup. They are being sought.

He also confessed, Pritchard said, the robbery of the Reliance Loan Co., of Centralia, where $19 was taken, April 15, and the theft of an automobile there a few days later. He said he, his brothers and their wives had planned to meet in Carbondale, Ill., today and go from there to Byron, Ill., to open a gasoline filling station.

OFFICIALS OPPOSE SALE OF COUNTY WATER COMPANY

League of Municipalities Adopts Resolution Urging State to Block Transfer to Holding Firm.

PROTESTS TO BE MADE AT HEARING

Fearful of Increase in Rates Because Deal Calls for Price Above Present Valuation.

The St. Louis County League of Municipalities, an organization of Mayors, City Attorneys and engineers of suburban towns, at a special meeting last night at the city hall of University City, adopted a resolution opposing approval by the Public Service Commission of the recently announced sale of the St. Louis County Water Co. to the Commonwealth Utilities Corporation, subsidiary of a huge Eastern holding company.

The league appointed Joseph H. Grand, City Attorney of University City, to present its views to the Public Service Commission at a hearing at Jefferson City tomorrow on the application of the Commonwealth Utilities Corporation for authority to acquire and own all the common stock of the water company.

As has been told, the Commonwealth company proposes to pay $225 a share for the 14,000 shares of water company stock which was issued four years ago at $20 a share. The total price to be paid for the water company, including assumption of bonds and preferred stock, would be $8,250,000, about $3,000,000 more than the latest valuation of the company by the Public Service Commission.

Individual Protests Also.

Protests also will be made to the commission by individual county cities, among them University City, represented by Grand; Clayton, represented by its City Attorney, Glenn Mohler, and Webster Groves, represented by its City Attorney, Alva C. Trueblood. The County Court also will send the County Counselor to the hearing.

Grounds for opposing the sale, as stated in the resolution, are that at the price proposed the new owners would have to have an increase in rates in order to get an adequate return on the purchase price, and that in case of completion of the proposed city-county federation the greater city would have to pay an excessive price for the county plant in order to unite it with the municipal water system.

The resolution says:

"The only remedy and means of prevention of the grave injustice now threatened to the people of St. Louis County and of the future Greater St. Louis, should said consolidation occur, is that the said sale of stock of St. Louis County Water Co. as proposed be disapproved and disallowed by the Missouri Public Service Commission, and that said sale be prevented from being consummated."

15-Year Recommendation.

Grand called attention to the recommendation of the City and County Metropolitan Development Committee that the county company be protected for 15 years against municipal competition in case the greater city does not in that time buy the county plant. He said that, under this arrangement, the county company, by refusing to sell its plant except at its own price, would be able for 15 years to stop the greater city from itself serving water to its county citizens.

Robert A. Roessel, chairman of the City and County Metropolitan Development Committee, defended the 15-year recommendation, but said it was not final, since the committee wished to have the criticisms of the public before making its final draft.

Letter From Henby.

W. H. Henby, president of the county water company, sent a lengthy letter to the league which was read by the secretary. In this letter Henby referred to the article in Sunday's Post-Dispatch disclosing the probable consequence of the water company sale as affecting county consumers, and argued that the sale really would benefit the county. His principal argument was that the new holding company owner would be able to provide the large amount of capital, $1,000,000 or more a year, required for improvements in the system for the next few years.

His letter was dismissed with the remark by Grand: "I don't follow Mr. Henby's argument."

Grand informed the league that the company actually was without a franchise from St. Louis County. He said the grant made to the company's predecessor in 1902 by the County Court was made under a statute which later was declared unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court.

The grant merely gives the company the right to lay and maintain mains under, along or across the public highways, and contains nothing to prevent the granting of similar rights to other companies or the revocation of the grant at the will of the County Court.

Judge Mulloy at Clayton Decides There Is Duplication in Indictments Against Fiedler.

A motion to quash one of the five perjury indictments pending in Circuit Court at Clayton against Adolph Fiedler, 440-pound Maplewood Justice of the Peace, was upheld by Circuit Judge Mulloy yesterday on the ground that another charge, also pending in his court, covered the same offense.

The indictments followed Fiedler's testimony in the trial of Fred Mueller, former St. Louis County Prosecuting Attorney, last summer, on a charge of accepting a bribe. Mueller was acquitted.

HOLDING COMPANY GOT UTILITY STOCK AT 5 CTS. A SHARE

How Electric Bond & Share Acquired Lehigh Control Told by Accountant at Hearing.

STOCK OBTAINED THROUGH BONUSES

Managing Corporation Paid $275,902 for American Gas Securities Valued at $3,625,882.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Testimony that the Electric Bond and Share Co. had acquired from 17 to 98 per cent of its common stock in subsidiaries through bonuses was given to the Federal Trade Commission in its inquiry into utilities financing today by A. R. Colbert, a commission accountant.

The bonuses were shares of stock issued to the Electric Bond and Share for assistance in the financial formation of the subsidiaries or as stock profits.

Colbert said that excluding stock dividends, the Electric Bond and Share had obtained 55.6 per cent of its common stock in American Power and Light Co. in bonuses. Bonus stock in the other companies, he added, was: Electric Power and Light Corporation, 17.9 per cent; Lehigh Power Securities Corporation, 98.7 per cent; National Power and Light Co., 36.8 per cent.

The accountant also testified that the Electric Bond and Share had obtained 71.2 per cent of its stock in the American Gas and Electric Co., not a direct subsidiary, in much the same manner.

Of the latter company Colbert said the Electric Bond and Share on Dec. 31, 1927, held 169,982 shares of common stock, worth $3,625,882, which had actually cost $275,902, or about $1.60 a share.

Colbert testified the Electric Bond & Share had acquired stock in various utilities holding and operating companies for from 5 cents to $3.54 a share.

When the Lehigh Power Securities Corporation was formed, Colbert testified, Electric Bond & Share got 42,571 shares of stock for "no monetary consideration." After a stock split-up and small purchases the Electric Bond & Share holdings in this company were 428,710 shares which cost $19,562, or about 5 cents a share, he testified.

In the organization of the Electric Power & Light Corporation, which succeeded the Utah Securities Corporation, Colbert said the Electric Bond & Share got 224,772 shares of common stock for $56,190, or about 25 cents a share.

LAWYER GETS 8 DAYS IN JAIL FOR HIS ADVICE TO COMPANY

United States Fidelity and Guaranty Violated Court Order and Is Fined $250.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, April 22.—Supreme Court Justice Strong in Brooklyn yesterday rebuked the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Co. for its practices involving the estates of incompetent war veterans, fined the company $250 and directed that its general counsel, William J. McArthur, be sent to jail eight days. Both the concern and its counsel were adjudged in contempt of court.

Justice Strong found the company, acting on the advice of its attorney, had violated an order which he made last December requiring that an $11,000 bond to be given in proceedings affecting the estate of William Landau, an incompetent war veteran, be supplied by some other company. Despite his direction, Justice Strong declared, the company issued the bond to Frank Landau, brother of William.

NATIONAL ORIGINS ACT REPEALED BY SENATE

Provision Restricting Immigration Had Been in Effect Since Last July.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, April 22.—The Senate Wednesday voted to repeal the national origins basis for restriction of immigration which went into effect last July 1.

An amendment by Senator Norbeck (Rep.), South Dakota, to the Harris immigration bill providing for repeal of the national origins provision and further restricting immigration, was approved by a vote of 39 to 34. President Hoover recommended the repeal of the national origins provision a year ago, but Congress then refused to act upon it.

A motion by Senator Glass (Dem.), Virginia, to recommit the Harris bill with the newly added national origins repeal clause, was defeated, 38 to 34.

A substitute for the Harris measure, offered by Senator Bingham (Rep.), Connecticut, and placing only Mexico of the 19 pan-American countries under the quota law, was rejected, 55 to 11.

An amendment by Black (Dem.), Alabama, to bar all immigration for three years, beginning next Jan. 1, also was defeated. The vote was 37 to 29.

The Senate adjourned without reaching a vote on the bill by Senator Harris (Dem.), Georgia, proposing to apply quota restrictions to immigrants from Central and South America.

Under the Norbeck amendment, annual immigration from European countries would be reduced from 150,000 to 120,000, but the old quota basis allowing Germany and the Scandinavian countries a larger percentage of the quotas would be restored.

An amendment by Senator Allen (Rep.), Kansas, to provide for selective immigration by the United States under the direction of four Cabinet officers, was defeated, 11 to 55.

ROBERT BRIDGES, POET LAUREATE, DIES AT 86

Succumbs After Short Illness at His Home Near Oxford, England.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, April 22.—Robert Bridges, poet laureate of England, died here yesterday. He was 86 years old. He was made poet laureate in 1913.

The poet laureate died after a short illness at his residence near Oxford, Chilswell House, Boars Hill.

The funeral will be private.

Bridges was regarded in two distinctly different lights by the British people, one clas criticising him for the small quantity of his work, and the other commending its quality.

Previous to his appointment, little of Bridges' work appealed to the popular mind. W. B. Yeats, the Irish poet, who received the Nobel prize for literature in 1923, characterized Bridges as the greatest of living poets.

In addition to a number of shorter poems, Bridges' early works included "The Growth of Love, Prometheus, the Fire-Giver," which he published privately in 1883 at Oxford and which he styled "A mask in the Greek manner." Two years later he produced "Eros and Psyche, a Version of Apuleius." His principal critical works are "Milton's Prosody," published in 1893, and "John Keats' a Critical Essay," produced two years later. He also was author of eight poetic plays.

Although Bridges wrote comparatively little poetry during the war he injected into his war verse a virility which hitherte had not characterized his work. His war poems included "Thou Careless Awake;" "England Awake;" "Lord Kitchener," and two bearing on the participation of the United States in the war. One was "To the United States of America," and the other "To President Wilson." He also wrote verses to the Americans on their Thanksgiving day celebrated in England in 1918.

After the war there was considerable criticism of the poet laureate because he had failed to be inspired by various national events and celebrations. His attitude was the subject of interrogations in Parliament. One member of the House of Commons urged that the poet laureate's pay of ancient days, a cask of wine, be advanced to Bridges "on the off-chance of his getting inspiration."

In September, 1923, the poet accepted the invitation of Dr. M. LeR. Burton, president of the University of Michigan, to come to the United States as part of the arrangement for an exchange of professors and lecturers between universities of England and the United States.

Bridges was born Oct. 23, 1844, and was educated at Eton and Corpus Christi College, Oxford. After his graduation from Oxford he traveled abroad, and upon returning to London studied medicine and practiced seevral years as a hospital physician in London. He gave up the practice of medicine in 1882 to devote himself to literature. He married Monica Waterhouse, Sept. 3, 1884. They had three children.

GENERAL MOTORS NETS $44,968,587 IN FIRST QUARTER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 22.—General Motors Corporation today reported net earnings for the first quarter of the year of $44,968,587, after depreciation, interest, Federal taxes and other charges, against $61,910,987 in the first quarter of last year.

After preferred and debenture dividends this was equal to 98 cents per common share, against $1.37 per share in the corresponding period of 1929.

These earnings were fully as favorable as had been forecast in Wall street, due to the low rate of operations in the early moths of the year. Earnings of 98 cents a share slightly exceeded unofficial estimates running from 90 to 95 cents.

Cash and U. S. Government securities on March 31 amounted to $125,814,939 against $181,963,199 a year previously. Net working capital showed a moderate increase at $267,791,541, against $251,287,782, the preliminary report for the period showed.

First quarter sales to dealers and including Canadian and overseas shipments, were 368,635 cars and trucks, against 523,119 in the like 1929 period.

March domestic sales to dealers were 118,081 units, against 110,904 in February, and 176,510 in March, 1929. March domestic sales to consumers were 122,781, against 88,742 in February, and 166,942 in March of last year.

INVESTMENT RAILS AMONG FIRM SPOTS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Bond trading continued dull today, but easier rates in the shorter time money maturities were accompanied by moderate firming tendencies in a number of the investment rails.

United States Governments were firm but rather quiet. Utilities and industrials showed little change in either direction.

Pennsylvania 6½s, Pere Marquette 4½s, St. Louis & San Francisco 4½s and 4s, Nickel Plate 4½s, Wabash "C" 4½s, Erie 4s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s, Union Pacific refunding 4s and Great Northern 7s were among the more prominent rails, gaining about half a point on the average. Santa Fe general 4s advanced ½ and then reacted slightly.

Convertibles, heavy during the greater part of the session, strengthened in the late trading when American Telephone 4½s turned a 3-point decline into a small net gain. Baltimore & Ohio 4½s were active, but easy. International Telephone 4½s slumped more than a point during the forenoon and then made up their loss.

UNCHANGED TO LOWER CLOSE ON COTTON

NEW YORK, April 22.—A continuation of scattering near month liquidation and a narrowing of differences between old and new crop months was the chief feature in cotton today. There was some trade buying in the new crop positions and some buying of these months against sales of the old crop but it was supplied by moderate offerings which appeared to be promoted by weakness in wheat and a favorable view of weather conditions outside the drouthy sections of West Texas. The mid-afternoon market was quiet and about steady with prices net 11 points lower to 3 points higher.

Futures closed steady, unchanged to 13 points lower; May, 15.63-64; July, 15.80-82; October, 15.10-12; December, 15.23-25; January, 15.30; new contracts-October, 14.84-85; December, 14.98-15.01; January, 15.01; March, 15.27.

Cotton opened steady 6 points off to an advance of four points with the old crop months relatively easy under further scattering liquidation which included some selling of both May and July against purchases of new crop positions.

The initial offerings seemed to be quiet readily taken, but the selling continued with May declining to 15.67 and July to 15.81 before the session had advanced far or about nine to 10 points net lower. The new October contracts sold off to 14.83 or five points net lower with the more active new crop positions showing net losses of about two to six points.

The scattering liquidation of near months continued later in the morning, with a narrowing of the differences between the old and new crop positions. At midday the market was quiet, but more or less unsettled, with active months about net unchanged to 11 points lower.

The initial offerings seemed to be quiet Trading was comparatively quiet at the start, but became a little more active on the decline. The market seemed to be very little impressed by the fairly steady showing of Liverpool which reopened for business today and failed to fully meet yesterday's local decline.

WHEAT SELLS AT NEW LOW LEVEL FOR SEASON

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 22.—Wheat smashed down today to below any price level heretofore reached this season. Persistent selling overweighted the market, which was weakened by further moisture in recent drought districts. The Farm Board gave notice of discontinuance of loans on wheat after April 30. Open interest in May delivery of wheat is being steadily reduced, but the trade as a rule looks for considerable liquidation still to come.

Wheat closed nervous, ⅝c to 1⅜c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¼c to ⅝c up, oats ⅛c to ¼ off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 5c.

There were also reports that this season shows practically entire absence of straw worm in Kansas, whereas just a year ago the pest was widespread, and caused 15,000,000 bushels loss at harvest.

Opening unchanged to ⅝c off, wheat later underwent a general setback. Corn, oats and provisions were easy, with corn starting ¼c down to ½c up, and subsequently keeping near to the initial range.

Much of the time today wheat hovered near to the season's bottom price record, adding to bearish effects of favorable crop reports both from winter and spring wheat territory were advices that overnight North American export business was confined to a few loads, all of it Canadian.

Virtual completion of spring wheat seeding in southern half of Minnesota and South Dakota was reported. Wheat seeding was also reported as making good progress in more Northern sections.

WHEAT SELLS AT NEW LOW LEVEL FOR SEASON

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 22.—Wheat smashed down today to below any price level heretofore reached this season. Persistent selling overweighted the market, which was weakened by further moisture in recent drought districts. The Farm Board gave notice of discontinuance of loans on wheat after April 30. Open interest in May delivery of wheat is being steadily reduced, but the trade as a rule looks for considerable liquidation still to come.

Wheat closed nervous, ¾c to 1⅜c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¼c to ⅝c up, oats ⅛c to ¼c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 5c.

There were also reports that this season shows practically entire absence of straw worm in Kansas, whereas just a year ago the pest was widespread, and caused 15,000,000 bushels loss at harvest.

Opening unchanged to ⅛c off, wheat later underwent a general setback. Corn, oats and provisions were easy, with corn starting ⅛c down to ½c up, and subsequently keeping near to the initial range.

Much of the time today wheat hovered near to the season's bottom price record, owing to bearish effects of favorable crop reports both from winter and spring wheat territory. There were advices that overseas North American export business was confined to a few loads, all of it Canadian.

SUBSTANTIAL RALLY LATE ON THE CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 22.—The curb market rallied substantially today under the leadership of the utilities, Natural Gas stocks, oils and selected industrials in the last hour of trading, after maintaining a firm undertone as further selling was absorbed during the early hours. Announcement was made that a money desk will be inaugurated on the curb floor, similar to the call money desk on the Stock Exchange floor.

The United Light group were notably strong. North American Light and Power rose 6 points to a new high for the year, and United Light A and American Light and Traction were firm. Electric Bond and Share closed up a couple of points, after absorbing early selling. American Natural Gas rose 4, and Southwestern Gas Utilities 2 points to new 1930 highs.

Deere was a firm spot in the industrials, closing 2 points higher, in sympathy with farm implements on the big board. Dow Chemical rose 6 points to a new high for the year, and Crocker Wheeler encountered renewed buying, closing up 2 points. Technicolor rallied more than 3 points. Several shares in this group closed lower, however, Aluminum Co. showing a loss of 5 points.

Oils likewise turned upward. Humble closed up 2 points, and Indiana rallied after showing heaviness early. Cossden, a recent soft spot, gained more than 3 points. Mines moved in narrow ranges.

Investment Trusts were irregular. Securities Corp. was a strong feature, the new stock rising 5 and the old stock 41 points to new highs. Railway and Light Securities lost more than 4 points in a small turnover.

B. F. GOODRICH CO. PROPOSES $30,000,000 CONVERTIBLES

NEW YORK, April 22.—Directors of the B. F. Goodrich Co., at a special meeting today, proposed to issue $30,000,000 of 15-year 6 per cent convertible debentures, increase the authorized common shares from 1,500,000, of which 1,167,000 are outstanding, to 4,000,000 shares. A meeting of stockholders has been called for May 12 to approve the plan.

Operations for the first quarter resulted in a loss of approximately $400,000, after depreciation but before interest charges. The company's business, with the exception of tires, was reported as showing an increase over 1929 during the quarter.

The proceeds from the issue of debentures will be used in liquidating current borrowings, much of which were incurred in connection with the acquisition of the Hood and Miller rubber companies.

Four new directors were elected to the board—Charles S. McCain, president of the Chase National Bank; Frank H. Hobson, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Co.; Arthur H. Marks, president of the Skinner Organ Co., and Albert A. Sprague, chairman of the board of Sprague, Warner & Co. of Chicago.

Cotton Seed Meal.

Cotton seed meal, 41 per cent, was quoted at $40.75 and 43 per cent at $43.25 per ton.

New Kind of Corn Remedy Ends Pain by Double Action

An entirely new principle for the treatment or corns and bunions is winning fame among sufferers. It is called Double Action because it is the one method that does the two things essential to end corn misery. Just touch the corn or bunion with No. 1 remedy to end pain quickly. Then the corn can be removed in a few minutes. Next touch it with No. 2 remedy daily for a few days to keep the corn bed soft and avoid regrowth. Treatments that merely reduce the pain do not accomplish this. Test Dr. Woofer's Double Action Corn and Bunion Remedy on a guarantee of money back if it doesn't end corn and bunion misery.

ACQUITTED OF KILLING IN BUSINESS QUARREL

Eugene M. Denny Pleads He Shot Former Partner in Self Defense.

A self-defense plea won acquittal yesterday for Eugene M. Denny, proprietor of a cleaning and dyeing establishment, jointly indicted with his brother, Clovis, for manslaughter in the fatal shooting of Joseph Michaelson last Christmas eve.

The Denny brothers demanded separate trials and Eugene was the first to be tried. On the witness stand in Circuit Judge Taylor's court yesterday, he told of forming a partnership with Michaelson in the punchboard business in April, 1929, and described the quarrel that led up to the killing.

Michaelson, he said, charged there was a $20 shortage in the bank account of the punchboard enterprise. Denny proposed an audit and at the same time remonstrated with Michaelson for placcing punchboards in establishments where children might play them. At this Michaelson became incensed, removed the books of the business and refused to meet Denny to straighten out business affairs, the defendant said.

"On the night of the shooting, Michaelson asked me to come to his room, 3940 Page boulevard, and to bring his pistol which he had left at the cleaning establishment," Denny testified. "Clovis and I went together. As we walked in I started to hand Michaelson the package containing the weapon. He greeted us by shooting Clovis with another pistol which he had in his hand.

"I dropped the package and grappled with Michaelson. He got the pistol turned toward me and shot me. Then I unwrapped the weapon on the floor and used it on him."

Denny is 41 years old and Clovis 31. The cleaning establishment is at 4145 Easton avenue. No announcement was made by the State as to whether the case against Clovis Denny will be prosecuted.

STILL SEIZED IN COUNTY

A still in operation and about 8000 gallons of whisky mash were found last midnight when deputy sheriffs raided a residence at 7308 Dewey avenue, St. Louis County. They arrested Vincent Tedeske of 1437 Blair avenue and Tony Tamulo, 632 South Broadway.

The still was destroyed and five vats which contained mash were demolished today.

CHAPTER XVIII.

THE little house on Whitely Heights, for which we had so rigorously saved and which formerly represented the heights of attainment for us, now seemed shabby and inadequate.

Formerly, the rooms had been large enough for our hodge-podge, arty furniture, but they offered no setting for our handsome antiques. Formerly, each of us had one change of clothing for daytime wear, and one complete evening outfit. The cupboards were adequate for this. Now, with Rudy's hundreds of suits and my own hundreds of gowns hanging on the racks, never worn, we were cramped on every side. The garage was built for two cars at most; we had been lucky if we had one. But now where could Rudy put his new Voisin sport model, specially built for him in Paris, or where the dozens of other still grander ones that he was going to buy?

Rudy Alone in House.

So, in the slight respite between pictures, we shopped Beverly Hills for a new, more imposing residence, in keeping with the tastes of a famous star. This was eventually found and bought. In going over it we tried to recapture the youthful thrills and enthusiasm we had felt in buying the little house. Vainly we both of us tried to relive the experiences of that Christmas day when we had moved, sans furniture, sans heat, sans gas—nor missing any of them—into our first real home together, and laughed and cried for sheer joy.

But this vast, imposing, palatial place seemed chilly, dull and unreal. It was not a home; it was a residence, in which all love and trust and companionship between the prospective occupants existed only as a mockery. We tried to recapture our love for beauty in planning where we could install the superb pair of genuine renaissance doors we had brought from the chateau district of France; the Gothic chair we had brought from Spain and the handsomely carved Gothic chests in which we might store the other art treasures with which we were now overburdened. But the pristine thrill was missing. By this time our finer sensibilities and appreciation of all rare things were hopelessly dulled and blunted.

I never moved into this house myself. Rudy lived there a few months surrounded by sycophants and hangers-on whom I had spent the last two years driving off. The moment I left they returned in droves, to fawn and feed upon him. For a little while this mansion was shared by his brother, Alberto, his wife and their son, for when Rudy returned from his last trip abroad, in true Italian fashion, he brought his entire family with him. With his innate generosity he lavished everything on them—finally abandoned the whole house to them and moved himself to a hotel, where he found life more peaceful.

From time to time my aunt, Mrs. Werner, visited him in Hollywood. The strong affection which had always existed between the two of them was, happily, not affected by our trouble and separation; in fact, it was deepened. In appreciation of all that she had meant to him, Rudy willed auntie at his death one-third of his property. The other two-thirds were equally divided between Alberto and Maria. Maria and auntie were satisfied with this, even deeply grateful; but the estate has never been settled.

Trouble Makers Win.

But I am getting ahead of my story.

Things between Rudy and me came to an impasse before the move to the big house was made. The situation had become impossible. The daily clippings and incessant demands for him to assert his authority and prove his manhood had led to this.

My own feelings were so deeply hurt that I had lost any judgment or tolerance I might ever have had. After all these years that Rudy and I had fought our battles together toward the same end and for the same ideals—how could he permit people with obvious ulterior motives to prejudice him against me? How could he let them persuade him I was "trying to ruin him for my own ambitions?" It was so ridiculous!

But in the work and strain of the last two years and the incessant interference of trouble makers, we had lost even our sense of humor. With this gone, the situation was hopeless. We had reached the absurd point where anything I called white was black to him, and anything I liked he rejected. This same feeling, I fear, was reciprocated in my attitude toward him.

It wasn't until I had left Hollywood, shaken its dust from my feet once for all, that I realized that my own judgment had become as warped and false as everyone else's there.

Together Rudy and I decided that the only thing to do was to have a few months separation. Perhaps that would set straight our twisted outlook on life in general and each other in particular. In my heart I knew it wouldn't.

Things had gone beyond the mending place. I wanted to leave permanently, go to Paris and get a divorce. But Rudy begged me not to.

"Go stay with your mother at the chateau," he said, "until I can finish 'Black Eagle.' Then I will join you and we can patch things up. We will be glad to see each other again."

But I knew any compromise was hopeless.

One day in July, 1925, I packed up a few personal belongings—just those things that were essential to the journey—and took the train for New York. We didn't realize how final the good-by was to be. We never saw each other again.

In New York I went immediately to the apartment we had taken six months before at 270 Park avenue, on a two-year lease, in the belief that after the J. D. Williams contract was completed we would make all our other pictures in the East. How futile and silly it is to make plans! Here I collected my clothes and few personal belongings, careful to destroy everything I owned that was suggestive of Rudy—our kodak pictures, his letters, little personal gifts he had made me—and arranged for an apartment of my own.

Couldn't Starve Wife

For funds, I had barely traveling expenses. Since I had not worked for some time, I had no money of my own. I did not wish to ask my family—and if I had asked Rudy for any (which I didn't) I doubt if he would have advanced it. He thought that if he could starve me down, as it were, I would return to him.

But I was not so easily reduced to submission. That was the wrong policy to use with me. After a few weeks in New York I sailed for Paris, where I obtained my divorce.

From Paris I went to the chateau, to find mother and Uncle Dickie broken hearted by the news of our separation. They looked upon it merely as the "squabble of two temperamental children." With their fondness for Rudy and their knowledge of how happy we had been together, they refused to believe it was anything more than a temporary misunderstanding which could be patched up later.

After a few weeks here I returned to New York to make a picture offered me. While I was still in New York at work on this picture, Rudy sailed for Europe. I did not see him in New York, but he called on my step-sister there.

Mother and Uncle Dickie wrote him to London, where he was passing a few weeks, inviting him to the chateau for the Christmas holidays. Later they showed me his reply:

Wife's Kin Loyal to Rudy

"Dearest Uncle Dickie and Muzzey, my heart is too full of sorrow to spend the holidays in the home where I have passed the happiest days of my life. I will come to you early in January.

"RUDY."

I quote mother's own description of this visit he later paid them in an excerpt from a letter she wrote to auntie:

"In January Rudy came back to us, the same sweet, loving boy as of old," wrote mother. "It was impossible for him to remain many days, as his sadness was too great and was made more poignant by the familiar scenes of the chateau. He often went to Natacha's room to sit there for hours by himself and when he came out he would kneel beside me, bury his head in my lap and cry like a baby. I was broken-hearted. We had always hoped there would be a reconciliation and I am happy to say it came during his last illness, though only a few days before his death."

All my family remained loyal to Rudy. Uncle Dickie, mother, auntie all refused to believe any ill of him. There was really none to believe.

Looking down the perspective of years one is able to see things more clearly. This life, we are told, is a schoolroom in which we must learn our lessons and each one of us is given a test: My test was Hollywood. We learn by bitter experience.

Behind the Screens

The Latest News and Gossip of the Film Actors in Hollywood Appears in the Daily Magazine of the Post-Dispatch Every Tuesday and Thursday and in the Sunday Drama Section.

HOLLYWOOD, April 21.

A FEW tips for the aspiring "popular song" writer, from Nathaniel Finston, head of a studio's song department:

MAURICE CHEVALIER.

First of all, there's no such thing as a surefire hit, until it's tried—for only the fickle public can make a surefire hit. What sounds great on your piano may be a dud on the market, and what you honestly know is a dud may become meat to your radio.

Timeliness plays a great part in getting a song "over." "Happy Days" is a reigning hit because it broke through the dark gloom of the recent stock market fiasco and satisfied a public need for optimism—even when there wasn't cause for much joy.

Business men, housewives, all America, wanted to believe that "happy days are here again!"

AND remember the seasons. In winter anticipate "birdies that sing in sunny spring." In spring jot down the immortal thought that "love sings a tune 'neath the big June moon." But in June forget that moon and rhyme the harvest one with "fireside croon"—and work in a pumpkin pie or two if you can.

And when the leaves begin to brown and the frost is on the town indite something like "sweet December bride, with you by my side, the snow doesn't matter, let rain pitter-patter, for it's sunny as spring in my heart!"

For men look forward rather than backward, and besides, it takes two or three months to plug your song properly, anyway.

• • •

IF you can get some celebrity to plug your tune, preferably in a picture, it'll probably succeed. Any song Maurice Chevalier, Fannie Brice, Helen Kane, Al Jolson or their like sings has better than the average chance of scoring, simply because someone of that caliber has sung it.

A "catch-line" is always good. The freakish, nonsensical inspiration always rates attention. Witness "I Miss My Swiss," "Yes, We Have No Bananas," etcetera.

But novelty tunes, catch-lines, "hot" songs never can compete with romance. As Finston says, "Year in, year out, the world wants to see a boy and a girl together."

Just look at Rudy Vallee, and where that romantic yearning has put him!

A LASTING aversion to thick mutton sauce with mashed potatoes is the only trace of bitterness Jobyna Howland retains from her early struggles for recognition on Broadway.

JOBYNA HOWLAND.

That was years ago, long before talking movies even were approaching a state of reality, and the lank and then pretty Jobyna was trudging from agency to agency in search of any work on any Broadway stage.

She recalls those hot September days, when perspiration mingled with tears as she made the rounds, and the terrible day, just before she got a job modeling for Charles Dana Gibson, when she spent her last quarter on thick mutton sauce and mashed potatoes, a cheap regimen which had kept her alive for weeks.

STAGE directors told her time and again that she was too tall—for Jobyna towers at least 6 feet—and that even as an extra she would disrupt any show.

But Gibson painted her, she became a "Gibson girl," and that led, in spite of her height, to a leading role—romantic, if you please—in "Rupert of Hentzau."

Eventually the height which had been her curse contributed to her fortune. Jobyna Howland gained a reputation as a comedienne.

That was what she brought to Hollywood when she came a few months ago to play a role in "Honey," and remained.

She brought also an amusing yarn of her first experience with movie producers.

She was tested, in New York, for a role in the screen adaptation of a famous stage play. After weeks, she was told she was "not the type."

As it happened, Jobyna Howland had created this particular role, had played it during the play's long Broadway run, and capped that with a long run in London!

AN enterprising studio statistician reveals that the movies became 36 years old, as an industry, on April 14, with the opening on Broadway of the first "kinetoscope parlor."

There were 10 of the diminutive "peepshows" in the place to draw the "fans," who saw Ruth St. Denis, "Buffalo Bill," a strong man, a dancer, trained animals, and other "acts."

DAILY STORY FOR CHILDREN

By Mary Graham Bonner

Ice Cream Soda.

"WHAT do you feel like doing this evening?" asked the Little Black Clock.

"I wish," said John, "I could have an ice cream soda."

"With plenty of ice cream in it," said Peggy. "Chocolate's my favorite."

"I think I'll have to turn the time ahead a little bit," the Little Black Clock said. "You'll enjoy it more if it's warmer."

So the Little Black Clock turned the time ahead to a summer afternoon and he took John and Peggy to have ice cream sodas.

Three men came forward to wait on John and Peggy and the Little Black Clock.

"What will you have?" each one of the men asked their three customers.

The Little Black Clock said he didn't care for anything. He explained that he never needed food or anything like that.

But Peggy and John answered together:

"Chocolate ice cream soda."

"Could I have plenty of ice cream in mine?" John asked.

"Plenty," the man answered.

"Could I, too?" Peggy asked.

"Certainly," answered the man who was waiting on her.

How delicious the sodas were. And there was plenty of ice cream, too.

"How much is this?" the Little Black Clock asked when they were finished. "It's my treat you know," he added.

"Nothing, absolutely nothing at all," one of the men answered. "It's not every day that we can wait on two children brought along by a clock with magic."

"That was magic in itself," John said as they were on their way home—"to have all the ice cream in a soda we wanted and then not to be charged for it!"

Semi-Precious Stones

GREEN, pink and blue standing out conspicuously in the spring color chart for costumes and accessories, semi-precious stones in these tones have risen to new importance. Turquoise lends the note of lightish blue, and there are the interesting tones in turquoise matrix. Chalcedony and lapis offer strong bold blue hues that are of kindred spirit with the brighter than navy blue seen in dresses, coats and suits. Lanvin green, leaf and even lettuce greens of spring fashions may be accented by jade, enjoying no little favor this season. Rose quartz is the pink jewelry of the hour.

HELPING THE SCHOOL CHILD

By Emilie Hoffman

"THE school nurse tells me to have the girl's adenoids removed, but the child never complains about pain back of the nose, so why should they come out? I am very nervous about even the slightest operation. Do you think it really should be done?"

Queries similar to this are frequent. One mother has the idea "adenoids" are natural. They come and go and there is no use bothering with them."

If these mothers were close observers they would have seen the bad results of neglected adenoids. It has been estimated that 2,000,000 American school children are adenoid victims. Is your child one of these?

This condition is responsible for many of the school failures and the removal of this handicap is entirely in the hands of the mother. Perhaps she does not recognize the difficulty, she may not understand its serious results.

If these mothers were told neglected adenoids spoil the beauty of a child by distorting the mouth and chin, they might become more interested in a cure, but enlarged adenoids do more than this—they seriously affect the good health of the child and his studying efficiency.

When adenoids become too large they interfere with the free passage of air from the nose to the throat and the child becomes a mouth breather. He may snore. He is restless and tosses in his sleep, so, naturally, he becomes cross and irritable, and then is when the low marks in school appear. He becomes discouraged and sees no use in trying to keep up with the grade.

A child has no actual pain at the place where the adenoids are located, so there are no complaints, but does he have earache or is his hearing poor and does his ear discharge a bit occasionally? Does he seem dull, half asleep or even stupid at times? Does he take cold easily? Has he a little catarrh of the nose or throat sometimes, and does his voice have a nasal tone? If he shows any of these symptoms you may be reasonably sure your child has adenoids that require attention.

Do his upper teeth protrude much beyond the lower ones? Does his jaw seem to be narrowing and have you noticed he often has a strained expression? These are the serious results. This condition of the jaw prevents proper mastication and digestive troubles follow. Infections of the middle ear are often due to adenoid growths. They are a serious handicap to the school child. They make him dull, slow of comprehension and incapable of learning well.

Knowing all this, will any thinking mother hesitate to have adenoids removed? Mothers who are in doubt should consult their family physician and follow his advice. It will mean much to the health, happiness and success of the school child.

Evening Fashions Are Dominated by White

WHITE is just as important for evening wear as it is for sport in Paris spring and summer styles.

The classic formal evening gown is white marocain with jewel ornaments or trimmed with long white fringe.

White faille, chiffon and tulle are extensively used for youthful dance dresses.

Floral print chiffon is considered smartest when the background is white.

White lace has an outstanding place among restaurant and dinner ensembles.

Tie It Tight.

Tie a pencil securely to your telephone and you will find many steps and a great tax on the memory will be avoided. It must be tied, though, or it will disappear just like any pencil.

Feather Trimmings.

Many smart hats of spring wear a feather. It may be in the form of cluster quills that come out over the cheek in a most becoming manner or it may be just a little composition pin that simulates a quill. The newest version of the clip vogue is shown on a hat with clips of feathers instead of jewels.

Eaton Realized That He Had Fallen in Love With His Secretary; That He Needed Her And Could Not Have Her . . .

The OFFICE WIFE

By FAITH BALDWIN
(Copyright, 1930.)

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters

ANNE MURDOCK had higher ideals than marriage to Ted O'Hara and her mother's humdrum existence. She little realized when she became secretary to Lawrence Eaton, young president of the Eaton Adertising Agency that it was the turning point of her life.

Larry Eaton and his wife, Linda, had drifted apart, she finding companionship in Dick Jameson, and Larry, in business—until Anne came. Larry and Anne fall in love, but hesitate to reveal it to each other because of Linda. Anne, trying to curb her love, holds herself aloof. Noting the change Larry questions her and, unable to resist, takes her in his arms and kisses her.

Joining a party of her sister's friends, Anne goes to a night club. She tries to learn about Dolly Davis, former chorus girl and Georgie, young ne'er-do-well, in whom Kathleen is interested. Anne meets Larry. Next day he thinks, "I'm crazy about her. What am I going to do?"

CHAPTER XIV.

THIS was the realization that Eaton took home with him that evening, with which he must face Linda: that he had fallen in love with his secretary; that she had become necessary to him as a woman; that he wanted her—wanted her—and could not have her. Or—could he?

It had been so long since this surge and sweep of emotion had caught him—even in his boyish love for Linda there had not been this mature necessity—that he was bewildered and staggered and entirely incapable of searching the situation back to its inception. After a miserable evening and a sleepless night he tried to tell himself that it would pass, that it was a temporary if strong, attraction based upon propinquity, upon Anne's own charm and appeal, and brought to ephemeral flowering by their close companionship at Hot Springs, by the moment in which recklessly, he had held her in his arms.

It could not last—for her sake, for Linda's and for his own. The situation would become intolerable. It was something that he must stamp out, root and branch; something which Anne must never guess, even dimly.

He must go on as if this devastating thing never had happened. Any other solution was—impossible.

Had it been anybody but Anne—a woman working under his business protection, a woman he saw every day, in the now artificial environment of his office—had it been someone whom he had met outside, would his deliberated attitude have held? Might he not then, under such different circumstances, try to find out if she cared for him, and if she did—forget Linda, forget the world, take upon himself the secret responsibility for a woman's happiness? And if he did so and found that the attraction held, would he not do the honest thing and ask Linda to divorce him?

But Anne was—Anne. Not the sort of woman to whom one offered an illegal relationship, not the sort of woman to accept that offer. Yet, if she cared for him? And she was sophisticated, not a child.

But no, the thought was impossible. He pushed it into the background of his mind that was now like a squirrel cage. All the arguments, all the speculations, all the wondering and wretchedness went on, round and round, unceasingly. He contradicted himself a thousand times; he set himself a hundred problems. And reached no other conclusion save the first, which was that he must never let her know.

It couldn't last, he told himself stubbornly. He dreaded seeing her again; and longed for it intolerably.

In the office his attitude toward her was schooled enough. But the memory of their embrace remained, and so the atmosphere had changed. He became markedly formal toward her, more so than he had ever been. Yet an undercurrent remained. Each knew it.

The good resolutions remained, but seeing her every day, and so deeply aware of her physical presence, he was able eventually to delude himself with a masculine disregard for danger. So long as he didn't speak, so long as he gave no further sign, he harmed no one, and he would have the oblique happiness of seeing her. Otherwise he'd have to let her go, and for that sacrifice he had neither strength nor heart.

In the late autumn of that year came Indian summer. Anne took this precious warmth into her blood, and the cool, heady wind into her veins. She worked and played whole-heartedly, and loved and was happy as never before in her life. For once having faced her love and admitted the impossibility of its fulfillment she adjusted herself to living in the moment.

Occasionally she went to Kathleen's. She continued her casual acquaintance with Dolly Davis, biding her time. Dolly and the sloe-eyed Georgie rarely came to Kathleen's because of the older woman's violent jealousy. But when Anne met her now and then, she was as primful of intimacies as ever, as confident that some day Georgie would marry her.

"He's all for this companionate marriage stuff," she told Anne one night quite seriously. "But I say what's the use of going into a thing and saying beforehand it won't be successful? I was married once. Did I tell you, darling? He was a trick bicycle rider on the Big Time circuit—but he had more wheels in his head than on his machine. I was going to divorce him, but what with one thing and another I forgot it, and he killed himself a couple of years ago doing a brand-new stunt. So I'm an honest-to-goodness widow. But, as I was saying to Georgie, the Lord knows marriage is a big risk nowadays, and there's no sense in admitting it when you stand up before the Judge. That's bound to make it happen."

Anne controlled her features with an effort. Companionate marriage and Georgie!

Ted O'Hara was present at this particular party—and Ted was unpleasantly impressed. Anne had asked him to take her, as it seemed wiser to bring her own escort.

When they had left, earlier than the others and were driving home:

"I wish you'd keep out of that crowd," he complained.

"It's Kathleen's."

"What of it? It hasn't improved her."

"I'd rather you didn't criticize her, Ted."

"Well, she's pretty independent. She won't thank you for chaperonage. The way she plays up to that sickening little fool—what's his name?—George—"

"Please, Ted!"

"Don't get miffed. It doesn't matter to me what she does. But I didn't like your talking so much to that Davis woman. She isn't your sort."

"Ted, what I do and with whom I talk is not your affair."

"Marry me," implored Ted suddenly, "and let me make it my affair. I tell you, Anne, I'm worried about you."

Anne chuckled. She couldn't help it. "Of all your proposals, this one is the most ridiculous."

"I'm glad you think so The fact is, you're working too hard. Eaton has a nerve, keeping you overtime, taking your Sundays and your evenings."

"It's part of a job which I intend to keep," Anne told him.

"Well, there's talk in the office. I'm only telling you for your own good," Ted broke out suddenly, and then cursed himself silently and heartily. He hadn't meant to say anything.

Anne flung around at him, her face white. "Talk? About me and Mr. Eaton?" she asked incredulously, not evading the implication.

"Yes, if you will have it. I know there's nothing in it, but it does look funny. You're with him so much."

Betty Howard had tried to warn Anne a few days previously. But she had been tactful to the point of incoherence. Now, Anne twisted her hands in her lap and said steadily:

"Miss Andrews held the same position—did much the same work. I never heard any gossip about her."

That, she thought, was not strictly true. A number of people had commented on the other woman's obvious devotion to her chief.

"Oh, be yourself!" advised Ted. "Andrews was Andrews. You're 25 to her 40. And you're so pretty; you're beautiful, to me," he added with a rather touching sincerity. After a moment he went on: "It makes all the difference, you see; the sort of girl you are, and the sort of dried-up old maid Andrews was. Can't you see?"

"I suppose so. It's absurd, of course," Anne replied.

"Oh, Teddy!" She turned on him, exasperated. "I don't want to be taken out of it. I want to stay. I don't want to marry any one. I don't want to marry you."

"Then there's some truth in it, after all," muttered Ted sullenly.

"In what?"

"That the chief's in love with you," he accused.

"Ted, that's idiotic. He doesn't know I exist except as his secretary. [illegible] he's crazy about her," Anne answered with no real conviction.

"Well, you're off your head over him, then!" commented Ted.

"I—am—not!" she managed to lie, defiantly.

But terror seized her, flooded her; the blood rose in a warm tide, flooding her whiteness to scarlet.

"You must be. No woman," said Ted doggedly, "gives herself as you do, spends herself, sacrifices herself for—a job. The only reason a woman drives herself all day and half the night is for a man."

"You're a generation back," Anne told him. But the brutality of his conclusion had not escaped her. Was it true? Was it only her love for Eaton which made the difficult work so easy for her? "Drive quickly—and get me home. I'm tired. And if you say another word to me about this—this nonsense, I'll never come out with you again!"

Home finally, and in bed, she tried not to think of what Ted had said: "Not for a job * * * but for a man."

She tried to picture another man in Eaton's place, another chief. To her horror and bewilderment, she found she no longer could visualize the job without the man she loved.

She was illogically, femininely angry at Ted for having told her the truth. So she did not see him for a time but went to Jim's instead; helped Sara entertain the friends who dropped in at all hours. And saw Kathleen, who was rehearsing for another piece.

But Kathleen was not as open with her as formerly; and Anne, remembering Ted's caustic comments, began to worry. She saw that the younger girl's interest in Dolly Davis' sleek-haired shadow was growing—and becoming obvious. And it alarmed her.

She spoke of it to Eaton one day when he asked about Kathleen, simply because the need was in her; she had to tell somebody.

"I'm worried about her," she told him.

"Why? The stage nowadays," said Eaton, "is as safe a profession as any."

"I know it. [illegible] what I argued when she made up her mind to take it up, and mother and father were against it. But she knows the wrong people."

"What kind of people?" Eaton asked, instantly seizing on any pretext to keep her talking to him.

"Oh, not the girls she lives with, really, though there's one I don't like much. But—you met Dolly Davis the other night at the club. Do you remember her? There's a man—he wasn't there that night—he and Dolly——" Anne shrugged, left the implication open.

"He's a wretched little beast, sleek as a seal," she went on; "he's been paying attention to Kathleen. I've warned her, but she laughs at me. She announced recently that she was planning to leave the chorus and dance with this creature at some night club."

"Perhaps she'll change her mind."

"I don't know, but it does bother me," said Anne, and suddenly, realizing their regained intimacy, she dropped the subject to speak of office matters.

But Eaton, his hungry eyes on her exquisite troubled face, experienced a selfless pity and tenderness remote from passion. She gave so much to her job, and he never had done anything for her.

Now he wanted to, desperately. He would, he told himself. He'd allow himself to show a more personal interest. He owed it to her and to his love for her—a love which, even if unacknowledged, gave him some right to help her.

Amos 'n' Andy Speakin'

A Biography Broadcast in the Dialect of the Famous Radio Team

This is the second of a series of six stories on the remarkable careers of Amos 'n' Andy, the famous radio stars. It is a printed broadcast in the now well-known dialect of the performers, with James R. Crowell, a writer of national reputation, acting as the "announcer."

By JAMES R. CROWELL.

LADIES and gentlemen, we present the boys again—Amos 'n' Andy, the celebrated radio team, telling you in their own words how they rose from obscurity to the heights of fame. Yesterday you heard Amos tell you that his real name is Freeman F. Gosden and that he met Andy while they were both employed as coaches for a Chicago concern which made a business of organizing and staging amateur theatrials for such organizations as the Elks, Masons, etc. Today Andy discloses his real identity, and you will be surprised to learn that such a truly great man as the "prez'dent" of the Fresh Air Taxicab Co. of American, Incorpulated, had so inauspicious a start in life.

As the scene opens, we find Andy before the Mike, fully appreciative of the breathless suspense with which the country waits to hear him deliver this "reportent" message. Here they are:

"Sho', sho', folks, dis Andy speakin'—Andy Brown, prez'dent of de Fresh Air Taxicab Co. of America, Incorpulated. Folks, you is lissenin 'to a self-made man. By rights I is Charles J. Correll an' I is born all white in Peoria, Ill., in 1890. De fust dollah I eveh makes is sellin' noospapehs. When I grows up de fambly wants me to do de same as dey is. Dey is all in de construssion bizness, so dey makes a bricklayeh outto me. Dat's de trufe, de whole trufe an' nuthin' but de trufe—de prez'dent of dis yere great taxicab comp'ny was oncet a bricklayeh"——

"You otta stuck dere, too."

"I outta stuck—keep you monf shut, Amos . . . As I was sayin', folks, me an' bricklayin' don't git along. You see, I'ze a man whut is retended to use my brains, an' bricklayin' is a biznes whut is retended fo' work.

"So we busts up, bricklayin' an' me, an' I gits a job playin' de piano in a movie theayter. Den I does a li'l singin' 'an dancin' on de side. an' one day de Chicago people comes to Peoria an' when dey sees how good I is, dey signs me up quick. Pretty soon dey sends me to Durham, North Carolina, an' I meets a young fella doin' de same thing fo' de comp'ny."

"You means me, huh, Andy?"

"Yeh, folks, I means Amos, Co'se I'ze much betteh dan Amos. but I makes frien's wid him spiten dat. You know how dem things is—de biggeh a man is de mo' 'clined he is to help de undeh dog. . . ."

"Andy, you call me a dog an' I biff you smack in de face."

"So Amos an' me, we meets frequent in de nex' six year, an' den de comp'ny take us bofe offen do road an' haul us back to Chicago to run things fo' dem. Dat was good, folks, dat was good."

"Wait a minnit, Andy, dis yere gemman say he got sumpin' he want tell de folks. Who is you, mistah? You's de 'nouncer, huh? Whut you want 'nounc? Oh, dat's all right—you go right 'head an' 'nounce whuteveh you wants."

"Sho', sho', mistah, but 'nounce it fas'. De folks out dere is waitin' to heah Andy Brown, prez'dent of de Fresh——"

JUST a moment, please, ladies and gentlemen, while we explain that the boys have brought you up to the year 1925. As coaches for the Chicago company, they worked themselves up to salaries of $100 a week. They received a straight salary, the company deriving its income from a fifty-fifty cut in the gross receipts of the entertainments.

Sometimes these receipts ran as high as $8000, but usually the gross was far less, and the expenses were high. The boys saw no solid future in the field to which fate had drawn them. They were ambitious. Continually they kept their eyes open for some opportunity which would promise better things.

In 1925 radio began seriously to organize itself as an art and industry. Recognizing it as a sphere which held possibilities, but not knowing what these possibilities might be, Amos 'n' Andy—we use the well-known names, though at that time they were still for the future—began perfecting themselves as a "song and chatter" team. While holding their jobs for meal ticket purposes, they spent their nights learning new songs and digging up gags to amuse radio audiences. Then came a great moment in history, as they will now explain to you.

"Well, folks —dis is Amos speakin'—me an' Andy is settin' in our room in Chicago one night talkin' 'bout whut we'ze gonna do. We'ze gotta do sumpin', else we'ze gotta live on $100 a week de res' of our lives, an' dey ain't nobuddy neveh goin' git rich on dat, 'special if we wants git married an' ev'thing. So I says—"

"No, Amos, it was me whut says dat."

"Shut up, Andy, how you know whut I goin' say I says? So I says, Andy, whut you think 'bout radio, I says?"

"Uh, uh, Amos, dat was yo' prez'dent whut says dat."

"Whut difence it make? Dey kain't nobuddy know lessen 'bout radio dan whut bofe us knows put togeddeh. All we knows 'bout it is dat when you does sumpin' befo' de mikafoam, dey's lotsa folks whut has lissen to you whetheh dey wants to o' not. An' dat's de only chancet we has to git folks to lissen to us—when dey don't wanna.

"We sits up all night talkin' it oveh, an' nex' day we goes out to de Edgewateh Beach Hotel to see de gemman whut runs station WEBH. Whut you all want, de gemman asts when we gits dere? We'ze singehs, we say, we wants sing on de radio. Come oveh heah an' I try you out, he say. Den he lead us oveh to de piano. Afteh we sings three songs fo' him he asts us who done told us we is singehs, an' dey ain't nuthin' we kin say 'bout dat, 'cause dey ain't nobuddy eveh told us we is singehs."

"Oh, oh, Amos, dat was sho' a bad sit-yation."

"Andy, you has got think up a betteh word dan bad fo' dat sityation. De same night we is agin settin' in our room tryin' to figgeh out how we'ze goin' bust in when de lan'lady knock on de dooh an' tel us somebuddy want speak wid us on de telefoam. Andy, I say, you anseh dat telefoam an' preten' like we'ze out. So Andy, he go to de telefoam."

"HELLO, hello. Yeh, dis him. Yeh, dat's right—de short one—yeh, de one dat ain't skiny. Sho, sho, I'ze de reportent member of de team. No, he ain't got nuthin' to do wid nuthin'—I does ev'thing. No, he don't know nuthin', neitheh—dat's right. Whut dat you—"

"We'se out, Andy. Don't I tell you we'se out?"

"We'ze out—wait a minnit, misteh, we'ze not out, we'ze in. . . . Amos, shut you mouf. . . . No, misteh, I didn't tell you shut you mouf—I tells Amos dat. Whut dat you say? "Sh-sh, Amos, dis is de managah of WEBH an' I has let him know we'ze big business men."

"Git offen dat telefoam, Andy. Give me dat receiveh. . . . Hello, hello, is you de boss radio man? You is, huh—well, whut you want? (Tomorrow Amos 'n' Andy let you in on the secret of how they conceived the idea for the newest form of entertainment—a comic serial on the air.)

CAKES AND PIES HAVE PLACE IN THE DIET

Their Flavorful Goodness Makes Balanced Meals Complete

America has made its pastry popular the world over. And of all desserts, few can be made in more pleasing variety than pies and cakes.

Every normal person should have pastry frequently, because it helps balance the diet. A piece of fruit pie with a tender crust, or a slice of light textured cake is an ideal ending to a meal composed of meat, and vegetables of the leafy as well as the starchy sort.

The ingredients and manufacturing methods employed by modern bakers, great and small, insure the highest quality in these popular American desserts. Their freshness can be depended upon and their price is within reach of all.

A nationally known food chemist recommends a generous vegetable salad followed by a piece of pie, cake or any similar dessert for those dieting, in order to reduce weight. Such a meal ideally satisfies the appetite without increasing weight. A bit of sweet makes the meal complete. The Sugar Institute.

"Most captivating feminine charm is Lovely Skin," says George Melford, famous Hollywood Director

"PEOPLE take to their hearts instantly the girl who has beautiful skin. Without it no girl can rise to stardom on the screen."

In these words George Melford sums up the experience of 45 leading Hollywood directors. "The public loves the close-up," he goes on, "and only a skin of ravishing smoothness can stand the test of glaring studio lights."

To every actress in Hollywood, then, smooth skin is of supreme importance. And 511 of the 521 important ones (including all stars) use Lux Toilet Soap!

The Broadway stage stars use it, too. And, when they decide to do a "talkie," easily pass the close-up test! And now the European stars have adopted this fragrant white soap. Certainly you will want to try it. Order several cakes—today.

Crumb Molasses Tart.

Try this instead of gingerbread or cinnamon bun next week-end. Eight tablespoons molasses, eight tablespoons fresh breadcrumbs, one lemon, two cups flour, one-half cup butter, one-half teaspoon salt. Rub flour, salt and butter together as you would for pie crust and add enough water to make a stiff paste. Roll out and line a buttered tin with it. Mix together crumbs, molasses, grated rind and the juice of one lemon. Pour into shell and bake in a hot oven until pastry is nicely browned.

"Now we eat more bread since I've been getting the PERFECTED loaf"

EVERYWHERE you hear it—"Perfected bread is so much better than anything we've had before that we all eat much more bread—especially the children."

Yes, perfected bread does make a difference—a very noticeable difference. Tip-Top Bread, the perfected loaf, is better to slice, has a better taste, makes better toast. Naturally that kind of bread gets eaten more.

And more bread means good substantial nourishment and, of course, less cost compared to other foods.

Discover for yourself this new perfected loaf. Ask your dealer for it by name—Tip-Top Bread.

HEALTH

Food for Teeth

ANIMALS in the wild state and primitive peoples unacquainted with the foodstuffs of civilization rarely suffer from tooth decay.

In fact, to certain of the primitive tribes deformities of the teeth appeal as a thing of beauty and they deliberately chip, file or otherwise misshape the teeth.

That the healthy condition of the teeth of primitive peoples and of wild animals is in part, at least, due to the foods they eat, has been experimentally demonstrated.

In England and America investigators have found it possible by means of controlled diets to produce good or bad teeth in experimental animals. By feeding animals on a diet poor in vitamins and calcium, but excessive in meats and sugars, they have been made to suffer dental disturbances similar to those found in man.

The young born to such animals also show an hereditary weakness in their teeth. Not only are the teeth of these young animals soft, but they are incompletely developed and misshaped, and their supporting tissues, that is, gums and jaws, are weak.

Local mouth conditions in terms of acid saliva or the growth of acid-forming germs do not appear responsible for the damage seen in the mouths of these experimental animals. For, when the diets fed to these animals is improved through the addition of vegetables, fruits and milk, the mouth conditions of both females and young improve.

Mouth cleanliness is, of course, most desirable, but diet is vital, particularly in the young. In the first months of life a sound or weak foundation for future mouth health may be laid down, and whether it is to be one or the other is largely determined by diet.

This is one of the reasons why it is desirable that babies should be breast fed.

PUBLIC MEETINGS AND ENTERTAINMENTS

Melvin Barkon, a junior member of the City Club, will speak on "Peace" at the City Club at 12:40 p. m. tomorrow.

Jet Jewelry

THE pieces of jet jewelry your mother prized may be turned to advantage for spring provided they include such items as the wide flexible bracelet of jet motifs strung on elastic. The vogue for black and white is reflected this season in nothing less than jet jewelry. Newly designed pieces are sometimes combined with white or colored crystal. Attractive new chokers are of jet interspersed with small crystal beads and ensembled with all-jet bracelets. Chanel is responsible for this revival of jet, and a smart new fashion it is.

Apple Souffle.

Two cups stewed apples that have been put through a sieve. Add one tablespoon melted butter, one-half cup sugar, cinnamon or nutmeg to flavor and the well-beaten yolks of four eggs. Cool and add the stiffly whipped whites of eggs. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve immediately with either sweetened whipped or plain cream.

The Egg Beater.

As soon as you finish with the egg beater, hold it under the cold water faucet and rinse it off thoroughly. The force of the water will soon clean it and save you a lot of work after the baking is over. It can then be placed on top of the oven and will be ready to put away before the baking is done.

SO YOU SAW HARTFORD ON THE STREET TODAY EH, PEG? WELL I KNEW HE WAS IN TOWN BUT I GUESS HE'S TOO BUSY TO GET IN TOUCH WITH HIS FRIENDS.
HE ASKED ABOUT YOU. AND SAID TO TELL YOU HE HOPED YOU WERE WELL.
IF HARTFORD WANTED TO WISH ME LUCK HE COULD HAVE GOT IN TOUCH WITH ME VERY EASILY BY PHONE. OH WELL I GUESS IT'S THE OLD STORY. WHY SHOULD HE GO OUT OF HIS WAY FOR A MERE FRIEND?
MOTHER DISLIKES HIM MORE THAN EVER.
I NEVER EXACTLY DISLIKED HARTFORD BUT ON THE OTHER HAND I'LL NEVER AGAIN BE FRIENDLY UNLESS HE CAN EXPLAIN EVERYTHING VERY THOROUGHLY.
MY OPINION OF HARTFORD HAS CHANGED, TOO. TODAY WHEN I TALKED WITH HIM HE SEEMED TO BE — WELL, JUST LIKE ANY OTHER PERSON.
WELL WHY SHOULD I WORRY ABOUT ANYBODY WHO'S TOO BUSY TO AT LEAST LET ME KNOW WHERE I CAN FIND HIM? I'M PRACTICALLY DONE WITH HARTFORD.
HOW A PERSON CHANGES. I REMEMBER WHEN I'D SIT FOR HOURS AND JUST THINK ABOUT HARTFORD. WONDERING WHERE HE WAS. WHAT I'D DO IF ANYTHING HAPPENED TO HIM. IMAGINE! GOSH, HOW SILLY A PERSON CAN BE WHEN THEY'RE YOUNG AND ROMANTIC.

STOCK TRADE LARGER AND PRICE RANGE IRREGULAR

Many Shares Marked Up to New High Levels for Year While Others Reach New Lows.

S. O. OF NEW JERSEY IS STRONG FEATURE

Heavy Buying of Oils and Renewal of Selling Pressure Against Coppers Mark Last Hour of Trade.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23. — The stock market closed irregular today, after a series of highly conflicting price movements, in which many stocks were marked up to new high levels for the year, while others were hammered to new lows. Trading showed a marked expansion in volume, the day's sales of more than 5,500,000 shares running about 1,000,000 shares above yesterday's turnover.

Heavy buying of the oil shares and a renewal of selling pressure against the coppers and a number of steels and specialties were the contrasting features of the last hour of trading.

Standard Oil of New Jersey ran up more than 5 points to a new high record at 83⅝ and then eased to 82⅛. Standard Oil of California crossed 74 to a new peak and Transcontinental Oil also moved into new high ground. Moderate gains were recorded by most of the other leading oil shares.

Business News Mixed.

Business news was mixed. Iron Age reported an increase in the general average of steel operations from 78 to 80 per cent, and private California dispatches indicated a settlement of the gasoline price cutting in that territory. Another flock of quarterly earning reports made their appearance, and most of them made unfavorable comparisons with a year ago, although the showing in some cases exceeded Wall street's earlier expectations. Iron Age reported that, "although specifying is from hand to mouth, and the requirements of certain consuming lines are diminishing, the aggregate of all business has not only held up, but has shown further slight improvement." "The gain," it adds, "is attributable mainly to larger orders from the automobile industry, particularly the makers of low-priced cars."

There was fresh, selling in the group, Anaconda, Kennecott, Magma and Andes all sinking to new low levels for the year.

Vanadium Steel broke more than 8 points to 130, and showed only a slight recovery from the low level. U. S. Steel common, Radio, Warner Bros. Pictures, American Can, General Electric, Union Carbide, American Radiator, National Cash Register and United Aircraft were among the recently popular issues to show net declines of 1 to 2½ points.

Radio-Keith-Orpheum was an outstanding strong spot, crossing 48 to a new high for a net gain of more than 5 points. International Telephone closed 2 points higher at 75⅝ and American Telephone showed a net gain of 1⅝ at 256¼. Gillette Safety Razor and Electric Power & Light each showed net declines of 3½ points, although the latter had touched a new high record above 103 earlier in the session.

Call Money 3½ Per Cent.

Call money again dropped from 4 to 3½ per cent, with loans in the outside market available as low as 3 per cent. Time money and bankers' acceptance rates held steady.

Foreign exchanges displayed a firmer undertone. Sterling cables were quoted slightly higher, at $4.86 5-16, and French francs at 3.92⅜ cents.

Wheat closed firm, 1⅛ to 1⅞ cents a bushel higher, in response to bullish Kansas reports and large export sales. Corn also closed firm, ⅛ to ⅞ cents a bushel higher. Cotton closed at new advances of $1.30 to $2.25 a bale.

The American Petroleum Institute's estimate of crude Production last week showed that increases in California had been offset by downturns elsewhere, notably in Oklahoma.

Stock prices, with other tables and market news, will be found on pages 16C, 17C, 18C and 19C.
